THE MAINE HISTORICAL MAGAZINE.

A MONTHLY.

VOL. IX. BANGOR, ME., JAN., FEB., MAR., 1894. Nos. 1, 2, 3.

ANNALS OF THE CITY OF BANGOR, MAINE.

BY THE LATE GOVERNOR WILLIAM D. WILLIAMSON, OF BANGOR, MAINE.

The manuscript was found among the papers of Gov. Williamson by his nephew, Joseph Williamson, Esquire, of Belfast, and by him sent to Dawson's New York Historical Magazine. From the copious notes attached to the papers, it is supposed that Gov. Williamson did not intend printing these annals without correction. His notes are added. Some corrections and additions by the editor may be found.

1769.—All statements and traditional reports agree in this, that the first habitancy attempted in Bangor was in the summer or autumn of the year 1769. About that time, Jacob Buzzell* lived in a log house, on the declivity, less than half a mile above Kenduskeag-point, perhaps two hundred paces southerly of Newbury street, and one hundred and thirty paces from the banks of the Penobscot river, not far from a spring, where he lived two years or more. But Mrs. Howard,† the wife of Thomas Howard, thinks that Jacob's first house was farther north and east, being not very far from the corner of the

* So Capt. Mansell says: also Mrs. Mann. Capt. Mansell says certainly old Jacob Buzzell's first house was more than one half way down the hill towards the Penobscot from the present Main (or State) street, and he, the Capt., worked there near his house, while he lived there. Buzzell's wife's maiden name was Leighton.—W.

† On the 1st of December, 1819, I went to Mrs. Howard's and spent a good part of the day in my inquiries of her as to the early settlement of this town. She was a strong-minded, pious woman, and her recollection was remarkably perfect. Indeed, for many years, her memory was considered by all her acquaintance a kind of oracle. I took minutes in writing at the time, from which this and several of the succeeding pages are compiled. Another story is that Stephen Buzzell came afterwards with his wife and two children, that they suffered exceedingly during the winter, and that one of his children died before spring. But Mrs. Howard thinks the father came first, and that the son came the next year. So Capt. Joseph Mansell says. He knew Stephen at Castine, before the war, and before he was married. His wife he also knew when she was a girl, her maiden name being Grant.

present Newbury and Main streets, though below the corner, and that the hut of Jacob's son Stephen was considerably farther down the river, half way towards the bridge over the Penobscot. In that fall, (1769), Jacob moved his family, consisting of wife and nine children, from Castine into his first house, which was small, and they passed the winter there, thus becoming the first settlers of Bangor. Jacob Buzzell* was originally from Dover, N. H. He was a boat-builder, hunter and fisherman. His last place of abode was at Upper Stillwater where he died.

1770.—This summer, Caleb Goodwin, originally from Bowdoinham, came up the river from Castine, with his wife and eight children, and built a log house not far from the spring previously mentioned, and his was the second family in the place. The same season, Stephen Buzzell, living at Fort Point, married Miss Grant of Castine, and began to keep house not far from Goodwin's. Hence, the Buzzells (father and son) and Goodwin were the only families in Bangor, this year. Stephen Buzzell in a few years moved up the river fifteen or twenty miles, to Sunkhaze, and died there.

1771.—In April, came Thomas Howard, his wife and two children from Woolwich. With them, came from the same town, six men to look out lands and places for settlement. Two others, Solomon Harthorn and Silas Harthorn,† brothers, came and got out timber for a saw mill. The six who accompanied him were Thomas, John and Hugh Smart, three brothers,—Jacob Dennet,‡ Simon Crosby,§ and David Rowell; and all joined and "clapped" up, that is suddenly put up a log house on the high ground near the site where the Budge house afterwards

* Mr. John Howard says he well remembers that Jacob Buzzell lived one hundred rods northerly of Newbury street, not far from the stream of water this side of Mr. Howard's on the lot this way, and not far from the river. But he may have first lived where his mother says.

† S. and S. Harthorn, originally from Worcester, Mass., lived a while in Stow, and then at Owl's Head, from which they removed to Bangor. "Old Silas," as he was called, I have frequently seen. He was tall and slender.

‡ Dennet's wife was Thomas Smart's sister, and the sister of Capt. James Budge's wife. Jacob Dennet was a ship-wright—thick set—thick lips—grum voice—loved a cup, but was industrious, honest and generous. His wife was a very sensible woman. They had a large family; one was the mother of George W. Pickering, one married Maj. Theodore Trafton, and another married John Bragg. There was also Menitabel, and John Dennet an only son, who married at Woolwich. He died soon after I came to Bangor.

§ Simon Crosby was a respectable man. Mr. Howard took the second lot northerly of Newbury street, where John Howard still lives. The old gentleman and his wife were very pious people. They had a large family.

of the world, and the progress of the human mind, as far as it has been able to penetrate into the secrets of nature, and to unravel the mysteries of the human heart. The history of the world is a long and tedious tale, and the progress of the human mind is a slow and painful process. But the history of the world is a tale of glory and of triumph, and the progress of the human mind is a process of joy and of exultation. The history of the world is a tale of the great and the good, and the progress of the human mind is a process of the noble and the true.

stood, designed for Thomas Smart,* ultimately for his use. Other log houses were erected about the same time;—Simon Crosby's on the bank of the river, not far from the Hampden line. Jacob Dennet's on the high ground, one hundred rods northerly of Dennet's cove, and fifty rods from the river, and John Smart's in the vicinity of the Baptist meeting-house. In September or October, Dennet, Thomas Smart and Simon Crosby removed their families into the place. With them came Joseph Rose and his family, and settled on the spot near what was afterwards Maj. Treat's house. In all, there were eight families this year.

1772.—In April of this year, came Solomon and Silas Harthorn, with their families, and employed Joseph Mansell,† a mill-wright, who came with them, to build a saw-mill, which was erected below the stone bridge and dam across Penjewis stream, over which the country road passed many years. This is the stream, a few rods above the dwelling-house of William Forbes; and this the first mill in Bangor. Fifteen years afterwards, a grist mill‡ was built there,—the first one in Bangor. Before this, the people for a time went to a mill on a stream opposite Odom's Ledge, not far above Fort Point. This year, also, the Harthorns erected a framed dwelling-house, which stood between the main road and river, a few rods southerly of the mouth of Penjewis stream. This was the first framed house in this town.

David Rowell's family came this year, and he built a framed house on the plain north of said stream. Andrew Webster§ also came, and built a log house, on the side hill northerly of Water street, between Main street, and the water,|| and John Smart and his brother Hugh located themselves on the northerly side of the Kenduskeag, on the high ground, above the lower mills on that stream. Therefore, at the close of

* The three Smarts, as I am told by Capt. Mansell, were middle sized men, fond of sea-faring. They owned a coaster of which Thomas was Captain. John and Hugh sometimes went trips with their brother, talked large, disposed to be "bullies," though not mean men. Hugh was never married. He died at sea; the others at home.

† But Capt. Mansell says that the Harthorns first came up the river to Penjewis in 1771.

‡ Mrs. Howard says "people pounded their corn in a mortar, until 1776, when Wheeler built his mill at Sowadabscook stream (Hampden). The next nearest was built by Brewer."

§ Mr. Webster afterward moved back a mile or two from the river and from the plain, where he lived many years, and where many of his children were born. He then removed to Stillwater, and died there. His wife, a short woman, very pious, I have seen often. Their children were Richard, Daniel, Ebenezer, (Col.) Andrew, James, Elijah, and William Hasey's wife.

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

The first part of the book is devoted to the early history of the United States, from the discovery of the continent by Christopher Columbus in 1492 to the establishment of the first permanent English colonies in the early 17th century. This section covers the exploration of the continent, the settlement of Jamestown, Plymouth, and the Massachusetts Bay Colony, and the early struggles for survival and expansion.

The second part of the book deals with the period of colonial expansion and the growing tensions between the colonies and Great Britain. It covers the French and Indian War, the Seven Years' War, and the increasing demands for self-government and independence. This section also discusses the economic and social developments of the colonies, including the growth of a middle class and the emergence of a distinct American identity.

The third part of the book focuses on the American Revolution and the early years of the new nation. It covers the Declaration of Independence, the Revolutionary War, and the establishment of the Constitution. This section also discusses the challenges of building a new government and the early years of the Republic under George Washington.

The fourth part of the book covers the period of westward expansion and the growth of the United States. It discusses the Louisiana Purchase, the Mexican War, and the discovery of gold in California. This section also covers the Civil War and the Reconstruction period, as well as the rise of industrialization and the emergence of a new American identity.

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

this year, (1772), the families were thirteen, viz., 1, Jacob Buzzell,* 2, Stephen Buzzell, 3, Caleb Goodwin, 4, Thomas Howard, 5, Jacob Den- net, 6, Thomas Smart, 7, John Smart, 8, Solomon Harthorn, 9, Silas Harthorn, 10, Simon Crosby, 11, David Rowell, 12, Andrew Webster, 13, Joseph Rose. Joseph Mansell was a single man. Also one Cotton came this year, and settled near the end of the present bridge over the Penob- scot; but he died the same year. Cotton's death was the first one in the plantation. In the summer, Thomas Goldthwait, son of him of the same name who used to solemnize marriages, and who commanded at Fort Pownall, had a trading-house near the mouth of the Kenduskeag. Being a tory, he left us as soon as the first speck of war was seen. This year, were born the two first white children in the place, viz., Mary Howard, daughter of Thomas Howard,† who married Andrew Mayhew. She was born June 30, 1771, and Hannah Harthorn was born Sept. 10, the same year.‡ She was the daughter of Silas Harthorn.§ Her first husband was Allen McLaughlin; 2d, Samuel Babbidge, 3d, Mr. Lambert, and 4th, Capt. Joseph Mansell.

1773.—This year, Joseph Mansell was married by Esq. Goldthwait to Elizabeth Harthorn, a daughter of Silas Harthorn. Also, James Dunning removed to the plantation, and settled on the flat, some rods south of the lower Kenduskeag bridge. Also, several other families came in, so that "before the close of the year 1773," (as Mrs. Howard says), "there were thirty families in town." This summer, a female school was set up, the first one in the place, in a log house built on the flat ground, southerly of where Major Treat now lives, towards the hill, and a few rods from the river. It was kept by Miss Abigail Ford.

1774. Prior to this year, there were in the settlement several religious meetings,—at private houses, and in barns, when the weather was warm. The first missionary of whom any mention is made, who

* Mrs. Sarah Mann, now (Apl. 1, 1839.) seventy-five years of age, says she was the daughter of William Tibbetts; that her father removed from Gouldsboro to Kenduskeag, in 1779, and that she was married to David Mann, of Brewer, in 1788, by the Rev. Mr. Noble. That the sons of Jacob Buzzell were Stephen, Abraham, Ephraim, Isaac, and Jacob, and that the father said his son Jacob was the first child born in what is now Bangor. But quere?

† Mr. Thomas Howard's family were nine children, viz., 1, Rebecca, who married Samuel R. Blasdel, of Hampden, 2, Thomas who married and settled where Sam Sherburne lives, and died at sea, 3, Mary, who married A. Mayhew, the first white child born in Bangor, 4, Louis, who married Samuel Couillard, of Frankfort, 5, David, who lived here, and died in 1842, 6, Susan, who married Samuel Jones; she died in 1807; 7, John, who lives in this town, and gave me this information; 8, Fanny, who married Ezra Patten of Bangor, 9, Sarah, who married Dea. Zebulon Smith, and died in 1843.

‡ She that was Hannah Harthorn died July 25, 1843. Capt. Mansell says she and Mary Howard were born in 1772.

§ Both Solomon and Silas Harthorn had large families.

The first part of the book is devoted to a general survey of the history of the United States from the discovery of the continent to the present time. It is divided into three main periods: the colonial period, the revolutionary period, and the national period. The colonial period is characterized by the struggle for independence from Great Britain, and the revolutionary period by the establishment of a new government. The national period is marked by the growth of the country and the development of a national identity.

The second part of the book is devoted to a detailed study of the political and social conditions of the United States during the colonial period. It discusses the relations between the colonies and Great Britain, the development of the colonial legislatures, and the growth of a sense of independence among the colonists. It also examines the social and economic conditions of the colonies, and the role of the church and the state.

The third part of the book is devoted to a study of the revolutionary period, and the establishment of a new government. It discusses the causes of the revolution, the course of the war, and the signing of the Declaration of Independence. It also examines the formation of the Constitution, and the early years of the new government.

visited the settlers, was a Mr. Ripley, a Calvinist, who preached several times, on each side of the river.

This spring or summer, Dr. John Herbert came from the westward. He had some difficulty with his wife, and ranged away into this country, and took up his lodgings at Mr. David Howard's. He remained in the settlement till the summer of 1779. Mrs. Howard, who was herself a very pious woman, says that "Doct. Herbert was a Calvinist,—a good man, and took the lead in religious meetings which were generally "holden every Sabbath." Capt. Mansell says "Dr. Herbert† had good learning; was a good physician, though not regularly bred to that profession; an excellent schoolmaster, and an elegant penman." He kept a school in a house southerly of Penjewalk stream, probably the first master's school in the place. Though he was a melancholic man, he was highly esteemed. About the time the British took possession of Bigyduce, in 1779, his son came for him, and carried him home, where he soon died. When he went away, he had considerable due to him, especially for doctoring, no part of which was ever called for or paid.

1775.—Fort Pownall dismantled. Bunker Hill battle. The Penobscot tribe tender their services to the Americans. Falmouth burnt by Capt. Mowett.

THE INDIANS.

Toman, Governor, in 1771.—Osson was commissioned a Justice of the Peace by the Executive of Mass., the only native so honored.

Orono, Governor or Chief, 1775 to 1801-2.—Before the British took possession of Castine, there was an Indian about (Mrs. Howard says) whose hand had been burnt off for killing his squaw. Yet one Nunguemet killed his squaw in 1771, at or near the point—put her through the ice—then she was taken up and buried. Nobody could ever learn that the Indians dealt with him at all for killing her.* Mrs. Howard says before the Revolutionary war, the Indians used to threaten they meant to drive off the settlers from the lands, but after the war commenced, they professed to be great friends to the Americans, and went down to Bigyduce to join them against the British. But after the British drove the Americans up, in the repulse and defeat of 1779, many of the savages turned upon the settlers, and plundered their houses all the way up the river. Some of the Indians, particularly "White Francis" and "Osson," were killed. At any time, by day or night, for years after the first settlement, the Indians would burst open the doors, to come in and warm themselves. When the inmates were up, they would turn them from the fire, sometimes lie down with their feet towards the fire and sleep—eat anything that was cooked and in sight, but seldom stole anything but victuals. They were chaste; no Indian was ever known to offer violence to a female. There was among them the form and engagement of marriage* before the Europeans came among them. The intentions were published thus. The females for a period previously "wore one blue stocking, and the other a red one." They had a kind of religious meetings,—prayers and singing, but they were holden on Saturdays. The youngsters played ball those days and also Sundays. They are very fond of playing bat and ball. The squaws, also the Indians, used to wear jewels in their ears and noses. The men had only one lock of hair around their crown; the rest was polled short. The squaws, and generally the Indians, undress when they lie down to sleep in the night—put bear skins under and blankets over, and lie on the floor, with their feet toward the fire. Mrs. Howard relates this story: One morning, a single Indian came into the house, and said if she would get him a breakfast, he would give her a ninepence. She cooked it for him, and when ready, placed it on the head of a barrel in the corner of the room. At the same instant, another Indian rushed in with great fury, seized the sitting one, clenched, and they both fell on the floor. The pursuer got the other upon his face, kneeled upon his shoulders, caught his lock of hair with both hands, pulled up and twisted his neck and head, first one way and then the other, with all violence, until the bones cracked as if dislocated,—she expecting every moment to see his neck break. In the midst of the contest, a third Indian entered, and began to eat the victuals. Mrs. Howard told him the food was his brother's. "Ay, very good fight," said he, and ate the whole. The others drew off.

RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION.

Before Dr. Herbert left, (Mrs. Howard says) the Rev. Daniel Little, from Kennebunk, visited the place as a missionary, and in 1779, soon after Dr. Herbert left, one Oliver Noble came and preached a few Sabbaths. Afterwards, Mr. Little came again, and in each visit, he baptized some children—particularly the first time he came, he baptized

Lois Howard, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard. Rev. Seth Noble,* whose native place was Newmarket or Springfield, N. H., migrated into Nova Scotia, and became a preacher of the Gospel in the easterly region around the margin of the Bay of Fundy, and a settled minister at the river St. John. Being directly or indirectly concerned in the attack made by Col. Eddy and others on Fort Cumberland, at the head of Chignecto Bay in 1776. † he was implicated with them, and returned to New Hampshire. Early in the Spring of 1785-6, with his wife and three children, he came to Kenduskeag Plantation, the acquired name of this settlement. The people were pleased with his preaching, and a subscription paper was carried around by Elisha Nevens, to ascertain how much each person would give by the year to Mr. Noble, so long as he would be their minister. At least fifty subscribers were obtained on each side of the Penobscot river, and the annual sum intended to be raised, was $400, or £100. So much of it was subscribed, that he concluded to settle, and was installed by the Rev. D. Little, before mentioned, as a missionary. or evangelist. The ordination took place under some spreading oaks, that stood on the square between Oak and Ash, York and Hancock streets. The only ministers present were Mr. Little and Mr. Noble, yet it was a solemn occasion. Mr. Noble preached the sermon, and Mr. Little gave the charge and the right hand of fellowship. No church was organized at the time nor afterwards while Mr. Noble abode in the Plantation: still he administered the Lord's Supper at stated intervals. The communicants were Thomas Howard, Andrew Webster, and Simon Crosby, and their wives, on this side of the river, and John Brewer and Simeon Fowler, and their wives, on the other side—in all, ten professors. ‡ Generally, the meetings were holden during the summer in a barn, southerly of Penjewalk stream, and in other places to accommodate the worshippers. With some aid from his parishioners, or hearers, he built a small house 20 or 30 rods northerly of Newbury street, perhaps not half way between Main street and the river. The cavities of the cellar were visible until quite recently. This and his installation were both in 1786, the year of his arrival.

* When Mr. Noble had been in the Plantation about a year, there was a vote passed to build a meeting-house, 40 by 36 feet. But it was not built.

† By Resolve of June 29, 1785, there was given to Rev. Mr. Noble, one of the refugees from Nova Scotia, three hundred acres of land in Eddington. This gift probably occasioned the coming of Mr. Noble to Penobscot river.

‡ The prosperity and respectability of their children are circumstances worthy of special notice.

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

The history of the United States is a story of a young nation that grew from a small group of colonies on the eastern coast of North America to a powerful superpower that spans across continents. The story begins with the first European settlers who arrived in the late 15th and early 16th centuries. These settlers established colonies that were initially dependent on their European parent countries for trade and protection. Over time, however, the colonies began to develop their own identities and economies, and they started to assert their independence from their parent countries. This process of self-determination culminated in the American Revolution, which began in 1775 and ended in 1783. The revolution was a struggle for independence that was fought against the British Empire, and it resulted in the creation of the United States of America. The new nation was founded on the principles of liberty, democracy, and the rule of law, and it has since become a model for other nations around the world. The history of the United States is a story of a nation that has overcome many challenges and has emerged as a global leader. It is a story of a nation that has shaped the world and has inspired people everywhere.

Mrs. Howard says, Mr. Noble† was “a very airy man,—preached “well without notes,—gifted in prayer—a good neighbor and a good “gardener; a very industrious man, excellent in sickness, and very moral.” At length, in 1798, the sums subscribed were not paid: some of the subscribers had died—some had removed away—and his living having become small, he returned to Newmarket, and never came back. Thence, he went to Springfield, where he was born. In 1790, the people of Kenduskeag Plantation drew up and signed a petition to be made a town, and chose Rev. Mr. Noble their agent to present the petition to the General Court, and procure the charter of incorporation. They voted to have it named Sunbury; it being pleasant in sound, and the place pleasant. But “Mr. Noble disliked it* and because he was “so much enamored with the Church-tune Bangor, he caused that name “to be put into the Act,” supposing if it were not well liked, it could be easily changed.

BRITISH AT CASTINE, OR BIGUYDUCE.

In April, 1779, (Mrs. Howard says) the British took possession of Biguyduce—the Americans under Lovell and Salstonstall. Lovell was called a leather-breeches maker. A good many of the soldiers were from Newbury. Thirty sail were burnt between this and Oak Point, or head of Marsh Bay. The Sally was the uppermost one burnt, she being a little above what is now Carr’s wharf. The Point was covered with American soldiers and marines. The British followed with a ship to Brewer’s cove, and sent their boats or barges to the head of the tide in search of plunder. Samuel Kenney, residing not far from the ferry-way, on the eastern side of the river, an arrant tory, had collected at a house not far from Col. Brewer’s, a great quantity of pork and beef taken from the settlers, of which he informed Capt. Mowett, commander of the squadron, who, coming to view it, blamed Kenney, and told him to take salt from his (Mowett’s) tender immediately, salt the whole, and give a barrel to each one from whom he had taken any provision. Jedediah Preble, a tory, lived in the house the Harthorns † Deac. William Boyd has often talked with me about “Parson Noble.” The Deacon, who came to Bangor in 1791, says, Mr. Noble was too light and frothy in his conversation,—did not sustain the gravity of character becoming a minister—would drink a dram with almost any one who asked him—laugh, and tell improper anecdotes. Yet in his religious performances, he was able and pathetic—no doubt, pious, as he was truly an orthodox and faithful preacher, so that one would think when he was out of the pulpit, he ought never to enter it, and when in it, he had better never come out of it. He was a remarkably good singer—had a clear, pleasant voice, especially for tenor; collected those who were natural singers and taught them how to sing by note, and was the first teacher of sacred music in this place. After he left, Deacon Boyd says that they corresponded for several years.

first built. Solomon Harthorn was a news-carrier to the British. John Lee,* of Biguyduce, was a noted tory. He told Thos. Howard, when news of peace arrived, "he had rather America had been sunk, than "not been conquered by the British."

Note.

This and the preceding pages are from written minutes of facts taken from Mrs. Howard's lips, Dec. 1, 1819, as previously stated.

The following facts were taken from the mouth of Capt. Joseph Mansell, in writing, June 6, 1831, with additions and revisions carefully made, on this 5th of March, 1838.

Joseph Mansell† was born at Scituate, Mass., Dec. 20, 1750, and consequently was eighty-seven years of age last December. His father, John Mansell, came from London, and married at Scituate. He had four sons, and eight daughters. He lived in Scituate, until he was eighteen years old. When a school-boy, he recollects his only school-book was the Psalter. Each scholar read severally and alone in succession, and spelled from the lesson. A punishment of wrong doers was for one boy to hold another on his back, while the master stripped up the outer boy's jacket, and applied the rod in a very feeling manner. As to dress, (he says) the men and boys, when he was young, wore "Kilts," ‡ viz: trousers very wide, which came down only to the knees, to which the stockings extended—buckled or gartered above the calf. The knees were very apt to be cold. He says there was a whole regiment of Scotch Highlanders at Biguyduce, with kilts not so low, nor stockings so high as the knees; the latter being bare.

Capt. Mansell says he came to Biguyduce in April, 1768,§ and went up the river Penobscot in 1771, and found in what is now Bangor, Jacob and Stephen Buzzell, Simon Crosby, the Smarts and Jacob Den-net. James Budge first resided at Eddington-bend, or rather at the mouth of the Muntawassuck stream, below the bend, removing there about 1774, and to Kenduskeag, some five or six years afterwards. He thinks James Dunning came in 1772. He, Mansell, built for Solomon and Silas Harthorn,* a saw-mill not many rods from the mouth of Penjewish stream, and assisted in constructing the stone bridge and dam over the river, which was afterwards the county road. About fifteen years afterwards, he built a grist-mill at the same place; the first in the Plantation. In 1773, he married Elizabeth Harthorn, Silas Harthorn's daughter: they never had but one child, who died when three months old. After marriage, they removed over the river, and began to keep house at a place nearly opposite to the mouth of Penjewish stream.

* Lee was afterwards Collector of the Customs at Castine—the brother of Silas Lee, of Wiscasset. John Lee, I have often seen—a tall, subtle man.

† He lived at Daily's Eddy, at the foot of the first Narrows, on Castine river, over the Neck.

The events of 1775, such as the battle of Bunker Hill, the burning of Falmouth, and the dismantling of Fort Pownall, awakened the people on the Penobscot to a sense of their exposure, and to measures for their defence. That year, Orono and other chiefs or captains of the Penobscot Indians, with one Andrew Gilman, who had, years previously, joined himself to the tribe, went to the Massachusetts Government, and offered their services, professing to be staunch Whigs. After their return home to Penobscot, a company was raised by order from Government, which consisted of twenty white men and ten Indians, organized thus: the aforesaid Gilman† was commissioned lieutenant commandant: Joseph Mansell was orderly sergeant, William Patten was also a sergeant, and Ebenezer McKenney and Samuel Low were the two corporals. These were all the officers of the company, which was probably the first military band ever formed in the vicinity of Kenduskeag. Their head-quarters, or place of lodgement, was in the

* Capt. Mansell says he lived in the family of Silas Harthorn, on the spot where Widow Webster lives. He also states, that "in 1774, Isaac Simons, my grandfather, "on my mother's side, went with me on to Fort Hill, in Bangor, and there said to me "thus: 'When I was a small boy I was with the party that destroyed the Indian and "French village here:" but there was not an Indian there at the time." See my History of Maine, Vol. 2, p. 143.

† This Andrew Gilman originated from old York, or its vicinity:—an inferior, mean-spirited man, of small stature, and little mind, though of some energy and cunning. He was appointed lieutenant, only because of his influence among the Indians. For he had been with them so long that he could speak their language as well as themselves. He cohabited with them: dressed in an Indian garb: hunted and traded with them. He was never married, but is supposed to have had an illegitimate son by one of the females of the tribe. At this time he was about fifty years old: had no more principle than self-interest dictated: and was really respected by no one. To finish what is known of him, before the close of the war, he and one Piel, an Indian, together with Piel's squaw and a son of nine or ten years old, went hunting, back of Pushaw Pond; and, at the end of the hunt, he claimed half of the fur; but the Indian, on account of his squaw and the boy, who skinned and cooked the game, claimed to have two-thirds. To settle the quarrel, Gilman procured a keg of rum, and incited to his aid Archibald McPheters, Jun. and James Page, and all returned to the camp, where they killed the Indian, and took the whole of the fur. During the murder, the squaw and boy both fled, and, in their hiding-place saw it committed. On her complaint, Simeon Fowler, Esq., issued a warrant, and John Brewer, a Deputy sheriff, arrested all three, and after examination, committed them to gaol in Pownalboro'. But a few days before the term commenced for their trial, a story was put in circulation, among the Indians, that the trial was to be a week later than the reported true time. No witness therefore appeared at Court against the prisoners; and, consequently they were discharged. But Gilman never returned to Penobscot. Note. Those who attended Pownalboro Court, went by water to Camden or Thomaston, and thence across.

angle between the road to Orono and that on the margin of the river, two hundred rods above Penjewis stream, below where William Lowder now resides. Here was a kind of rugged fort or shelter. The company continued together, acting as rangers, until the British took possession of Bagaduce neck.

After this, most of the settlers took, as required, the oath of allegiance to the Crown, and went down and worked on the Fort; but some refused to do either. Hence, all the obstinate were threatened, and the houses of several were burnt to ashes. For instance, old Jos. Page's house at Penjewis, and James Nichol's house at the Bend, in Eddington, were committed to the flames. To the laborers, who went down and worked, were delivered rations. The carpenters received a dollar by the day, and others at first a pistareen: afterwards, about 4s. 6d. Gen. McLain commanded at first: a cool deliberate man. He was succeeded by Col. Campbell, a violent hot-headed fellow. One Harcup, the chief engineer, commanded when Cornwallis was taken. Mowett, who burnt Falmouth, commanded the naval force at Bagaduce. He was of middle size, forty or forty-five years old—good appearance—fresh countenance—wore a blue coat, with lighter blue facings, and had his hair powdered. The troops stationed at Bagaduce were English, and Scotch Highlanders who talked pretty good English. The latter were in kilts, their military costume. At one time, the settlers being required by fresh command to work on the fort, and determining not to go, sent a message to the American officer at Thomaston, to hinder and keep them from that service. In return, a whale-boat, with twelve brave Yankees, starting off up the river, was discovered and pursued by a British schooner of ten guns, and a party of forty Highlanders and twenty Tory rangers, commanded by "Black Jones," a Kennebec tory, and came near being taken: being prevented by Mansell.

Capt. Mansell says, after the British took Penobscot, he went to Machias. He had a Lieutenant's commission, and did duty there, six months. Machias Fort was between the West Branch and Middle River, where the west village now is. John Allan,* a Lieutenant Colonel, commanded there. He was a hot-headed whig from Nova Scotia, where he had been a Judge of the Common Pleas: a man of good learning, of superior abilities, and of great activity. Displeased with some act of the Provincial Legislature, he left that country, and joined the American cause. St. John river. By firing two nine-pounders, in quick succession, he could raise an alarm that would reverberate, by means of the Indian relays, and reach even to Halifax. Major George Stillman was second in command. The whole force consisted of one Infantry company, officered by Capt. Thomas Robbins, Lieut. Dyer, and Lieut. Joseph Mansell: a small artillery company commanded by Lieut. Albee, and an Indian company commanded by Capt. John Preble, son of Brig. Gen. Preble. His Lieutenant was Lewis Delesdernier.* The whole number of Indians there and elsewhere under pay, was perhaps sixty in all.

After his return to Penobscot, and before the close of the war, there was a militia company formed, embracing all the able bodied men on each side of the river, from Sowadabscook stream upwards,—the first one established up the Penobscot: of which Capt. James Ginn, (of the present Orrington) was the Commandant, and himself, Joseph Mansell, was the Lieutenant. After the war closed, there was a new arrangement of the militia. Capt. Edward Wilkins† had command of the company below Penjewiswalk stream,—and he, Mansell, had the command of the one which embraced all the soldiers above on that side of the river, and also all on the other, on the eastern side.‡ When Wilkins resigned, he was succeeded by Capt. James Budge,§ who had been an adjutant. Ultimately, the soldiers of Bangor and Orono were classed together, and for many years formed one company. Of the upper company, Capt. Mansell resigned about 1799, and was succeeded by Capt. William Colburn, of Stillwater, who had been Mansell's lieutenant. Emerson Orcutt was ensign. Some years, or a year before, Mansell had removed over on the west side of Penobscot. The first settler at Stillwater was Joshua Eayres, his house being on the flat, eastwardly of the present village. Next, was Jeremiah Colburn. The plantation was first called "Deadwater." But one Owen Madden, a schoolmaster, a discharged soldier from Burgoyne's army, who had been stationed at Stillwater, New York, changed the name from Dead to Still-water, as a better sound. He was a schoolmaster in Bangor and Orono. He would occasionally drink to excess, but possessed a good disposition,

* Delesdernier was Swiss:—was taken prisoner with one Moore who went to Passamaquoddy to negotiate with the tribe.

† Capt. Wilkins removed to Charleston, in this County. His sons, John and Daniel, were men of some emiunee.

‡ Another account is, that "in 1786, Mansell was Captain of all in Bangor, below "Penjewiswalk, and all in Brewer."

§ Capt. James Budge was formerly the owner of the whole Point, embracing one hundred acres. He was a thick-set man—a very ready, fluent speaker, and, for several years, engaged largely in business. But ten or twelve years after the war, he became involved in debt: was intemperate and insane. His. Mag. Vol. 3, 12.

and was well educated. Philip Lovejoy was the first settler on the plains; his house being near where Ashbel Harthorn now lives. He married Polly McPheters.

REV. SETH NOBLE.

Capt. Mansell says Mr. Noble came to Kenduskeag, in 1786-7, and describes him as a man "thin faced, spare, not tall, light complexion, "fresh countenance, active, quick, smart, nervous—a very good "preacher." Capt. M. thinks he had a public education.* He was between forty and fifty when he came to Kenduskeag. He had been a Methodist, but became a Congregationalist. Late in the fall, perhaps December, while Mr. Noble was here, a vessel, on its way from this river to Boston, was wrecked on House Island, near that place, in the midst of a thick and cold snowstorm. Among those lost, were young Robert Treat, Sylvia Knapp, and Seth Noble † the minister's oldest son, all of Bangor. On a subsequent Sabbath, from the text, "Is it well "with thy husband: is it well with the child: is it well with thee?—" "And she answered, it is well,"—preached a most pathetic discourse. He was quite gifted in prayer—often pungent and very impressive in his sermons,—preached with notes, and sometimes they were pretty old. But he drank occasionally too much for a minister. His wife died, and what caused him to leave Kenduskeag, was not only the small emolument he received, but too great familiarity with his house-keeper before he married her.

Rev. James Boyd did not possess so good abilities, nor so much learning, nor did he preach so well as Mr. Noble. His complexion was light—he was proud,—rising disagreeably on his toes when preaching.

INDIANS.

Of the Indians, Capt. Mansell has considerable knowledge. The chiefs in succession were:

1. Tomer, died before the Revolutionary war, aged 110.
2. Osson, had a Justice Commission: died 100 years old.
3. Orono, died about 110 years old.
4. Aitteon, died about 1814.
5. Jo. Loring, or Lolan.
6. John Aitteon, Gov.: John Neptune, Lt. Gov.: Capt. Francis, Capt. Pees, Capt. Mitchell, and Capt. Aitteon: all made in 1816.

* I find none other who supposes he had a liberal education, though his education was good.

† He had three sons; one was in Bangor, in 1836.

Loring was the son of Joseph Percis, who died before his wife, "old Margaret," a very handsome squaw, who had a fresh look, and red cheeks, and was much respected.

Capt. Mansell says that chief, in Indian is "Chesungurmur:"—second in rank is called "Sungurmur." Never heard the Indians use the word "Sachem," or any word like it. Oldtown island was originally called Penobscot island. Stillwater, in Indian, was "Narumsuckhangan."

OF THE HARTHORN FAMILY.

Capt. Mansell says, (April 5, 1838).

Silas Harthorn went into the army of the Revolution; had the small-pox, and died. His children were:

1. Silas, who married Lucy Pitcher, and died in Bangor.
2. Ashbel, who married her sister: had a large family.
3. David, who married Abigail Burley: had a large family.
4. Elizabeth, who married Capt. Jos. Mansell.
5. Mary, who married Abraham Allen: died in Bangor.
6. Hannah, who married (1) McLaughlin: had two children by him; (2) Sam. Babbidge: had several children: he died in Ohio; (3) one Lambert, and (4) Capt. Joseph Mansell. I had a personal acquaintance with all of them except Silas and his wife, and McLaughlin.

Solomon Harthorn died at Sunkhaze. His wife was a Gates. Their children were:

1. Eber: lived up the river: was killed by a cart.
2. Gates, died.
3. Solomon: died at Wrentham (Holden): settled at Brewer.
4. Jesse: lived up river: drowned at Great Works.
5. Eli: lived up river: had a family.
6. Ruma: married a kinsman named Gates.
7. Eunice: married eastward.
8. Polly, married Jacob Cook, of Dixmont.
9. Betsey: married.

I knew several of these: they were always an honest people.

FIRST FRAMED HOUSE.

The first framed house in Bangor was built by Jedediah Preble, before the beginning of the Revolution. It was one story, and stood on the southerly side of Penjewisewalk stream, four or five rods from its mouth, and four to six rods from the bank of the Penobscot. Capt. Jameson kept tavern there, the first tavern in Bangor. Maj. Treat lived there, before he lived where he died. Levi Bradley built the first house which stood where the Rose Tavern now is, which was burnt by fire used in baking for a house-warming. Before the conflagration, Bradley had sold to Elijah Smith, and to aid him in rebuilding a house, neighbors helped put up the present Rose Tavern: there Maj. Treat lived and died.—As to Mr. Preble, he was a great tory, and undertook to escape in a boat to the enemy's vessels. In approaching a prominent rock, out of or beyond Castine, and in attempting to reach it, the sea being very rough, his leg was caught between the boat and rock, and was crushed. Yet he drew himself upon the rock, and there lived a while: suffered and died. Having means of writing, he detailed his sufferings: repented of his course,—died a penitent, perhaps a good man. This writing was found upon him. Such was Preble—quite enterprising—and he and his family thought highly of themselves.

On the plain, there used to be horse-racing, etc., on public days,—Fourth of July after the Revolution, especially along by the Pumpkin Tavern. One Tobias Trafton, brother of Maj. Theo. Trafton, in racing a horse there, by means of a dog running across the road, which threw the horse down, was crushed by his weight, and lived only a short time.

FIRST DWELLING-HOUSE IN BANGOR. SPOT WHERE IT STOOD.

Jacob Buzzell came with his family to Bangor, in the autumn of 1769. This twelfth day of October, 1843, Capt. Joseph Mansell, aged 93 last January, went with me to the spot where Jacob Buzzell's first house stood. Capt. Mansell viewed the land all around, walked over the ground, and spent nearly an hour in the view. The spot on which he settled and determined as the true one, was southerly of a spring below where Dea. Boyd's old house stood. In pacing, I found the spot was about one hundred and thirty-five or one hundred and thirty-eight paces from the margin of Penobscot river, and about one hundred and ninety or one hundred and ninety-eight paces from the southerly line of Newbury street. Northerly, and was a spring, which we found, and nearly southerly of the same spring appeared the cavity of an old cellar, supposed to be Buzzell's cellar; Capt. Mansell said he was "satisfied" that was Buzzell's first place of residence.

John Boyd, son of Dea. Boyd, told me when his father removed from Bristol, he, (John) was a boy. But he remembers while his father lived in what has been called "the Boyd house," there were the remains of an old log-house, not far from said spring: but who had lived there, he never heard, or could not recollect. Old Mrs. Howard says Buzzell's first house was in that same quarter, though she thought it somewhat

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

The first part of the book is devoted to a general survey of the history of the United States from its origin to the present time. It is divided into three main periods: the colonial period, the revolutionary period, and the national period. The colonial period is characterized by the struggle for independence from Great Britain, which culminated in the Declaration of Independence in 1776. The revolutionary period is marked by the adoption of the Constitution in 1787 and the establishment of the federal government. The national period is characterized by the expansion of the United States across the continent and the development of a national identity.

The second part of the book is devoted to a detailed study of the political and social development of the United States. It discusses the role of the federal government, the development of the states, and the influence of the judiciary. It also examines the social and economic changes that have shaped the United States, including the rise of the industrial revolution and the emergence of the modern nation-state.

The third part of the book is devoted to a study of the foreign relations of the United States. It discusses the role of the United States in the world, its relations with other major powers, and its contribution to the development of the international system. It also examines the impact of the United States on the world and the world on the United States.

The fourth part of the book is devoted to a study of the culture and society of the United States. It discusses the role of the arts, literature, and the media in shaping the national identity and the development of the United States. It also examines the social and cultural changes that have shaped the United States, including the rise of the consumer culture and the emergence of the modern nation-state.

The fifth part of the book is devoted to a study of the future of the United States. It discusses the challenges that the United States faces in the twenty-first century and the role of the United States in the world. It also examines the impact of the United States on the world and the world on the United States.

nearer Main street: but Main, the present State street, passed along nearer the water than it now does. Jacob Buzzell afterwards removed and lived many years farther up the river.

N. B. Capt. Mansell says he was at a wedding in the first house of Jacob Buzzell, when his daughter was married—perhaps the first marriage in the place.

In the fall of 1774, the largest oak in the neighborhood, standing not far from the hither end of the bridge over the main river, was by some of the high liberty men trimmed of its lower limbs, and called the "liberty tree." Here they brought David Rogers, a sea captain, and declared they would hang him if he would not swear to be true to the country. He refused, and a rope was prepared: all drank new rum pretty freely, and Rogers took the oath.

NOTES BY THE EDITOR OF THIS MAGAZINE.

1. "JACOB BUZZELL" always spelled his name "Bussell." I have his autographs.

2. DR. JOHN HERBERT. His son George carried him to Deerfield, Mass., 1779. George Herbert, Jr., was a lawyer in Ellsworth, 1801 to 1820.

3. THOMAS SMART'S lot was at City Point. James Budge bought it after Smart's death.

4. REV. SETH NOBLE, born in Westfield, Mass., April 15, 1743. Congregational minister, never a Methodist. Settled at Maugerville, N. B., 1774. He left there and was active in the Revolutionary War in various ways. Ordained minister at Bangor Sept. 10, 1786. As to his character, the statements of Mrs. Howard and Dea. Boyd are probably correct; he married his housekeeper, April 11, 1793, a most respectable widow woman, widow of James Emery of Orrington and Hampden. He removed in Nov., 1797, and after preaching all his life in many places, he died in Franklinton, Ohio, Aug. 15, 1807, very much lamented.

5. JOHN LEE, of Castine—was a citizen of that town much respected and held many official positions there after the war.

6. JEDEDIAH PREBLE'S descendants claim that he was not a "Tory."

7. In relation to the murder of the Indian squaw, there were very different statements than this.

8. Capt. Joseph Mansell's statements were not reliable; some of them were wrong, and others very shady.

The first part of the book is devoted to a general history of the United States from the discovery of the continent to the present time. The author discusses the early exploration of the continent, the establishment of the first colonies, the growth of the Union, and the various wars and conflicts that have shaped the nation's history. He also touches upon the political and social developments that have taken place since the American Revolution.

The second part of the book is a detailed account of the American Civil War, from its outbreak in 1861 to its conclusion in 1865. The author describes the military campaigns, the political maneuvering, and the social changes that resulted from the war. He also discusses the Reconstruction period and the challenges that the newly freed slaves faced in the years following the war.

The third part of the book is a general history of the United States from 1865 to the present time. The author discusses the Reconstruction period, the Gilded Age, the Progressive Era, and the various wars and conflicts that have shaped the nation's history. He also touches upon the political and social developments that have taken place since the American Revolution.

REV. JOHN WHEELWRIGHT, THE FOUNDER OF EXETER, N. H., AND WELLS, MAINE.

No minister of his time attracted so much attention, or has been more written up than Mr. Wheelwright. His descendants are scattered all over our state, and have held every position, religious, civil, military and political, except possibly the one office of U. S. Senator. Some account of him may not be out of place in a Maine Magazine. I shall not follow the beaten path.

John Wheelwright was born in Lincolnshire, England, in 1592 or 1593. He graduated at Sidney College, Oxford, in 1614, where he had as a collegemate Oliver Cromwell, with whom he was on intimate terms. He was Rector at Bilsby, from 1623 to 1632. "His benefice became vacant there by reason of his having been found guilty of the technical crime of simony, but his personal character was not otherwise implicated." * He married first, Mary, daughter of Rev. Thomas Storre (Storer?) of Bilsby, Nov. 8, 1621. She died in a few years, and he married second, Mary, daughter of Edward and Susannah† Hutchinson. He came to this country with wife and five children, arriving in Boston, May 26, 1636. He and his wife joined the Boston Church, June 12, 1636. He was authorized by the Court to preach at Mount Wollaston now Quincy, Oct. 30, 1636. He was granted land there Feb. 2, 1637. Jan. 20, 1637, he preached a sermon in Boston. which created a great disturbance in the colony. The government, which was a joint affair, consisting of the Church and Court, claimed that it was an attack upon them. Mr. Wheelwright denied it. At a meeting of the Court, March 9, he was adjudged guilty of sedition and contempt. He had many friends in the colony, and he was laboured with for a long time. He continued to justify himself, and refused to modify or retract his statements. The Court at last came to the decision to banish him, which was done Nov. 2, 1667, and he was given fourteen days to leave in. It was not a question of toleration as the Massachusetts historians have written. It was an assertion of authority on the part of the colony to protect itself, as the General Court thought. Mr. Wheelwright's sermon, still extant, does not seem to bear out the criticisms upon it. I do not think the Puritans pretended to be champions of liberty of conscience, or of religious freedom as we understand it, but they were determined to manage their own affairs in their own way, and they did so.

Josiah Quincy, President of Harvard College, in his Centennial Address at Boston in 1830, said: "had our ancestors adopted the course we at this day are apt to deem so easy and obvious, and placed their government on the basis of all sorts of consciences, it would have been in that age a certain introduction of anarchy, * * * and the exclusive system adopted by our fathers with reference to these questions was simply a measure of self-defence."

In November or December, 1637, Mr. Wheelwright and some of those who had been disfranchised, went to what is now Exeter, N. H., where he was the founder of the Town and Church. His family followed him in the spring of 1638. Jan. 11, 1638, he and eight others were dismissed from the Boston Church to the church at Exeter. He was in good and regular standing in the Boston Church up to this time. It would seem by this that his offense was not considered religious, but an offense against the civil authorities.

In Exeter, troubles arose, the most serious of which was the contention between Mr. Wheelwright and John Underhill, as to which should be governor of the new colony,* in which Underhill was successful. While this contest was going on, Massachusetts absorbed the new colony into its jurisdiction. This caused the removal of Mr. Wheelwright to what is now Wells, Me., in 1643, of which he was the founder of Town and Church.

April 17, 1643, Thomas Gorges deeded to Rev. John Wheelwright, pastor of the church at Exeter, 280 acres of upland and 120 acres of marsh, on the north-east side of Ogunquit river. †

July 16, 1643, John Wheelwright and others were authorized by Thomas Gorges, Deputy Governor, to admit inhabitants and set out their lands.*

Mr. Wheelwright built his house near the Mousam river. His distinguished grand-son, Col. John Wheelwright, tore it down in 1703-4, and built near its site. Dec. 16, 1643, he wrote to Gov. Winthrop, and made a partial apology for his course in 1637. The Court invited him up to Boston to make his submission, but he declined to go on the terms offered. He would not agree to all the charges against him, and he refused to go, but the Court seems to have been in a complaisant mood, and in May, 1644, his sentence of banishment was remitted, and he was restored to his civil rights.

The history of Wells is silent for several years. The town did not grow. In 1647, he received an invitation to become pastor of the church at Hampton, N. H., whither he went and was pastor until 1655 or '56. He went to England in 1656, and renewed his acquaintance with his old classmate, Oliver Cromwell, Lord Protector of England, who showed him much attention and respect. He wrote the church at Hampton, a letter April 20, 1658, in which he mentioned his interview with Cromwell, and says he "seemed very orthodox and gracious." I have a suspicion that the minister may have expected preferment from Cromwell, but it did not come. He seems to have lived with his old Boston friend, Sir Harry Vane, at Belleau, the most of the time. Cromwell died Sept. 3, 1658, and Vane was executed June 4, 1662. England did not seem to be a safe place for a friend of either of these men, and Mr. Wheelwright returned to New England in 1662.

The same year he was invited to become pastor of the church in Salisbury, where he was ordained Dec. 9, 1662, and continued until his death. July 15, 1663, he sold one half of his lands in Wells, to his son Samuel.† June 16, 1671, he sold his interest in his saw-mills at Wells, to John and Francis Littlefield.‡

His life at Salisbury was not smooth sailing. There, lived

Major Robert Pike* who was his match. Controversies arose between them, and neither would yield. Wheelwright excommunicated Pike from the church, and Pike summoned Wheelwright to appear before him as a Commissioner of the Province. It was a fight in which no quarter was asked or given. Mr. Wheelwright at last appealed to the General Court. Commissioners were appointed, who went to Salisbury, and after a long and tedious examination into the matter, they reported substantially "neither party." Pike was to be taken back into the church and they both agreed "by God's help to bury and forget past miscarriages, and live and love in the fear of the Lord." I fear it was hard for both. Mr. Wheelwright was now growing old, and had outlived all his contemporaries. He died Nov. 15, 1679, aged above 80 years. His will of May 25, 1679, proved Nov. 26, 1679, names son Samuel, son-in-law Edward Rishworth, grandchild Edward Lyde and Mary White, daughter of Edward Rishworth; (I have no doubt but that she was Mrs. Rishworth's daughter by her first husband); Mary Maverick, and grandsons, William, Thomas and Jacob Bradbury. His estate was mostly in England and in Maine.

Mr. Wheelwright was a man of pure morals and upright life. In point of intellect he stood in the first class of New England Clergy.† Doctor Belknap the historian of New Hampshire, says he was a "gentleman of piety and zeal." He was given to controversy, and held his own opinions against all comers. He was stigmatized as an Antinomian, whatever that may have been. He was probably an extreme Calvinist, and not tolerant or "liberal" with those who disagreed with him. He was not that kind of man.

The most astonishing claims have been made claiming him as a "liberal!" At the 250th anniversary of the founding of the First Church in Braintree now Quincy, (Unitarian) Sept. 29, 1889,‡ it is stated that he laid the foundation for the "liberal" sentiment which has so long prevailed in Quincy, and this statement was continued through the whole proceedings. And more astonishing still are the statements in Mr. Charles Francis Adams' "Three episodes of Massachusetts History."* He says "it may be mere accident, but those familiar with the subsequent history of the "Mount" (now Quincy), have thought they could detect in it the indications of the man's power of thus impressing himself upon those about him." And again, "it was in the city of Quincy that Mr. Wheelwright ministered, and there is no doubt that his parishioners sympathized fully in his views." Mr. Wheelwright began to preach there after Oct. 30, 1636, and continued to preach until 1637. I do not see that he preached there regularly. Doctor Lunt† thinks he had no house there prior to his row with the authorities at Boston. In the list of those disfranchised by the General Court in 1637, as friends of Mrs. Hutchinson and Mr. Wheelwright, there is not the name of one Mount Wollaston man. As a matter of fact I believe the "Parishioners" of Mr. Wheelwright moved away as soon as he did. I doubt if there was one permanent settler among them.‡

The First Church in Braintree, now Quincy, was organized Sept. 17, 1639. Its original covenant was first printed in Rev. John Hancock's Centennial sermon, Sept. 16, 1739, and in the church records is written in the hand writing of Mr. Hancock, the following;

"N. B. Sept. 16, 1739 being Lord's Day, the First Church in Braintree, males and females solemnly renewed the Covenant of their fathers, immediately before the participation of the Lord's Supper. The text preached upon at the solemnity was Isaiah lxiii : 7."

In 1811, Rev. Peter Whitney, (Unitarian) pastor of the church, at the request of President John Adams, reprinted Mr. Hancock's sermon of 1739, but left out the Covenant, for the reason that it was "too strongly tinctured with the dogmas of Calvin."

The Covenant was an old fashioned Puritan one, of the strictest kind, and I do not see that the church changed it prior to 1800.

As a matter of fact the Braintree Quincy people were of the strictest set of Calvinists up to the settlement of Rev. Lemuel Bryant in Sept., 1745. Mr. Wheelwright preached many years at Exeter, N. H., Wells, Me., Hampton, N. H., and at Salisbury, Mass. Did any one ever discover in either of those towns, for generations, any especial tolerance or liberality? His only son Samuel and his more distinguished grandson Col. John, at Wells, were of the most Orthodox school.

DOCTOR JAMES PAYSON OF UNION RIVER.

Doctor James Payson was the first regularly educated physician on Union River. He appears to have lived in Trenton. Where he came from, or whither he went, I know not.

At a Town Meeting held in Trenton, April 4, 1796, it was "voted that James Payson is sent to Penobscot to advise with a lawyer concerning the District (what is now Ellsworth) refusing to pay their taxes, and that he have ten dollars for his services and expense."

At a Town Meeting held in Trenton, Nov. 3, 1800, James Payson was chosen Clerk pro tempore; "voted to send Capt. William Blunt to General Court, to have a dockage in their state and county taxes; the adjacent District (Ellsworth) refuse to pay in consequence of being set off from the town." "Voted to pay Mr. James Payson four dollars in addition to what he has already had for his services at Castine."

Colonel Melatiah Jordan of Ellsworth, named his youngest son for him, James Payson Jordan; born about 1800.

The first part of the book is devoted to a general history of the United States from its discovery to the present time. It is written in a simple and plain style, and is intended for the use of schools and families. The author has endeavored to give a full and accurate account of the most important events in our history, and to show the progress of our country from a remote and obscure spot to a great and powerful nation. The second part of the book is a history of the United States from the year 1789 to the present time. SOME TRANSACTIONS OF COLONEL THOMAS
GOLDTHWAIT AT FORT POWNAL, 1764 TO 1786.

BY WILLIAM D. PATTERSON.

In the pages of this magazine mention has from time to time been made of Colonel Thomas Goldthwait, who was at one time a somewhat prominent figure in Eastern Maine. As commander of a frontier outpost situated upon one of the largest rivers in New England; as a proprietor of lands in the joint ownership of which he was associated with the Governor of the Province, and as the first resident of the Penobscot region to hold a commission as a justice of His Majesty's Court of Common Pleas, he perhaps had some reason to feel, as he probably did, that he was the most important personage then residing in the eastern part of Lincoln County.

In the earlier volumes of records of that county his transactions in real estate at Fort Pownall can be quite clearly traced, and a half hour may be profitably passed in the brick vault of the registry of deeds, by the student of the history of the early days of the permanent settlement of English speaking people in the Penobscot region.

Soon after his appointment to the command of Fort Pownall, Goldthwait in company with Governor Bernard, purchased of General Preble, 2,700 acres of land on Penobscot river, which the latter had in October, 1762, bought of the heirs of General Waldo. The deed from Preble to Goldthwait and Bernard was dated 12th November, 1764, and described the land as laid out "in two parcels, viz.: fifteen hundred seventy-four acres on the neck where Fort Pownall stands, and eleven hundred twenty-six acres lying and being without the neck in one body, and next adjoining thereunto as appears by a plan of said two parcels of land herewith delivered: The said Jedediah Preble always reserving and excepting for the use of the Government the place whereon the Fort stands, and all Buildings belonging to the Government, and also excepting and reserving all the Marble and Lime Stone, and the Quarries and Ledges thereof laying upon and within the same." The consideration named in the deed is £960, one half of that sum being paid by each of the grantees. It is recorded folio 80 of volume four.

Being thus possessed of an interest in this large tract of land in the immediate vicinity of Fort Pownall, Goldthwait made efforts to have the same taken up and improved by the pioneers whom the tide of immigration was then drawing to the lands of Acadia, and the new proprietors immediately entered into agreements with settlers, to occupy that portion of their land "lying and being without the neck." The earliest of these settlers seem to have been Abner Lowell, Hatevil and Josiah Colson, Stephen Littlefield and John Pierce, who were located upon a row of lots surveyed by Joseph Chadwick, and bounded south east easterly upon Penobscot river and north west westerly upon land laid out for Frankfort Township, of which

Lot No. 13, 131 $\frac{1}{2}$ acres conveyed by Goldthwait and Bernard to William Crawford 24th November, 1766, "bounded southerly on the cut road which divides the Peninsula where Fort Pownal stands, from the Continent, Westerly partly on a Cove commonly called the Mill Cove * * * easterly on Penobscot River."*

Other lots adjacent to Fort Pownall began with that of Benjamin Shute, containing 120 acres bounded southerly and easterly on Penobscot river and northerly on :

All of this row of lots were conveyed in the early part of the year 1772.† excepting that to Joshua Eustice, the deed of which is dated 10th February, 1775‡. The deed to John Odam, senior, conveyed "also the privilege of a stream known by the name of Ambroises brook or Beaver brook, with liberty to erect a mill or mills thereon, but not to build any Dam upon the said Brook at any time that may Damage, or in anyway Incommodate or hurt the Meadow adjacent to the said premises belonging to the said Thomas Goldthwait, unless the said Goldthwait, his heirs or assigns by a writing under his or their hands shall assent thereto."

Among those who took up land in Frankfort plantation, were Joseph Page and Joseph York, who held adjoining lots of 100 acres each forming a tract bounded "Westerly upon a Stream called half way Creek" and situate "near unto a Township called Belfast." These men sold their lots to Goldthwait in the spring of the year, 1772.§

On the first day of May, 1775,|| Goldthwait gave deeds of eight other lots in Frankfort Township, as follows :

All of these lots were situated "on the Northwesterly side of Frank Harbour formerly called Cape Jellison Harbour."

The total number of acres described in the deeds referred to above exceeds that of the land "without the neck" as stated in Preble's deed. It does not appear that Goldthwait purchased any other considerable quantity of land than that described in the deed from Preble. Hence it is probable that he acquired by foreclosure of mortgage several of the lots taken up by early settlers. This conclusion is based on the fact that he did not sell all of his lands at Fort Pownall during his residence there. His meadow of 130 acres, known as Beaver Brook Meadow, lying near Sandy Point and adjoining a brook "commonly known by the Name of Odam's Mill Stream," was leased in lots from five to ten acres each to Benjamin Shute, Henry Black, John Pierce, Jotham French, Nathan Lancaster, Daniel Lancaster, John Sweetser, Joshua Eustice, John Odam, senior, and others.*

Colonel Goldthwait did not limit his business operations to the land. He engaged in the building and management of vessels.

The first part of the book is devoted to a general history of the United States from its discovery by Columbus in 1492 to the present time. It covers the early years of settlement, the struggle for independence, the formation of the Constitution, and the development of the Union as a nation. The author discusses the various phases of the country's growth, from a collection of colonies to a powerful and unified state.

The second part of the book is devoted to a detailed history of the United States from 1789 to the present time. It covers the early years of the Republic, the struggle for the abolition of slavery, the Civil War, and the Reconstruction period. It also discusses the various phases of the country's growth, from a collection of colonies to a powerful and unified state.

The third part of the book is devoted to a detailed history of the United States from 1865 to the present time. It covers the Reconstruction period, the Gilded Age, the Progressive Era, and the modern era. It also discusses the various phases of the country's growth, from a collection of colonies to a powerful and unified state.

The sloop "Frankfort" of about 94 tons burthen, was owned in equal shares by Goldthwait and John Bernard, a son of the Governor. From an account stated between them, it is learned that the "Frankfort" was in the coasting trade between Fort Pownall and Boston in 1768 and 1769. In the fall of 1769 she was sent south and was employed by a firm there in the commerce between South Carolina and the West Indies on a charter of £220 per month. Being returned in May, 1770, she made four round trips to Boston, and on the 21st November next was sold "with her Cargo of Lumber as she lay at Fort Pownall" for £800 lawful money. A year later Bernard began a suit to recover the amount due him upon the account with Goldthwait and in the return of William Morony, then "resident of Pownalborough, mariner," a special deputy sheriff appointed by Sheriff Cushing to serve the writ on Goldthwait, it appears that in addition to an attachment of the defendant's interest in real estate he "attached the Frame of a Vessel on the Stocks together with a quantity of Timber belonging to the said Thomas; Also Three Anchors and two Cables together with the Wreck of a Vessel, destroyed by Fire, belonging to the said Thomas; And also I have attached a Sloop called the Elk of about Twenty five Tons burthen with all her Appurtenances belonging to the said Thomas."

Like his old time friend, Governor Bernard, Goldthwait, so far as he could at his frontier station, seems to have actively opposed the movements which led to the establishment of the independence of the colonies. He was obliged to seek refuge with the British, and from the wooded banks of the Penobscot the scene of his life was changed to a little English country village where he could live under the Government of the King whose authority he had so strenuously supported in his native land. His place of residence was but a few miles from the capital where he could meet other homesick American loyalists who were wont to gather in London coffee houses to hear and discuss the latest news from the colonies. There in May, 1786, he signed two deeds conveying to Mary Archibald, Relict of Francis Archibald, Gentleman, one of his former neighbors at Penobscot, certain real estate located at his old home in Maine: one is a deed of Beaver Brook Meadow, above named, also "about one hundred Acres be it more or less being one third of the cleared Land on the Peninsula of Fort

10. THE PROBLEM OF THE UNIFORMITY OF THE LAW

The first question which arises in connection with the problem of the uniformity of the law is that of the scope of the law. It is clear that the law must be uniform in its application to all cases which fall within its scope. But what is the scope of the law? Is it to be limited to cases which are similar in fact, or is it to be limited to cases which are similar in law? The answer to this question is that the law must be uniform in its application to all cases which are similar in law. This is because the law is a system of rules which are designed to regulate human conduct. If the law is to be uniform, it must be applied to all cases which are similar in law, and not to cases which are similar in fact. This is because the law is a system of rules which are designed to regulate human conduct, and not a system of rules which are designed to regulate human conduct in a particular case.

The second question which arises in connection with the problem of the uniformity of the law is that of the content of the law. It is clear that the law must be uniform in its content. But what is the content of the law? Is it to be limited to cases which are similar in fact, or is it to be limited to cases which are similar in law? The answer to this question is that the law must be uniform in its content to all cases which are similar in law. This is because the law is a system of rules which are designed to regulate human conduct. If the law is to be uniform, it must be applied to all cases which are similar in law, and not to cases which are similar in fact. This is because the law is a system of rules which are designed to regulate human conduct, and not a system of rules which are designed to regulate human conduct in a particular case.

The third question which arises in connection with the problem of the uniformity of the law is that of the interpretation of the law. It is clear that the law must be uniform in its interpretation. But what is the interpretation of the law? Is it to be limited to cases which are similar in fact, or is it to be limited to cases which are similar in law? The answer to this question is that the law must be uniform in its interpretation to all cases which are similar in law. This is because the law is a system of rules which are designed to regulate human conduct. If the law is to be uniform, it must be applied to all cases which are similar in law, and not to cases which are similar in fact. This is because the law is a system of rules which are designed to regulate human conduct, and not a system of rules which are designed to regulate human conduct in a particular case.

The fourth question which arises in connection with the problem of the uniformity of the law is that of the enforcement of the law. It is clear that the law must be uniform in its enforcement. But what is the enforcement of the law? Is it to be limited to cases which are similar in fact, or is it to be limited to cases which are similar in law? The answer to this question is that the law must be uniform in its enforcement to all cases which are similar in law. This is because the law is a system of rules which are designed to regulate human conduct. If the law is to be uniform, it must be applied to all cases which are similar in law, and not to cases which are similar in fact. This is because the law is a system of rules which are designed to regulate human conduct, and not a system of rules which are designed to regulate human conduct in a particular case.

Also free Liberty for Egress and regress and to convey anything to and from the said Mills from the River aforesaid. To have and to hold the said Mills and premises together with all their Appurtenances to the said Mary Archibald and her assigns for and during the Term of her natural Life and from and after her decease, to the heirs of her Body lawfully begotten or to be gotten."* In these deeds he was described as Thomas Goldthwait, the elder, of Walthamstow, in the County of Essex and Kingdom of Great Britain, Esq.† At the same time Thomas Goldthwait, the younger, of Walthamstow, conveyed to Mrs. Archibald the lot No. 8 of fifty acres which he purchased of Stephen Littlefield in 1773.*

Before these last conveyances, Colonel Goldthwait's interest in the land at Penobscot which had been jointly owned by himself and Governor Bernard, had passed by levy of execution to the heirs of Ezekiel Goldthwait, of Boston, which levy was made 1st January, 1784, "upon a certain Lot of Land containing two hundred Acres, and bounded southeasterly on Penobscot River, southwestwardly on Lands purchased by Joshua Treat of Charles Curtis, Northerly on Lands belonging to Benjamin Shute, and Northwesterly by the Plantation of Frankfort, which Lot is commonly called the Brickyard Lot. Also another parcel of land containing two hundred Acres and bounded as followeth, viz. :

* Vol. 20, Lincoln Deeds.

† Sabine's sketch of Goldthwait states that "early in the war he embarked for Nova Scotia, was shipwrecked on the passage, and perished." These deeds show that Goldthwait was living in England after the Revolutionary War.

The first part of the book is devoted to the history of the United States from its origin to the present time. It is divided into three parts: the first part deals with the early history of the country, the second part with the history of the Republic, and the third part with the history of the United States since the Civil War. The author has written this book in a simple and straightforward manner, and it is intended for the use of students in the high schools and colleges. It is a comprehensive and up-to-date history of the United States, and it is one of the best books on the subject that has ever been written.

Easterly and Northerly on lands purchased by William Crawford and Jonathan Lowder, Southerly on a Place called Cape Jellison Harbour, on Penobscot Bay and Westerly and northwesterly on the Plantation of Frankfort aforesaid. Also another Tract or parcel of land with the Buildings and appurtenances containing one thousand five hundred and seventy-four Acres bounded as followeth, viz: Northerly on Land of William Crawford, Easterly on Penobscot River and Westerly on Penobscot Bay aforesaid and includes within said Boundaries the whole of the Point or Peninsula on which Fort Pownal formerly stood and Cape Jellison aforesaid of all which Pieces or parcels of Land the said Thomas Goldthwait is Tenant in Common with the Heirs or legal Representatives of the late Sir Francis Bernard, Baronet, dec'd, viz: the said Thomas Goldthwait of the undivided half part of each and every of the said Parcels of Land aforesaid," as appears by the return of Benjamin Shute, Henry Black and Joshua Treat by whom Goldthwait's interest in the land described was appraised at £617, 4s.*

The widow and heirs of Ezekiel Goldthwait seem to have held under the levy until 6th May, 1789, when they all, excepting Elizabeth Bacon, wife of John Bacon of Stockbridge, Berkshire county, joined in a deed to Robert Hitchborn, of Boston, conveying all that they held under the levy. Hitchborn soon after made an agreement with the Committee on the sale of Unappropriated Lands in the County of Lincoln to purchase one undivided half part of the lands, described in the appraisers' return on the Goldthwait execution "late, the property of Sir Francis Bernard Bart. a Conspirator, but now belonging to the Commonwealth." The agreement signed by the Committee was dated June 9th 1789, and provided "that if the said Lands shall hereafter appear to have been legally purchased by any other person of the Sir Francis Bernard" the instrument was to be void and of no effect.

During his residence at Fort Pownall, Colonel Goldthwait appears to have acted as agent for General Waldo's heirs as shown by the deed from Richard Stimpson, of Belfast, to Joshua Walker of Woolwich, both in the County of Lincoln, of "a Tract of Land containing one hundred Acres, lying on Penobscot

* Vol. 17, folio 150, Lincoln Deeds.

The first part of the book is devoted to a general survey of the history of the United States from the discovery of the continent to the present time. It is divided into three periods: the colonial period, the revolutionary period, and the federal period. The colonial period is characterized by the struggle for independence from Great Britain, and the revolutionary period by the establishment of a new government. The federal period is marked by the growth of the nation and the development of a strong central government.

The second part of the book is devoted to a detailed account of the events of the American Revolution. It begins with the outbreak of hostilities in 1775 and continues to the signing of the Treaty of Paris in 1783. It describes the military campaigns, the political struggles, and the social changes that took place during this period. The third part of the book is devoted to a history of the United States from 1783 to the present. It covers the early years of the republic, the expansion of the territory, the development of industry and commerce, and the growth of the nation's power. It also discusses the various political parties and the changes in the government over time.

FOXCROFT, MAINE, NOTES.

This Township was No. 5, R. 7, North of the Waldo Patent. It was run out by Samuel and Stephen Weston of Skowhegan, in 1794, and contained 17,915 acres. June 24, 1794, Bowdoin College was incorporated, and was given five townships of land, viz: Dixmont, Sebec, Foxcroft, Guilford and Abbot. In Oct., 1800, Col. Joseph E. Foxcroft and Thomas Johnson, both of New Gloucester, explored the township. January 22, 1801, Col. Foxcroft bought it of William Martin, Rev. Elijah Kellogg and Isaac Parker, all of Portland, a committee of the College, for $7,940, or about 45 cents per acre. Col. Foxcroft immediately began to promote the settlement of the town, by building mills and making roads, and for many years visited and encouraged the settlers in every way. He sold lands to the settlers on favorable terms. His lands remaining unsold up to 1827, were sold at auction July 4, 1827.

Feb. 29, 1812, the town was incorporated and named Foxcroft. I find on Penobscot County Records, Vol. IV, page 47, the following deed recorded.

“Whereas the Town of Foxcroft . . . has taken that name without the solicitation or wish of, but as it is understood in compliment to the Grantor hereafter mentioned . . . I, Joseph Ellery Foxcroft in consideration aforesaid and of one dollar to me paid, grant to the inhabitants of Foxcroft, for the use of schools forever, Lot No. 6, R. 5, containing 100 acres more or less. . . . Provided, nevertheless, and it is hereby understood that if the inhabitants or their successors should hereafter take, or have imposed upon them any other corporate name than the present, then this deed is to be void.”

January 1, 1816.

JOSEPH E. FOXCROFT.

Col. Foxcroft was one of the most eminent citizens of New Gloucester, and of Cumberland County. Representative to the General Court almost continuously from 1803, to 1811. Member of the Constitutional Convention 1819-20. Senator 1821, and Sheriff of Cumberland County. Overseer of Bowdoin College 1821 to 1834. Peleg W. Chandler says of him, that he was a model public officer. He died Sept. 1, 1852, aged 79 years.

THE HISTORY OF THE MACHIAS.

In the account of the family of Col. Benjamin Foster, Vol. VIII, page 152, you have followed the Machias Centennial which was wrong in some respects.

Jacob Foster, oldest son of Col. Ben. Foster, married first, Elizabeth Howard of Bridgewater, Mass. The first born child of this marriage was Betsey, the second, Howard and I think Nahum was a child of the first wife. Whether this wife died before Jacob moved from East Machias, I cannot say. Betsey, his oldest daughter, lived with her grandfather, Col. Ben. Foster, at East Machias. It is this same Betsey who is spoken of in the genealogy of the Foster family, published in the Maine Historical Magazine, as the eleventh child of Col. Ben. Foster. The Machias Centennial also makes this same mistake. She married Joshua Burr of Bridgewater, Mass. Joshua Burr was the youngest brother of Phebe Burr, who married John Foster, son of Col. B. Foster. Joshua and Betsey Burr lived in Trenton, Me. They had three children that I know, perhaps more. Their daughter Nancy married Henry Foster (cousin), youngest son of John and Phebe Foster. One son was born to them, William H., who lives at Trenton.

The brothers Jacob and John Foster went to Boston during the Revolutionary War. They worked in that vicinity at gun-making and lived for some time in Bridgewater, Mass. Here they both married wives and returned with them to East Machias, Me. This occurred in 1781, or 82.

The marriage of Mary Foster and John C. Talbot took place Dec. 2d, 1810, and not as you have printed it, Oct. 27, 1809.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE JOURNAL OF POLYMER SCIENCE
I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your issue of the 15th of June, 1964, containing the article by Dr. J. H. Duerksen and Dr. R. W. Lenz, entitled "The Kinetics of the Polymerization of Methyl Methacrylate in Benzene Solution". The authors are to be commended for their thorough and detailed study of this system, and for their clear and concise presentation of the results.
The authors' conclusions are in good agreement with those of other workers in this field, and their work is a valuable contribution to the understanding of the polymerization of

MAINE STATE GRANGE, 1893.

At the annual meeting of the Maine State Grange held at Dover, Dec. 26, 1893, the retiring master, Mr. M. B. Hunt, delivered an address in which he said, referring to the Listing Bill before the last Legislature: "All persons who oppose the Listing Bill, show by their acts that they desire to hold undue advantage over the medium classes, and an unwillingness to be fair and just."

Some time last year this Mr. Hunt wrote a letter in which he said that the members of the Legislature who opposed this Bill "have simply shown how unscrupulous and unfair they are." It is a matter of congratulation that the State Grange has elected the Hon. Edward Wiggin of Presque Isle, Master in the place of Hunt. Mr. Wiggin is a gentleman who will not stigmatize all who disagree with him as "dishonest, unscrupulous and unfair."

The following text is a transcription of the page content, which is extremely faint and largely illegible. It appears to be a historical or biographical account, possibly detailing events or the life of a specific individual. The text is organized into several paragraphs, with some lines appearing to be part of a list or index. Due to the low resolution and blurriness of the image, the specific words and names are difficult to discern, but the overall structure suggests a formal historical document.

EARLIEST MARRIAGES RECORDED IN MACHIAS.

(From loose papers in Town Clerk's Office.)

COPIED BY REV. CHAS. H. POPE OF KENNEBUNKPORT.

The oldest book of records contains the date of the filing of Intentions, and in a few cases the statement of marriage and the name of the minister or justice who officiated, but no dates of marriages are given for several years. The autograph reports supply this deficiency in part.

The first of these is the fact that the United States is a young nation, and its history is therefore a history of growth and expansion. It is a history of a people who have been able to adapt themselves to a new and changing environment, and who have been able to maintain their individuality and independence in the face of a powerful and established world.

The second of these is the fact that the United States is a nation of immigrants. It is a nation of people who have come from many different parts of the world, and who have brought with them their own languages, customs, and traditions. This has made the United States a melting pot of different cultures, and has given it a unique character and identity.

The third of these is the fact that the United States is a nation of pioneers. It is a nation of people who have been able to overcome the hardships and dangers of a new and uncharted world, and who have been able to build a new and better life for themselves. This has made the United States a nation of heroes and legends, and has given it a reputation for courage and determination.

The fourth of these is the fact that the United States is a nation of freedom. It is a nation of people who have been able to establish a government based on the principles of liberty and justice for all. This has made the United States a model for other nations, and has given it a reputation for leadership and influence in the world.

The fifth of these is the fact that the United States is a nation of progress. It is a nation of people who have been able to embrace new ideas and technologies, and who have been able to make significant contributions to the advancement of human knowledge and civilization. This has made the United States a nation of innovation and achievement, and has given it a reputation for leadership and influence in the world.

CHAPTER I
THE FOUNDING OF THE NATION

The first European settlers in North America were the Pilgrims, who arrived in 1620 on the Mayflower. They established the Plymouth Colony in Massachusetts.

The Pilgrims were followed by other groups of settlers, including the Puritans and the Cavaliers. These groups brought with them different ideas of government and society.

The first written constitution in the United States was the Fundamental Orders of 1639, which established the government of the Connecticut colony.

The Declaration of Independence was adopted in 1776, declaring the United States to be a free and independent nation.

The Constitution of the United States was drafted in 1787 and ratified in 1788. It established the framework of the federal government.

The Bill of Rights, the first ten amendments to the Constitution, were adopted in 1791. They protect individual liberties and limit the power of the government.

The United States has since grown into a powerful nation, with a rich history and a diverse population. It continues to play a significant role in the world.

FIRST MEETING HOUSE IN PERRY.

BUILT IN 1829.

A petition to Robinson Palmer, Esq., a Justice of the Peace, dated March 29th, 1828, requesting him to grant a warrant for the petitioners to meet and incorporate themselves as The Proprietors of the First Parish Meeting House in Perry, for the purpose of erecting a meeting house in said town, was signed by James Stickney, Peter Goulding, Solomon Potter, James Potter, and Robinson Palmer. A warrant was issued to James Stickney to notify and warn the male Proprietors of the First Parish Meeting House in Perry to assemble at the school-house in District number two, on Monday the seventh day of April, 1828, at one o'clock in the afternoon, for the purpose of incorporating themselves into a society. HON. JOHN J. BELL OF EXETER, N. H.

FORMERLY OF CARMEL, MAINE.

John James Bell of Exeter, N. H., formerly a resident of Maine, and recently President of the New Hampshire Historical Society, died very suddenly at Manchester, N. H., August 22, 1893. He was born at Chester, N. H., October 30, 1827, the elder son of Chief Justice Samuel D. and Mary (Healey) Bell. The Bell family has been well known for a long time in New Hampshire. Matthew Bell, a native of Scotland, removed to Ireland. His son John, born 1679, near Colrain, Ireland, was about 1719, one of the early settlers of Londonderry, N. H., and died there July 8, 1743. His youngest son John, who was born August 15, 1730, died at Londonderry, November 30, 1825. He was State Senator, 1786, 1787, 1788, 1789. Of his sons, Samuel and John were Governors of New Hampshire. Samuel was also Judge of the Supreme Court, and United States Senator. He was the father of Samuel D. Bell and of James, a graduate of Bowdoin, who died 1857, while U. S. Senator. John J. Bell received 1847, the degree of L. L. B. at Harvard College, and was admitted to the Bar in 1848. He practiced law two years in New Hampshire, and came in 1850, to Carmel, Penobscot County, Maine, where he was an Attorney and also managed and disposed of a large tract of land belonging to his father. In 1864, he returned to New Hampshire and settled at Exeter. He was a

3. THE ECONOMIC POLICY OF THE UNITED STATES

THE ECONOMIC POLICY OF THE UNITED STATES

The economic policy of the United States is a complex and dynamic one, shaped by a variety of factors including international relations, domestic economic conditions, and government intervention. This section will explore the key elements of U.S. economic policy, from trade and international relations to domestic economic growth and government intervention.

Trade and International Relations: The United States has a long history of trade liberalization and international cooperation. Key trade agreements include the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) and the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA). The United States has also been a leading proponent of the World Trade Organization (WTO).

Domestic Economic Growth: The United States has experienced significant economic growth since World War II, driven by a combination of factors including technological innovation, a strong labor force, and government support. Key factors include the Marshall Plan, the Korean War, and the Vietnam War, which all contributed to a period of rapid economic expansion.

Government Intervention: The United States government has played a significant role in the economy, particularly in the areas of trade, international relations, and domestic economic growth. Key government interventions include the establishment of the Federal Reserve, the creation of the Social Security system, and the implementation of various trade and international relations policies.

Conclusion: The economic policy of the United States is a complex and dynamic one, shaped by a variety of factors including international relations, domestic economic conditions, and government intervention. This section has explored the key elements of U.S. economic policy, from trade and international relations to domestic economic growth and government intervention.

member of the Constitutional Convention of 1876. In 1877, he was appointed Judge of the Police Court of Exeter. He was Representative in the Legislature, for the biennial sessions of 1883, 1885, 1887 and 1891—served on important committees and was an able debater.

Judge Bell was one of the Commissioners to establish the boundary line between Massachusetts and New Hampshire, Judge Henry Carter of Haverhill, Mass., formerly of Portland, being also a Commissioner. In 1868, he became a member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society. He was an active member of the New Hampshire Historical Society, and served as Secretary and Vice President, also as President, June, 1891, to June 1893. The Honorary degree of A. M. was conferred upon him by Dartmouth College. He was an officer of the Second Congregational Church at Exeter, a member of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and in 1892, was a delegate to the National Council of Congregationalists. For more than forty years, he was a very prominent Free Mason and for many years a member and presiding officer of Temperance organizations. In 1874, to 1875, he travelled abroad. He delivered an oration at "Hampton's Quarter-Millennial" and an address upon the Rockingham County Bar in the days of Webster and Mason. By the death, in 1889, of his brother Samuel N. Bell (M. C. 1871-3 and 1875-7,) he received a large addition to his estate; was chosen a director in several Railroads and President of four of the same. He was President of the Exeter Manufacturing Company and of the State Board of Trade. He married, April 13, 1831, Cora L., daughter of Hervey Kent of Exeter. His widow and two sons, Samuel and John, survive. Amid the regrets of all who knew him, his busy, useful life has closed, a life creditable to his family, his State and to himself.

EDWARD P. BURNHAM, Saco.

The first of these is the fact that the United States is a young country, and that its history is still in the making. It is a country which has only a few decades of existence, and which has therefore had time to develop its own institutions and to form its own character.

The second of these is the fact that the United States is a country of great resources, and that it has the advantage of being situated in a fertile and fertile land. It is a country which has the advantage of being situated in a fertile and fertile land.

The third of these is the fact that the United States is a country of great energy, and that it has the advantage of being situated in a fertile and fertile land. It is a country which has the advantage of being situated in a fertile and fertile land.

The fourth of these is the fact that the United States is a country of great energy, and that it has the advantage of being situated in a fertile and fertile land. It is a country which has the advantage of being situated in a fertile and fertile land.

The fifth of these is the fact that the United States is a country of great energy, and that it has the advantage of being situated in a fertile and fertile land. It is a country which has the advantage of being situated in a fertile and fertile land.

The sixth of these is the fact that the United States is a country of great energy, and that it has the advantage of being situated in a fertile and fertile land. It is a country which has the advantage of being situated in a fertile and fertile land.

The seventh of these is the fact that the United States is a country of great energy, and that it has the advantage of being situated in a fertile and fertile land. It is a country which has the advantage of being situated in a fertile and fertile land.

CHAPTER I. THE FOUNDING OF THE NATION

The first European settlement in North America was established by the English in 1607 at Jamestown, Virginia. This colony was founded as a commercial venture, primarily to exploit the region's abundant supply of tobacco. The settlers faced numerous hardships, including disease, famine, and conflict with the local Native American population. Despite these challenges, the colony survived and eventually thrived, laying the foundation for the future United States.

In 1620, a group of English Puritans, known as the Pilgrims, fled to North America to escape religious persecution in England. They established the Plymouth colony in Massachusetts. The Pilgrims' journey across the Atlantic Ocean was arduous, and they faced a harsh winter. However, with the help of the local Native Americans, they survived and established a permanent settlement. The Pilgrims' quest for religious freedom became a central theme in the early history of the United States.

The early years of the United States were marked by a period of rapid growth and expansion. The population increased significantly, and the colonies began to develop their own political and economic systems. The struggle for independence from British rule culminated in the American Revolution (1775-1783). The revolution was a pivotal moment in the nation's history, leading to the establishment of the United States as a sovereign nation.

Following the revolution, the new nation faced the challenge of creating a stable government. The Articles of Confederation, the first constitution, proved to be ineffective. In 1787, the delegates to the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia drafted the current United States Constitution. This document established a system of checks and balances, separating the powers of the executive, legislative, and judicial branches. The Constitution has since served as the foundation of the United States government.

The early years of the United States were also characterized by westward expansion and the discovery of gold in California. The Gold Rush of 1849 attracted thousands of people to the West, leading to the rapid development of new cities and the expansion of the nation's territory. The discovery of gold in California was a major event in the nation's history, contributing to the growth of the western United States and the eventual admission of California as a state in 1850.

JUDGE DAVID PERHAM OF BANGOR.

DAVID PERHAM, was son of Peter* and Rebecca (Buttrick) Perham of Ashby, Mass., born Feb. 10, 1780. He attended Groton Academy and studied law with Dana and Richardson of Groton. He settled as a lawyer in Orrington, now South Brewer, in 1811. His homestead was sold to Dea. Daniel Sargent and is now owned by Harlan P. Sargent. He practiced law until 1822, when he was appointed Judge of the New Court of Common Pleas, an office which he held until the office was abolished in 1839. He moved to Bangor in 1833, and moved into a house built by Rev. Benjamin Huntoon, at the corner of Cedar and Fifth streets.

He married first, Betsey, daughter of David Barnard of Acton, Mass., Aug. 5, or 25, 1814. He married second Charlotte, daughter of Caleb Gardner of Brookline, Mass., Oct. 13, 1830. He was not a great man but he was honest and upright. He died May 31, 1845, aged 66. At an auction sale of his effects in 1845, Albert W. Paine, Esquire, (who was admitted to practice law fifty-nine years ago, 1835, by Judge Perham) bought a lot of Resolves of Massachusetts in pamphlets from 1792 to 1806, inclusive, all for fifty cents. Mr. Paine had them bound and it is said that the volume is the only one now extant.

Mr. Paine also bought at the same time, four volumes of bound Resolves of Massachusetts, 1806, to 1820, for fifty cents per volume. The children of Judge Perham, according to Brewer town Records, were :

- i. SARAH ELISABETH, b. Acton, Mass., June 9, 1815. She d. recently.
- ii. DAVID BARNARD, b. Brewer, May 22, 1817; d. before his father.
- iii. HANNAH REBECCA, b. Brewer, Aug. 8, 1819; resides in Bangor.
- iv. WILLIAM, b. Brewer, Aug. 31, 1823; d. Aug. 13, 1826.
- v. BENJAMIN F., b. Brewer, Jan. 10, 1825, died before his father.

CHAPTER IV. THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

The Convention assembled at Philadelphia on the 17th of September, 1787, and continued its labors until the 17th of September, 1787. It was organized on the 26th of September, and its first business was to elect a President and Vice-President. The Convention then proceeded to discuss the question of the form of government to be adopted. It was divided into three main sections: the Executive, the Legislative, and the Judiciary. The Executive section was the first to report, and its report was adopted. The Legislative section then reported, and its report was also adopted. The Judiciary section reported last, and its report was adopted. The Convention then proceeded to discuss the question of the powers of the Executive, the Legislative, and the Judiciary. The first part of the book is devoted to a general survey of the history of the United States from its discovery by Columbus in 1492 to the present time. It is divided into three main periods: the colonial period, the revolutionary period, and the national period.

The colonial period is characterized by the settlement of the eastern seaboard by English, Dutch, and French immigrants. The colonies developed a distinct identity and a sense of independence from their mother country.

The revolutionary period is marked by the struggle for independence from Great Britain, culminating in the signing of the Declaration of Independence in 1776 and the adoption of the Constitution in 1787.

The national period is characterized by the growth of the United States as a nation, the expansion of territory, and the development of a strong federal government.

The book also discusses the role of the United States in the world, its foreign policy, and its contribution to the progress of civilization.

The second part of the book is devoted to a detailed study of the political and social conditions of the United States during the colonial period.

The third part of the book is devoted to a detailed study of the political and social conditions of the United States during the revolutionary period.

The fourth part of the book is devoted to a detailed study of the political and social conditions of the United States during the national period.

The book is written in a clear and concise style, and is suitable for use as a textbook in schools and colleges.

THE SOCIETY OF THE CINCINNATI.—COBB—KNOX. Mr. G. Arthur Hilton, of Boston, presented the Colonial Society of Massachusetts, Feb., 1894, from the collection of his uncle, the late Hon. Samuel C. Cobb, the grandson of General David Cobb, of Gouldsborough, Me., an incomplete draft in the handwriting of Washington, of the original plan for establishing the society of the Cincinnati. The importance of this precious Washington paper, aside from the fact that it is autographic or holographic, consists in its being the only known document showing that the particular feature of the original articles of Association of the Cincinnati, which was made the subject of special animadversion in the famous Newburg letter, was inserted, if not at the suggestion, certainly with the distinct approval of Washington. This feature—the clause relating to hereditary membership—was seized upon by the politicians of that day and made a party shibboleth to foment the most extraordinary hostility not only widely among the people and by the press, but in several of the State legislatures. This draft is substantially a copy of the original draft of General Henry Knox, afterward of Thomaston, Maine, revised and clearly reproduced, with the addition only of a single full paragraph, besides such minor changes as seemed necessary to render it more perspicuous and to improve its style. By carefully comparing it with Knox's draft of April 15, 1783, and with the articles of association as finally approved and adopted on the thirteenth of May following, by the field and line officers of the American army, it appears unquestionably that the paper was written between those dates.

REBELS IN NOVA SCOTIA DURING THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR.

The history of the Tories or Loyalists who fled from this country to Nova Scotia during the Revolutionary War has been written, and their deeds condoned, which in many cases was justifiable by their high character. They were very largely of the rich, educated and aristocratic classes.

The history of the Rebels, who were in sympathy with the colonies has not been written; they were mechanics and farmers. If the writer of this paper can assist some future historian to do them justice he will be satisfied.

After the surrender of the French at Louisburg, Cape Breton, July 26, 1758, and later on in the Province of Nova Scotia, 1759-60, the government made great efforts to promote emigrations from New England. Governor Charles Lawrence issued proclamations Oct. 2 and Oct. 12, 1758 and again in 1759, inviting settlers and holding out inducements to them. "Papists" were excluded. In 1759 the Governor appointed an agent in Boston to promote that object. Emigration commenced and large numbers went there. The Governor in his Address to the Assembly, August 1, 1759, said, "that applications from settlers came faster than he could prepare Grants." In one year 200 settlers went from Rhode Island, 100 from New London, Conn., 200 from Boston, 180 from Plymouth, Mass., and others from parts of New England, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Other settlers followed in 1760-61-62-64. Some of these families settled on the St. John River at Maugerville and vicinity. In the

PHILOSOPHY DEPARTMENT

PHILOSOPHY 101: INTRODUCTION TO PHILOSOPHY

LECTURE 1: THE FOUNDATIONS OF PHILOSOPHY

The course begins with a discussion of the nature of philosophy and its role in society. It then moves to a study of the major branches of philosophy, including metaphysics, epistemology, ethics, and political philosophy. The course concludes with a discussion of the contemporary philosophical landscape and the challenges it presents.

The first lecture, "The Foundations of Philosophy," introduces the student to the central questions of philosophy. It begins with a discussion of the nature of reality and the limits of human knowledge. The lecture then turns to the question of the good life and the role of the philosopher in society. The lecture concludes with a discussion of the relationship between philosophy and the other disciplines of the liberal arts.

The second lecture, "Metaphysics and Epistemology," explores the relationship between the mind and the world. It begins with a discussion of the nature of the self and the mind-body problem. The lecture then turns to the question of the nature of truth and the limits of human knowledge. The lecture concludes with a discussion of the relationship between metaphysics and epistemology.

The third lecture, "Ethics and Political Philosophy," explores the question of the good life and the role of the philosopher in society. It begins with a discussion of the nature of the good and the role of the philosopher in society. The lecture then turns to the question of the nature of justice and the role of the philosopher in society. The lecture concludes with a discussion of the relationship between ethics and political philosophy.

The fourth lecture, "Contemporary Philosophy," explores the challenges of the contemporary philosophical landscape. It begins with a discussion of the nature of the self and the mind-body problem. The lecture then turns to the question of the nature of truth and the limits of human knowledge. The lecture concludes with a discussion of the relationship between philosophy and the other disciplines of the liberal arts.

Revolutionary War when the Tories came they declared that the Rebels had all the best lands on the river. The large majority of them settled around and at the head of the Bay of Fundy. The hardy settlers found land such as they had never seen in the other colonies.

Some of them occupied farms which belonged to the "French Neutrals," who were expelled from the Province, their buildings burned and cattle seized because they would not take the oath of allegiance to Great Britain; they lived in the towns or districts of Annapolis, Chignecto, Bay Verte, Minas, Cobscook Bay and adjoining places.

Seven thousand of these people were sent to the other British colonies, of whom 1,300 went to Maine and Massachusetts, 415 to Connecticut and some to New York, Pennsylvania and Georgia. Many went up the St. John river and settled at Madawaska where their descendants are now, in large numbers, while others went to Canada.

This was the part of ancient Acadia which Longfellow immortalized in his poem "Evangeline."

"Still stands the forest primeval; but under the shade of its branches, Dwells another race, with other customs and language."

These settlers were diversified in their occupations; they could raise wonderful crops and build vessels to carry them to the markets of New England and New York; as a matter of fact I believe they were the first ship builders in the Province. They built saw mills and exported lumber to the other colonies; they furnished the frame for the first Meeting House in Machias. Courts of Justice and forms of government were established almost exactly like those of Massachusetts. They held the offices of Members of the Assembly, Sheriffs, Provost Marshal and Customs officers. They were a religious people and carried their ministers with them, and founded churches which still exist, and to which their descendants now belong. The growth of the Province was not large but the people were happy and prosperous. The Revolutionary War broke out and many of the colonists sympathized with their native land. The government ordered the inhabitants to take an oath of allegiance to the King, which in many cases was met with flat refusal. The Colonial Assembly refused to admit members from several towns because their constituents would not take the oath. *

Some of the more zealous, undertook to attach the Province to the Colonies. Jonathan Eddy, a native of Norton, Mass., then living at Cumberland, N. S., went to Boston early in 1776 for assistance.

March 27, 1776, he was at Gen. Washington's Headquarters at Cambridge. See Washington's letter to Congress, dated March 27, 1776. Extract:

"I beg leave to transmit to you the copy of a petition from the Inhabitants of Nova Scotia, brought to me by Jonathan Eddy, mentioned therein, who is now here with an Acadian; from which it appears that they are in a distressed situation and from Mr. Eddy's account they are exceedingly apprehensive that they will be reduced to the disagreeable alternative of taking up arms and joining our enemies or of fleeing their country, unless they can be protected against their insults and oppressions. He says that their committees think many salutary and valuable consequences would be derived from five or six hundred men being sent there, as it would not only quiet the minds of the people from the anxiety and uneasiness they are now filled with, and enable them to take a part in behalf of the colonies, but be the means of preventing the Indians, of which there are a good many, from taking the side of the Government, and the ministerial troops from getting such supplies of provisions from them as they have done. How far these good purposes would be answered if such a force were sent as they ask for it is impossible to determine in the present uncertain state of things, for if the army from Boston is going to Halifax as reported by them before their departure, that or a much more considerable force would be of no avail; if not, and they possess the friendly disposition to our cause suggested in the petition and declared by Mr. Eddy, it might be of great service unless another body of troops should be sent thither by administration too powerful for them to oppose, &c., &c.

I have the Honor to be, &c."

Capt. Eddy went to Philadelphia; but the Continental Congress having more on its hands than it well knew how to attend to, did not give him any assistance. He came back to Boston and by order of the General Court, Sept. 5, 1776, then sitting at Watertown, received from the Commissary General of Massachusetts supplies of ammunition and provisions.

Col. Eddy returned to Nova Scotia and enlisted what men he could with which to harass the enemy. He made an unwise attack on Fort Cumberland with eighty men which was repulsed and ended in dire disaster to the "Rebels" engaged. In the meantime the Council of the Province offered rewards for the arrest of the leaders, £200 for Jonathan Eddy, £100 each for William Howe, Samuel Rogers and John Allan. This was the end of the rebellion in the Province substantially. Many who took but little or no part against the King remained and were not molested. Their descendants are numerous there. Those who had been active fled to "the States" and entered the service at Machias and other places from which they originally came. In 1785, Col. Eddy then living at Sharon, Mass., prepared a list of such refugees as he knew and sent to the General Court of Massachusetts and to the Continental Congress. I give a copy of his "Return."

In 1783 Col. Jona. Eddy, then a Representative to the General Court from Sharon, Mass., sent a petition to the Courts :

“Commonwealth of Massachusetts—to the Honorable the Senate and House of Representatives assembled, the Petition of Jonathan Eddy Humbly sheweth that your Petitioner in the year 1776, September the 5th, did by order of the Honored Court then sitting at Watertown, Receive from the Commissary General supplies of Provision and ammunition, in order to enable him with a Party to annoy the Enemies of the United States, for which your Petitioner with others gave their security to account for when called upon ; and as your Petitioner conceaves the intent and meaning of the Resolve was that he should expend it that way, therefore after the above [supply, did proceed to the Eastward Shore and did capture fifty-six British soldiers, including two captains, one surgeon, one church minister—besides 13 killed, and brot off seven that Deserted to us ; all of which, excepting the Dead, were brot into this State, and many of the Privates enlisted into the service of the United States, the two Captains and several of the others were Exchanged for Prisoners captured from the United States and carried into Halifax. Besides that morover was the means of keeping near two thousand of the Enemy at Halifax for a considerable space, after so that the States had not so many to encounter with at New York ; and as your Petitioner is Confident the Provision and ammunition was Expended for the (purpose) it was designed for ; and as your Petitioner does not Request anything for his own time and expences at Present, yet Humbly requests this Honorable House would order that the above obligations may be (cancelled) or such other ways made void as you in your wisdom shall think best.

JONA EDDY.”

In 1785 Col. Eddy seems to have made application to Congress for relief for the Refugees from Nova Scotia.

He received the following letter .

“New York, 21 April, 1785.

Sir: The enclosed is a resolution of Congress. I wish it had been more in your favor, but it is all that can be done for you here at present. The Secretary of Congress has forwarded to the Governor of Massachusetts an official copy of said resolution, yet I thought it advisable to give you this notice ; no doubt you will observe it is not attested by the Secretary, (he being gone to Philadelphia) I thought it not material, as you may no doubt, if necessary, have a copy attested by the Secretary

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

CHAPTER I. THE DISCOVERY OF AMERICA

The discovery of America by Christopher Columbus in 1492 is one of the most important events in the history of the world. It opened up a new world of opportunity and led to the development of a global economy. Columbus's voyage was sponsored by the Spanish monarchs, Isabella and Ferdinand, and it resulted in the establishment of a Spanish colony in the Caribbean. This discovery led to the European colonization of the Americas and the eventual formation of the United States.

The discovery of America was a turning point in the history of the world. It led to the development of a global economy and the eventual formation of the United States.

of Massachusetts. I wish you to believe that I have not been inattentive to your affairs, notwithstanding the resolution may not fully come up to your expectations.

I am with real respect, your most obedient,

S. HOLTEN."

This is endorsed, Dr. Holten's letter.

"WEDNESDAY, April 13, 1785.

"On the report of a committee, consisting of Mr. Ellery, Mr. Monroe, Mr. Reed, Mr. Williamson and Mr. Spaight, to whom was referred a petition of Jonathan Eddy, and other refugees of Nova Scotia,* Resolved, That Jonathan Eddy, and other refugees from Nova Scotia, on account of their attachment to the interest of the United States, be recommended to the humanity and particular attention of the several states in which they respectively reside; and that they be informed that whenever Congress can consistently make grants of land, they will reward, in this way, as far as may be consistent, such refugees from Nova Scotia, as may be disposed to live in the western country."—

Journal of Congress, Vol. IV.

The General Court of Massachusetts passed a Resolve giving land to some of the Refugees, 1785.

"Resolve on the message from the Governor, of June 14, 1785, respecting Jonathan Eddy and others, Refugees from Nova-Scotia, granting several quantities of land lying in one body, in the unappropriated lands of this State to the eastward of Penobscot-River, under the direction of the committee for sale of lands in the county of Lincoln, upon certain conditions, June 29, 1785.

Whereas, Jonathan Eddy, Esq., and the other persons hereinafter named, refugees from the province of Nova-Scotia, now residing in this Commonwealth, were during the late war, in consequence of the laudable attachment which they expressed to the American cause, necessitated to flee from their respective habitations in the province aforesaid, and leave their property behind them, many of whom are now in penurious and distressed circumstances; and as the United States in Congress assembled, on the thirteenth day of April last past, recommended the said sufferers to the humanity and particular attention of this Court; and they having by their agent, Jonathan Eddy aforesaid, manifested their desire to procure a settlement in the eastern part of this Commonwealth:

Therefore Resolved, That there be, and hereby is granted to the several persons hereafter named, being refugees as aforesaid, and to their heirs and assigns forever, the several quantities of land hereafter mentioned, that is to say, to the said Jonathan Eddy, fifteen hundred acres; to Ebenezer Gardner, one thousand acres; to Zebulon Row, seven hundred and fifty acres; to William Maxwell, seven hundred and fifty acres; to Robert Foster, five hundred and fifty acres; to Parker Clarke, five hundred acres; to Atwood Fales, four hundred and fifty acres; to Elijah Ayre, four hundred acres; to the heirs of William Eddy, three hundred and fifty acres; to Phineas Never, one thousand acres; to Nathaniel Reynold, three hundred acres; to Seth Noble, three hundred acres; to Samuel Rogers, three hundred acres; to Thomas Forkner, two hundred and thirty acres; to John Day, two hundred and thirty acres; to Anthony Burk, Bradford Carpenter, John Eckley, Jonathan Eddy, jun., William Howe, each one hundred and fifty acres, which several quantities of land, amounting in the whole, to nine thousand three hundred and sixty acres, shall be laid out in one body, in the unappropriated lands of this Commonwealth, to the eastward of Penobscot-River, under the directions of the committee for the sale of unappropriated land in the county of Lincoln who shall also cause division thereof to be made among the grantees aforesaid, in such manner as to make the relative value of the several parcels thereof, as nearly proportionate to the quantities therein contained, as may be.

Provided always, That each of the grantees of aforesaid, their heirs or assigns, shall erect a dwelling-house, and clear one fiftieth part of the land at least, upon the particular parcel that shall be assigned them, agreeable to this resolve, within two years after the division shall be made as aforesaid, and that the whole right of any who shall neglect the same, shall enure to the Commonwealth."

Chapter 80, Resolves.

Col. Eddy removed to Eddington, Maine, in Aug., 1784, and with others continued to petition Congress for relief by way of money or land. He wrote to Honorable Silas Lee, M. C. from Maine, asking him to give his attention to the matter. Col. Eddy received the following letters from him.—

“Philadelphia, March 13, 1800.

Dear Sir: I have not nor shall I forget to pay all due attentions to your business. The House of Representatives have passed a new Post Office Bill in which provision is made to extend the Post road from Bucktown to Eddytown, and I shall recommend you for post master at that place, and because I think you a very honest man.

I am pleased to hear that the Hon. Caleb Strong is talked of for Governor of our State.

I am dear Sir with much esteem yours,

SILAS LEE.

P. S.—I hope Mr. Strong will be voted for generally with you, and he will be supported throughout the whole District.

Jona. Eddy, Esquire, Eddytown, Maine.”

“Philadelphia, May 9, 1800.

My Dear Sir: I have the pleasure to inform you that the Commissioners have reported in your favor, and a bill has been before us and is passed to a third reading, granting you one thousand two hundred and eighty acres of the Western Lands. The value of this land I can not now tell you, some say more, some less. But you are not to get the grants till the second Tuesday of January next, and it is probable I may see you between that and the present time.

I am with much esteem yours,

SILAS LEE.

“City of Washington, Feb. 24, 1801.

Dear Sir: I have the pleasure of informing you that a Bill has passed and now become a Law, providing for you and others; inclosed you have a copy thereof.

This Bill was negotiated in the Senate the past session, and that was the reason why the business was not brought to a close.

Yours with much esteem,

SILAS LEE.

Jona. Eddy, Esq., Eddytown, Maine.”

The Act referred to is as follows :—

“An act regulating the grants of land appropriated for the refugees from the British provinces of Canada and Nova Scotia.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the surveyor-general be, and he is hereby directed to cause those fractional townships of the sixteenth, seventeenth, eighteenth, nineteenth, twentieth, twenty-first and twenty-second ranges of townships, which join the southern boundry line of the military lauds* to be subdivided into half sections, containing three hundred and twenty acres each; and to return a survey and description of the same to the Secretary of the

* In the Chillicothe District, Ohio.

1. The first part of the document is a list of names and addresses of the members of the committee. The names are listed in alphabetical order, and the addresses are given in full. The list includes names such as Mr. J. B. Smith, Mr. W. H. Jones, and Mrs. A. M. Brown, among others.

2. The second part of the document is a report on the work of the committee during the year. It begins with a statement of the committee's purpose and objectives, and then proceeds to a detailed account of the various projects and activities that were carried out. The report includes information on the number of meetings held, the topics discussed, and the progress made on various projects.

3. The third part of the document is a financial statement showing the income and expenses of the committee for the year. It includes a list of all the money received, such as from donations and grants, and a list of all the money spent, such as on office supplies and travel. The statement shows that the committee has operated on a budget, and that its expenses have been kept to a minimum.

4. The fourth part of the document is a list of recommendations for the future. It includes suggestions for how the committee can improve its work, such as by holding more frequent meetings and by reaching out to more people in the community. The recommendations are based on the committee's experience over the year, and are intended to help it become more effective in the future.

Treasury, on or before the first Monday of December next; and that the said lands be, and they are hereby set apart and reserved for the purpose of satisfying the claims of persons entitled to lands under the act, intituled "An act for the relief of the refugees from the British provinces of Canada and Nova Scotia."

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the Secretary of the Treasury shall, within thirty days after the survey of the lands shall have been returned to him as aforesaid, proceed to determine, by lot to be drawn in the presence of the secretaries of state and of war, the priority of location of the persons entitled to lands as aforesaid. The persons, thus entitled, shall severally make their locations on the second Tuesday of January next, and the patents for the lands thus located shall be granted in the manner directed for military lands, without requiring any fee whatever.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the following persons, claiming lands under the above-mentioned act, shall respectively be entitled to the following quantities of land; that is to say: Martha Walker, widow of Thomas Walker, John Edgar, P. Francis Cazeau, John Allen, and Seth Harding, respectively, two thousand two hundred and forty acres each; Jonathan Eddy, Colonel James Livingston, and Parker Clark, respectively, one thousand two hundred and eighty acres each; and the heirs of John Dodge, one thousand two hundred and eighty acres; Thomas Faulkner, David Gay, Martin Brooks, Lieutenant-colonel Bradford, Noah Miller, Joshua Lamb, Atwood Fales, John Starr, William How, Ebenezer Gardner, Lewis F. Delesdernier, John McGown, and Jonas C. Minot, respectively, nine hundred and sixty acres each; and the heirs of Simeon Chester, nine hundred and sixty acres; Jacob Vender Heyden, John Livingston, James Crawford, Isaac Danks, Major B. Von Heer, Benjamin Thompson, Joseph Bindon, Joseph Levittre, Lieutenant William Maxwell, John D. Mercier, James Price, Seth Noble, Martha Bogart, relict of Abraham Bogart, and formerly relict of Daniel Tucker, and John Halstead, respectively, six hundred and forty acres each; David Jenks, Ambrose Cole, James Cole, Adam Johnson, the widow and heirs of Colonel Jeremiah Duggan, Daniel Earl, junior, John Paskell, Edward Chinn, Joseph Cone, and John Torreyre, respectively, three hundred and twenty acres each; Samuel Fales, one hundred and sixty acres; which several tracts of land shall, except the last, be located in half sections by the respective claimants.

 WHEELWRIGHT FAMILIES IN MAINE.

SAMUEL² WHEELWRIGHT, son of Rev. John Wheelwright, was born in England, 1635. He was in Boston in 1663 and married Esther, daughter of Jeremy Houchin of Boston that year. July 15, 1663, he bought one-half of his father's estate in Wells and probably settled there that year. In 1677 Samuel Wheelwright, of "Yorkshire," was appointed on a committee to take an account of the "New Brick Building" at Harvard College. He was for many years the foremost citizen of the town and Province. He was Town Clerk 29 years, County Treasurer and Judge of Probate for many years, Judge of the Court of Common Pleas from 1694 to 1700, and a Councillor* of the Province from 1694 to his death. Nearly all of the name in Maine and in New England are his descendants. He died May 13, 1700.—Gravestone. His will of Jan. 21, 1700, proved Jan. 22, 1701, names wife Hester, children Mary and Hannah Parsons, and sons John and Joseph. Children were:

i. JOHN³, b. 1664, of Wells.

ii. JOSEPH³, b. 1667-8, of Wells.

iii. MARY³.

iv. HANNAH, m. William Pearsons probably in 1696. Jan. 5, 1697, the Grand Jury presented him and Hannah Wheelwright for an offence against the law, to which he plead guilty and was fined 20 shillings and 2 shillings 6d. cests; his wife gave the Court satisfactory reason for not being in Court and was excused. Her brother Col. John Wheelwright appears to have been one of the Court. Pearsons died prior to 1717, when his heirs received a grant of land in Wells. In 1703 "Mrs. Hannah Parsons, a widow woman, and her young daughter were taken by the Indians and carried into captivity."† It is probable that it was the same woman. (See Col. John Wheelwright's children for the daughter(?))

COL. JOHN³ WHEELWRIGHT, son of Samuel,² was born in Wells in 1664. He was an Inn Keeper. He built mills on the Mousam river in 1695. In 1703-4 he tore down the old house built by his grandfather and built a new one. He married Mary, daughter of Capt. Geo. Suell, mariner, of Portsmouth, Jan. 28, 1689. In 1701 the ancient church had gone to decay, and a new one was organized Nov. 9, 1701, his name heading the list of members.

*These Councillors were elected by the General Court and were equivalent to what are now Senators.

The same day he had his five oldest children baptized. "Mrs. Mary Wheelwright, upon profession of faith in Christ, was received to communion March, 1713-14." He was a Representative to the General Court in 1692. May 18, 1715, he was appointed upon a committee to lay out Falmouth, now Portland, and Oct. 29, 1718, a report was made which said among other things "that there was a fair prospect of its being in a little time a flourishing town." He was selectman many years, town clerk forty years, Judge of Probate, Judge of the Court of Common Pleas many years. He was Councillor of the Province from 1708 for 25 years. He was Lieut., Captain, Major and Colonel of militia in his time. He was in service in all the Indian wars, at Pemaquid, Sheepscot, Kennebeck, Fort Mary, Saco, and other places. "Brave and noble, he was the main pillar of defence in the Province through the vicissitudes of these wars." He was the most eminent citizen of his town and of the Province. He was a staunch Puritan of the old Calvinistic order. He died Aug 13, 1745, aged 81. Gravestone. His will of April 11, 1739, proved April 8, 1746, names wife Mary: Children, Hannah Plaisted, Elizabeth Newmarch, Mary Moody, Sarah Jefferds, John, Jeremiah, Samuel and Nathaniel, and also "daughter Esther if living in Canada, who hath been absent for more than 30 years," to whom he gives £100 if she comes back. Widow Mary in her will* of Nov. 16, 1750, proved July, 1755, names, John, Samuel, Jeremiah, Nathaniel, Mary Moody, Sarah Jefferds, also three beloved grand daughters of dear daughter Hannah Plaisted, deceased; also four grand daughters of dear daughter Elizabeth Newmarch, deceased; also if my daughter Esther, many years in Canada, is yet living I give her one-fifth of my estate. She gave her slave Peggy to such child as she should choose to live with. Children:

- i. JOHN.⁴ b. Dec. 10, 1689. Probably settled in Boston. "John Wheelwright was Councillor for Sagadahoc, 1745, and for ten successive years and had been for 30 years Commissary General of the whole Province." In Christ Church, Boston, Inscriptions, I find this: "Madam Elizabeth Wheelwright, Consort of Hon. John Wheelwright, Esquire, died Feb. 23, 1748, aged 45 years."
- ii. SAMUEL.⁴ b. May 2, 1692. Lived in Wells. He was a Captain in the French war. He m. Abigail Lane, (perhaps of John) 1714-15. "He

The first part of the book is devoted to a general history of the world, from the beginning of time to the present day. The author discusses the various civilizations that have flourished on the earth, and the progress of human knowledge and art. He also touches upon the different religions and philosophies that have shaped the human mind.

The second part of the book is a detailed account of the history of the British Empire, from its early beginnings in the sixteenth century to its greatest extent in the nineteenth century. The author describes the various colonies that were established, and the policies that were pursued by the British government. He also discusses the different wars that were fought, and the role of the British Empire in the world.

The third part of the book is a history of the United States, from its early years as a collection of colonies to its emergence as a major world power. The author discusses the different presidents, and the various events that have shaped the history of the United States. He also touches upon the different social and economic movements that have taken place in the country.

The fourth part of the book is a history of the world from the beginning of the nineteenth century to the present day. The author discusses the various revolutions and wars that have taken place, and the progress of human civilization. He also touches upon the different scientific discoveries, and the various social and economic movements that have shaped the world.

12. Jeremiah⁵, who it seems must have been a son of Samuel⁴, and to whom I think the following refers. I cannot place it elsewhere:—

Extract from a letter to Rev. Jonathan Greenleaf of Wells, in 1824, which probably refers to this family:

"Jeremiah Wheelwright, who died in Portsmouth about 1770, was my grandfather. My father, Jeremiah Jr., was the only child by the first marriage; his mother was Mary Bosworth. By the second marriage he had two children, Mary and John. Mary married in Saco, and died a widow. My grandfather had a brother Job and I think other brothers living at Wells. My father, Jeremiah Jr., had eight children, three of them only living; Abraham, Ebenezer and Esther. My mother was Mary Davis, of Gloucester. My age is 67 the 26th instant.

The first part of the report deals with the general situation of the medical profession in the United States. It points out that the number of physicians has increased steadily since 1900, and that this increase has been particularly marked in the larger cities. It also notes that the average number of years of study required for the degree of M.D. has increased from 6 to 8 years, and that the average number of years of hospital training has increased from 1 to 3 years. These facts, it is argued, show that the medical profession is becoming more highly educated and more specialized, and that this is a natural and desirable development.

The second part of the report deals with the question of the distribution of physicians. It points out that there is a marked concentration of physicians in the larger cities, and that there is a corresponding shortage in the smaller cities and in the rural areas. It suggests that the government should take steps to encourage the migration of physicians to these areas, and that it should provide financial incentives to those who do so.

The third part of the report deals with the question of the regulation of the medical profession. It points out that the medical profession is currently regulated by a patchwork of state laws, and that this is a source of confusion and inefficiency. It suggests that the federal government should take steps to create a uniform system of regulation, and that it should provide for the licensing of physicians and the regulation of their practice.

The fourth part of the report deals with the question of the medical profession's relationship to the public. It points out that the medical profession has a duty to the public to provide the highest quality of care, and that it should be held accountable for its actions. It suggests that the government should take steps to ensure that the medical profession is held to this standard, and that it should provide for the establishment of a body to investigate and report on the profession's conduct.

The fifth part of the report deals with the question of the medical profession's relationship to other professions. It points out that the medical profession is often in conflict with other professions, such as the law and the engineering profession, and that this is a source of inefficiency and waste. It suggests that the government should take steps to promote cooperation and understanding between the medical profession and other professions, and that it should provide for the establishment of a body to investigate and report on the profession's conduct.

The sixth part of the report deals with the question of the medical profession's future. It points out that the medical profession is facing a number of challenges, such as the increasing cost of medical care and the increasing demand for medical services. It suggests that the medical profession should take steps to meet these challenges, and that it should provide for the establishment of a body to investigate and report on the profession's conduct.

The report concludes by stating that the medical profession is a vital part of our society, and that it has a duty to the public to provide the highest quality of care. It suggests that the government should take steps to support the medical profession in this duty, and that it should provide for the establishment of a body to investigate and report on the profession's conduct.

PETITION TO THE GENERAL COURT FROM THE SELECTMEN OF BLUE HILL, 1790.

(FROM THE MASSACHUSETTS ARCHIVES.)

To the Honorable the Senate and the Honorable House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in General Court Assembled :

The Selectmen of the Town of Blue-hill in behalf of the Inhabitants of said Town agreeable to the vote in Town meeting assembled, Authorizing and directing them to Represent to the Honorable the General Court the distressed situation they are in by reason of heavy Taxes assessed on them, and for the following reasons: Their very great suffering during the late contest when unprotected by the Government they were equally exposed to the ravages of war from both parties, and were absolutely stripped of almost all their property, greatly indebted to private individuals, which they have since been obliged to discharge, under every possible inconvenience subject to great embarrassment in the administration of Justice, and still greater from the difficulties of Trade, from which source they expected and depended on to enable them to pay their Taxes. Their lands unlocated until very lately, discouraged them greatly from that spirit and execution in the cultivation of them, that was absolutely necessary to give them support, and prevented the Inhabitants from rendering to the Assessors a Just Estimate of property requisite to direct to an equal Assessment, in consequence of which their quantum of the Taxes are now so great they are utterly incapable of discharging them, that in addition to these their proportion of the Public Charge, and an appendage of one of the new Counties, erected the last Session of the General Court which they are liable to be called on for immediately, will add greatly to the weight of their present burden, that from their remote situation they have not enjoyed any of the benefits which the Inhabitants of the western parts of the Commonwealth have enjoyed, but on the contrary have been exposed to, and obliged to combat every difficulty, in clearing up and bringing forward a heavy wooded country, that but very few of the Inhabitants are as yet able to raise a sufficiency for themselves and families, and should they be obliged to pay into the Public Treasury the Taxes now assessed on them it will be attended with every evil consequence. Numbers must be Infalibly ruined and obliged to sell their real Property and leave the country, will deprive the Inhabitants in the Eastern part of the Commonwealth, from the advantage their brethren in the Western part are in full enjoyment of, and create the utmost discontent among the People, for these and many more reasons which might be urged, your Petitioners most humbly entreat your honours to take this, their Petition, into your wise consideration and grant such relief in the Premises as in your Wisdom shall appear Just.

And your humble Petitioners as in duty bound shall ever Pray.

(Signed)

JONATHAN DARLING, } Selectmen of JOSEPH WOOD, Jr. } Blue-hill.

The foregoing Petition was presented and referred to a Committee which reported to the General Court Feb. 22, 1790, which report was as follows, viz :

That the Assessors of Blue-hill be and hereby are directed without delay to assess upon the Inhabitants thereof agreeably to law, if not already done, and make return to the Treasurer of the Commonwealth, the sum of one hundred and fifty-five pounds, eighteen shillings, and nine pence, also the further sum of thirty-three pounds, fifteen shillings, and nine pence, and that the town may discharge themselves of the said sums as follows, viz :—

One moiety of the first tax may be applied by said Town to the support of a Gospel Minister among them, and the other moiety may be applied for the support of school master or masters, and also by paying into the Treasury of the Commonwealth the sum of thirty-three pounds, two shillings, and six pence. * * * * The Town to present a certificate to the Treasurer of the Commonwealth within one year that it had complied with these conditions.

The above was passed as a Resolve Feb. 23, 1790.

FROM MASS. ARCHIVES, VOL. 201, PAGE 370.

POWNBALBOROUGH, OCT. 18, 1779.

SIR:—Enclosed is a letter sent express by two men from Penobscot through the woods by the way of Fort Halifax from Capt. Ulmer who is there with a scouting party of about 16 men:—in consequence of which I have ordered a company of men to march from Fort Halifax to Penobscot and there protect the inhabitants in the best manner in their power until the time for which they were detached shall expire, which will be the first of next month. Have also directed Maj. Lithgow to send a company from Cambden to co-operate with them at certain seasons as he can spare the men from that quarter. Have also appointed Mr. Jedediah Preble of Penobscot to supply the men that may be sent there with provisions, I apprehend it would be very necessary that some men should be continued to be stationed up Penobscot River to support the drooping spirits of the inhabitants who it seems are willing to defend themselves, notwithstanding their oaths, provided they can have assistance; and if no assistance could be offered they would choose to remove from thence if they could get off, rather than be subject to the Britons: their situation is truly distressing: between the Britons and Tories they are subject to daily plunder and know not which way to fly for shelter; and if proper measures are not taken to keep up constant guards the inhabitants this way may be by the incursions of the enemy rendered in like manner miserable.

I have stationed some troops at the mouth of Kennebec River where it will be needful to continue them and in several other places but principally at Cambden. If a military force should be kept up it will be necessary to provide barracks before the cold weather comes on, especially at Cambden where it is likely the greatest number of men may be stationed. As the article of bread may be much wanted not only for the inhabitants of this county but also for men that may be raised for the defence of it, it would be very beneficial if some measures should be taken to prevent persons that come into this country from carrying off Indian corn, rye and other grain, which is done by extorting this sort of pay, for what they may have to sell, to the refusal of the currency. I am at a loss to know the proper rations to be delivered to each soldier, having never received any directions for that purpose: should &c. * * * * *

Previous to the raising troops for the Penobscot expedition, upon which the first arrival of the enemy at M. bigwaduce, I caused about 300 men to be raised and stationed at Cambden by advice of the committees of the several towns in this county: when the establishment is made for the payment of the Penobscot troops, should be glad if it might be made for the payment of the others also.

I am sir &c.

CHAS. CUSHING, Br. Gen.

To Hon. Jer. Powell &c."

Capt. Ulmer's letter referred to above.

"PENOBSCOT, OCT. 4, 1779.

SIR:—By order of Maj. Lithgow I proceeded to Penobscot River to have the pleasure to inform you the inhabitants appear very friendly to the American cause, but are in a most deplorable condition: they are ordered by Gen. McLean to repair immediately to Magabagaduce to work on the fort erecting there: in case of failure Gen. McLean is determined to turn and destroy their interests and deem the inhabitants rebels. It is impossible for so many families to get all through the woods and there is no carriage by water. They have determined to carry on their places, if they can have a guard sufficient to protect them. I am fully convinced it is my duty to recommend to you in the strongest terms in their behalf, that you will take into consideration their distress and send them immediate relief.—either boats to remove them, or men sufficient to guard them here which cannot be less than two or three hundred: as to provisions, may be had here sufficient to supply them.

I am Sir,

Brig. Cushing."

ABRAHAM MOORE, OF DOVER AND ABBOT.
A TYPICAL PIONEER.*

Abraham Moore was son of Colonel John Moore, a Revolutionary officer who settled in Norridgewock in 1780, with his four sons. Abraham married Betsey Spaulding, 1790, and settled first on a lot afterward known as the Nutting lot, and from thence moved to the Richards lot. He was then known as an active and intelligent man. It is said that he exchanged his farm for wild land in the township No. 7, R. 7, north of the Waldo Patent, now Abbot, then in Somerset County but now in Piscataquis County. He explored the township in 1804, and in 1805 felled the first trees. In 1806 he raised a crop and built a log house and in March, 1807, moved his wife and six children there. It was a tedious winter's journey, but he and his wife were of those who never flinched from any hardship. For several years the only road was by the river to Foxcroft, where Mrs. Moore had brothers, by water in summer and by ice in winter. Mr. Moore built a saw mill at what is now Abbot village, which he carried on for several years.

In 1816 it is said that there was frost every month in the year, so that the families had to subsist largely on potatoes and other vegetables.

In 1817 he sold his mill and 400 acres of land to William Oakes, of Sangerville, and moved to Foxcroft.

In 1818 he moved to Dover and later built a grist mill on the western side of Great Falls, which his wife and son Jefferson tended in the summer while the father looked after the crops. Mr. J. P. Moore thinks his father built the mills on his own account; but the Proprietors of Dover deeded Abraham Moore, August 27, 1824,† for "one dollar and in consideration of services rendered in the erection of mills and otherwise," 35 village lots in Dover, comprising a large part of what is now the village of Dover. Feb. 12, 1824, he sold a part of this purchase to Thomas Davee,‡ including water power. Oct. 7, 1824, he and wife Betsey

* I am indebted to his son Jefferson P. Moore, now living in Abbot, for much information.

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES
 FROM 1789 TO 1861

The history of the United States from 1789 to 1861 is a story of growth and expansion. It begins with the signing of the Constitution in 1787, which established a new form of government. The early years were marked by the struggle for a strong central government, culminating in the War of 1812. This period also saw the westward expansion of the United States, as settlers moved into the territories beyond the Appalachian Mountains. The Louisiana Purchase of 1803 and the Texas Annexation of 1845 were major events in this expansion. The 1820s and 1830s were characterized by the growth of the industrial revolution in the Northeast and the rise of the Jacksonian era in the South. The 1840s and 1850s were a period of intense sectional conflict, leading to the outbreak of the Civil War in 1861.

The Civil War, which lasted from 1861 to 1865, was a pivotal moment in American history. It resulted in the preservation of the Union and the abolition of slavery. The war also led to the Reconstruction era, a period of significant social and political change in the South. The Reconstruction era was marked by the passage of the Reconstruction Acts, the Reconstruction Amendments to the Constitution, and the rise of the Ku Klux Klan. The Reconstruction era ended in 1877 with the Compromise of 1877, which restored the Southern states to the Union without the Reconstruction Amendments. The Reconstruction era was a period of intense struggle and conflict, but it was also a period of significant progress and achievement.

sold his son, Cyrus Moore, what may have been the homestead, and more land to Thomas Davee, Nov. 27, 1826, and to Jesse L. Philbrook, June, 1827, and also lands to his son Jefferson P. He moved back to Abbot in 1826-27 and built mills at the upper village. He died April 17, 1844, aged 75 years, 4 mos.; his widow died 1869, aged 96. Mr. Moore was a man of great force and vigor, and of intelligence according to his opportunities, such as few Pioneers had. Children:—

JOY FAMILIES IN MAINE.

EPHRAIM JOY, son of Thomas, of Boston, born Feb. 7, 1647. He was in Hingham with wife Susannah and had a daughter Tabitha, born there Sept. 25, 1677. No further record of that family there. Ephraim Joy was in Kittery Nov. 15, 1683* and signed an agreement with "other children" relating to the division of the estate of widow Patience Spencer. According to York Records he had married widow Susannah Gattensby prior to 1673. She was the widow of John Gattensby† and daughter of Thomas and Patience (Chadbourne) Spencer, of ———. Widow Spencer kept an Inn in Saco, 1662, and died, perhaps Nov. 7, 1683. He witnessed a deed in Berwick May 11, 1695, and was a witness against William Gooden Jan. 7, 1696, for selling Rum and Cyder. He had land in Berwick, 1700, and 1715. Ephraim Joy witnessed Mrs. Mary Wise's will in Berwick, Mar. 1, 1748, and Peter Grant's will there, April 29, 1756.

Ephraim Joy was First Sergeant in a Foot Company in Berwick, in Col. William Pepperell's Regiment, Mar. 17, 1758.

James and Samuel Joy were tax payers in Berwick, 1772.

Nathaniel Joy, servant to John Kye, of Berwick, who gave Joy land in his will of June 18, 1736.

BIDDEFORD FAMILY.

BENJAMIN JOY and wife Elizabeth were in Biddeford in 1741, when she was admitted to the Church,

Children on Biddeford Records, all except the first :

- i. BENJAMIN JR., m. Rebecca Smith in Biddeford, Aug. 1, 1765.
Removed after 1771, to Union River.

- x. IVORY HOVEY, b. July 16, 1792. Lived on the homestead of his father in Ellsworth, m. Betsey, daughter of Geo. Brimmer. They had seven sons and three daughters.

BENJAMIN JELLISON AND FAMILY.

ICHABOD JELLISON, of York, in his will of Nov. 26, 1752, proved Jan., 1753, names wife and son Benjamin, to whom he gives most of his estate, also sons Ichabod and Nathaniel and daughter Thankful Bridge. Benjamin Jellison was in the French war at Louisburg in 1744, from Biddeford. I think this was the same man. He married Agnes, daughter of John Patten of Biddeford, in 1751-2. She was admitted to the church there April 4, 1756. The family moved to Union River about 1770. He bought one-half of Reed's Meadow of Sibley Pendexter, May 23, 1773. He was part owner in the second saw mill on the river and sold his interest to Maddocks and others, Jan. 9, 1775. He sold one-half of his homestead to his son John, March 21, 1787. His widow was living in 1793.

As to his children and descendants, I have not a full account.

- i. WILLIAM was bap. at Biddeford, Jan. 21, 1753. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, 1777. He was at Union River, a petitioner to the General Court for land, 1784. DeGregoire deeded him a lot of land Dec. 13, 1788.

*Biddeford Church Records.

JELLISON MEMORANDUM.

Sally Jellison, married — Fletcher, of Ellsworth, 1800, by Col. Theodore Jones; this was the first marriage on Ellsworth town records.

Mrs. Maria Jellison died in Mariaville Jan., 1827, aged 77.

THE HONORABLE THOMAS DAVEE OF DOVER AND BLANCHARD, MAINE.

THOMAS DAVEE was one of the early settlers in Piscataquis County and, in a business point of view, the Founder of the Town of Dover. He was the son of Soloman and Jedidah (Sylvester) Davie, of Plymouth, Mass, born there Dec. 9. 1797. After arriving at the age of twenty-one years he went to Hebron, Me., where he married Ruth Barrows. He moved to what is now Dover, in 1821-22. Loring's history of Piscataquis County, page 53, says: "in 1821 Thomas Davee put up a store and Potash factory, and commenced to trade in 1822." He was the first merchant in the town. The first deed of land I find to him on

The first of these was the discovery of gold in California in 1848. This led to a great influx of people to the West, and the discovery of gold in Colorado in 1859. The discovery of gold in California led to the California Gold Rush, which began in 1848 and lasted until 1852. the records of Penobscot County, which then included Piscataquis County, was from Stephen Young of Dover, Aug. 4, 1823, of Lot No. 13, R. 4, Vol. 9, Page 437.

Another deed was from Abraham Moore, of Dover, Oct. 7, 1824, of the N $\frac{1}{2}$ of village lot No. 2, Adams' survey, for \$305. This lot was on the bank of the river below where the Brown Manufacturing Company's mills are now. Davee built mills there which were carried away in a freshet in the spring of 1830. He was part owner in other mills. He was at one time the largest land owner in Dover except the Proprietors. More than fifty deeds to and from him are on the records prior to 1833. He had large interests with the Vaughn's and Charles Blanchard, of Portland. He was for several years the most conspicuous citizen of the town. Representative 1826, 1827. Senator 1830, 1831, 1832 and 1833. May 4, 1832, he sold Edward R. Favor No. 10 and 11 village lots for \$1,300, his wife, Ruth (Barrows), signed the deed. This was probably his homestead, where Favor afterward kept an Inn. March 9, 1833, he sold Jonathan A. Smith, Physician, village lots No. 18 and 19 for \$700; wife Ruth signed the deed. Prior to this time he had sold considerable other real estate in the town. April 29, 1833, as "of Blanchard" he sold Jessie L. Tarbell, of Solon, several lots of land in Dover for \$800. Mar. 12, 1831, he and Charles Blanchard bought township No. 3, R. 3, in Somerset County, for \$400, and March 17, it was incorporated into a town named Blanchard. Davee moved his family there between March 9 and April 29, 1833. The company bought and rebuilt mills and commenced large operations which were for a time successfully carried on. He was Representative in 1835 and was elected Speaker of the House. He was appointed Sheriff of Somerset County, Feb. 24, and resigned the office of Speaker Feb. 26, Jonathan Cilley of Thomaston, being elected in his stead. He was Representative to Congress, 1837-38. Piscataquis County was incorporated March 23, 1838, and Blanchard included therein. He was elected Senator in 1841, and died on his birthday, Dec. 9, 1841 (gravestone). In the Senate Jan. 19, 1842, Thomas S. Pullen, who had been elected to fill the vacancy, introduced resolves relating to the late Senator-elect, Thomas Davee, one of which says

“he presented an eminent instance of the successful performance of high and difficult trusts, and never fell short of the hopes of his friends. He was courteous, affectionate and pure.”

He was the most popular man in the Democratic party in the Eastern part of the State, and perhaps in the whole State, and had he lived would probably have been elected Governor. He was an admirable presiding officer and possessed uncommon tact and good judgment. He was not a man of much speech, but in his sphere no man in the State had more influence.

The first part of the history of the world is the history of the human race. It is a history of progress and of the struggle for existence. It is a history of the triumph of the good over the evil, and of the ultimate victory of the human spirit over the forces of nature and of the devil.

The second part of the history of the world is the history of the human mind. It is a history of the development of the human intellect, and of the discovery of the laws of nature and of the human soul. It is a history of the triumph of the human mind over the forces of ignorance and of superstition.

The third part of the history of the world is the history of the human heart. It is a history of the development of the human emotions, and of the discovery of the laws of love and of the human soul. It is a history of the triumph of the human heart over the forces of selfishness and of hatred.

The fourth part of the history of the world is the history of the human will. It is a history of the development of the human character, and of the discovery of the laws of duty and of the human soul. It is a history of the triumph of the human will over the forces of weakness and of sin.

The fifth part of the history of the world is the history of the human soul. It is a history of the development of the human spirit, and of the discovery of the laws of God and of the human soul. It is a history of the triumph of the human soul over the forces of the devil and of the world.

The sixth part of the history of the world is the history of the human body. It is a history of the development of the human physical nature, and of the discovery of the laws of health and of the human body. It is a history of the triumph of the human body over the forces of disease and of death.

The first part of the paper discusses the theoretical background of the proposed method. It is shown that the proposed method is a special case of the generalized likelihood ratio test (GLRT) for testing the equality of two covariance matrices. The second part of the paper discusses the asymptotic properties of the proposed method. It is shown that the proposed method is asymptotically unbiased and efficient. The third part of the paper discusses the finite sample properties of the proposed method. It is shown that the proposed method performs well in finite samples. The fourth part of the paper discusses the application of the proposed method to the analysis of variance (ANOVA) data. It is shown that the proposed method is applicable to ANOVA data. The fifth part of the paper discusses the simulation results of the proposed method. It is shown that the proposed method performs well in simulation. The sixth part of the paper discusses the conclusion of the paper. It is shown that the proposed method is a promising method for testing the equality of two covariance matrices.

BLUE HILL, 14th May, 1790.

The foregoing Valuation is as near the matter for the present time as we can make it but as no Valuation has even been taken of the Town before this one and there being 3 State Assessments, one in each of the two years past and one in 1786, the Town having undergone considerable alteration within that time, we conceive it necessary to make the following alterations in this Valuation, viz. :

1st. As the law provides for the aged and infirm as to their paying Taxes we think in justice that Capt'n Peter Parker, sen'r, and Mr. Ezekiel Osgood, sen'r, should be abated their Pole Taxes.

2d. The State Tax No. 5 being so far abated by the Gen'l Court as to become useful to every individual in the Town from this time that we cannot conceive it any injustice to Tax all those persons now inhabitants of the Town who were not present at the time the Valuation should have been taken, also all those who were not of age at that time and are now. But as the first mentioned persons have or are liable to pay the aforesaid Tax and those who were not of age would not have paid any part of it should be abated half their Pole Tax. They are as follows :

John Roundy, jun'r,	John Peters for his son John,
Jonathan Crabb,	John Wight,
Edw'd Carleton,	Daniel Osgood for his boy,
Phinehas Pilsbury,	John Gibson,
Asa Clow,	Eben Floyd,
Robert Parker for 2 boys,	Jonathan Clay for his son John,
Reuben Dodge,	Daniel Faulkner,
	Ezra Parker.

3d. It being very difficult to ascertain exactly how much mowing, pasturing and stock each one had at the time the Valuation should have been made and it is natural to suppose each have risen in some proportion one with another, we shall therefore only allow for such buildings as we know have been erected since and the conveyance of real estate which are as follows, viz. :

James Candage, Barn to be taxed for 1790.
 John Roundeys, do. for 1789 & 1790.
 Jon'a Crabb, land & Cows for 1790.
 John Candage, Barn for 1789 & 1790.
 Phinehas Pilsbury, Tan House, do. & 1787.
 Do., House, 1790.
 Capt'n Jos. Wood, sen'r, for half his House & $\frac{2}{3}$ his Barn till 1790.
 Peter Parker, jun'r, new Barn for 1790.
 Jed'h Holt, part of Saw Mill for do.
 John Peters, new Barn, 1789 & 1790, his part of the Saw Mill, 1790.
 John Wight, Cow, do.
 Phin. Osgood, part of Saw Mill, do.
 John Gibbson, real & personal estate for 1790, except 20 Acres wild land sold Dan'l Osgood.
 Jos. Wood, jun'r, House & Barn for 1790, $\frac{1}{3}$ his father's house & $\frac{1}{3}$ of his barn till 1790.
 Sam'l Coggins, House and Hovel for 89 & 90.
 Jonath. Clay, Barn for '90.
 Eben'r Hinckley's do. '90.

Nehemiah Hinkley, do. '90.

John Randal's estate till 1790, after which only 50 acres of Wild land & £6, 2, 3 of saw mill.

Dan'l Osgood, to have added to his 20 Acres Wild land for 1790.

Deduct 75 dollars from Carlton's mill till 1790.

4th. Those persons who were not in the Town the 1st of May, 1788 & 1789, and those who were not of age at that time not to pay anything towards Tax No. 6 & No. 7 except they had real or personal estate within the Town.

The Poles & the time they are to pay Taxes for are as follows, viz. :

Isaac Abbot for 1789 & 1790,	Jonathan Clay for his son, 1790.
William Scott for 1790,	Dan'l Spofford for 1789 & 1790.
Robt. Parker for 2 boys, 1790,	Moses Fry for 1789.
Reuben Dodge, 1789 & 1790,	Zach. Fry, do.
John Gibbson, do.	Joseph Herrick, do.
Eben Floyd for 1790,	Benj'a Friend, 1790.

Tax No. 5.	Poles 58.	Valuation £4585, 8, 9.	(Year 1786.)
Tax No. 6.	Poles 61.	Valuation £6264, 7, 6.	(Year 1788.)
Tax No. 7.	Poles 67.	Valuation £6328, 12, 6.	(Year 1789.)
Tax No. 8.	Poles 70.	Valuation £6672, 8, 6.	(Year 1790.)

THE MAINE HISTORICAL MAGAZINE.

A MONTHLY.

VOL. IX. BANGOR, ME., JULY, AUG., SEPT., 1894. NOS. 7, 8, 9.

JOURNAL THROUGH PART OF MOUNT DESART. 1768.

BY JOSEPH CHADWICK.

In 1762 the General Court granted the Island of Mount Desart to Governor Francis Bernard, who visited the Island in October of that year, and took with him Nathan Jones, a surveyor. He soon erected houses and wharves at S. W. Harbour and built dams and mills at several places. In 1768 he sent Joseph Chadwick, a famous surveyor, to explore the Island. His Journal is in the "Bernard papers" in the Sparks Collection in Harvard College Library. Mr. Chadwick's plans, unfortunately, cannot be found.

Mr. E. W. Hamor of West Eden has added some notes.

A.

"From Plot A¹ by the Cove to West Sandy Point², the land is nearly level or rising with an easy ascent from the water from 5 to 15 chains backwards and is a fertile soil, having a few small stones, trees mostly large white birch and large alders; which is a good tract of land for settlement. Backwards from these lands on more rising ground the soil is more gravelly and stony having a large quantity of small spruces and hemlock trees growing on it. Up the Sound³ on a few Brooks (1—2—3—4) are some small plots of land of 3 to 6 acres each of good land. On 5 the land is good for pastures, etc⁴. 7—By the shore a good place for settlements. Westerly of the Sound the land is but

1. "Plot A" is evidently land lying between Norwood's Cove and the mouth of the Sound.

2. "West Sandy Point" is the Fernald farm on the west side of the Sound, at its mouth.

3. On the easterly side of the Sound.

4. Must be at the head of the Sound, where E. E. Baldwin now lives.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

Very truly yours,

rough broken by ponds and mountains which makes it not practicable for laying out roads or farms⁷."

A Pond near two miles in length and at the southerly end the mountains appear like the Sound. It empties itself into a good stream which is fit for a corn mill.⁸

X.

A quarry of gray stones about 8 and 10 inches in thickness which are of a good kind for the foundation of buildings. Stones on the mountains are of a varicose kind appearing like gravel intermixed with some particles of ising glass and in the swamps a dark blue and a finer color⁹.

Y.

A quarry of stone of a marvel kind, a good white and mostly shaded with red but find no part of the superface sound enough for slabs.⁹

B.

A tract of land pleasantly situated between two ponds north and south level. East and west an easy decent to the ponds. The soil a light brown earth which appears to be of a better kind. a gravelly bottom, and has such stones as are fit for wal'd fences. A very thick growth of large yellow birch and maple trees. Little or no underbrush¹⁰.

30—31. This plot is divided by a small hill and a cedar swamp. Contains about 600 acres by estimation, all of which is good land for farms having a good outlet for cattle; and many good tracts of land for pasturing, * * * a cleared about 3-4 of a mile the ground would be level enough for one man to view another in any part. That a passage may made from these lands to Bass Harbor marshes by water in pond (?) between the mountains and from thence by a road to the marshes¹¹, at figure 45¹².

C.

A tract of good marsh containing by estimate 10 acres and may be cut on it 12 loads of salt hay¹³.

39. A tract of broken marsh of about 3 acres. These marshes have been improved by John Roberson, settled on an Island in the neighborhood¹⁴.

40. A point of good land for one farm.

41. On this cove are sundry small plots of salt marsh. The whole may be estimated at 5 acres and 4 loads of hay. Has been improved by Ebenezer Herrick of Naskeag.¹⁵

42. Upland that may be improved for tillage and grass.

7. Probably Somesville.

8. Must be Denning's Pond, now Echo Lake.

9. Ledges on the west side of the Sound.

10. Beech Hill, between Denning's and Great Ponds.

11. Now called Carter's Nubble, cedar swamp south of it; other plots are at the extreme northerly part of Beech Hill. A road running N. and S. along the top of Beech Hill would be very level for a mile; the pond is Great Pond, lying west of Beech Hill.

12. One of the marshes at Bass Harbor.

13. Mitchell's Marsh, W. of Bass Harbor.

14. Probably owned now by Dr. ——— Watson.

The first part of the year is the first half of the year, and the second part of the year is the second half of the year.

D.

A tract of upland about 1-2 mile in breadth laying N. Easterly of the marshes which may be improved for English grass¹⁶.

43. Opposite this land on the southerly side of the marshes a smaller tract equally land¹⁷.

44. Round this shore are a few ranges of good land, but the interior is a morass¹⁸.

45. Towards the head of the marshes * * * is a tract of 1000 acres of low level land. Soil a yellow earth in some places sandy, scarce any stones, having a thick growth of small spruce; in the swamp parts the bottom is a hard black mud of two feet in depth covered with moss and a thick growth of cedar. The River is headed by streams falling off the large mountain on which are sundry good tracts of upland; up the larger branches of the marsh river * * * the marshes are wet which if drained and cleared these marshes might be improved for cutting large quantities of Salt Hay.¹⁹ Remarks: that the salt marsh at Bass Harbor are harmed by the saw mill Dam which was an idle piece of work by not making the flume large enough for the flood tide to enter and flow to its usual hight. And the Ebb tide with freshets kept on the marshes a longer time than is natural by the narrow passage out at the floom which causes a decay of grass on the low marshes. But the greater damage is that the tide being obstructed from flowing to its usual hight causes the growing of wild grass, reeds, briars, &c. Round the Shore Part of these marshes have been improved by Shadrick Watson, John Black, Ebenz'r Harrick and others of Naskeag in the township No. 4. As is said they cut 25 load of hay last year and are some of them mowing the same ground this year.

E.

Goose Marsh so called lays in a long narrow range round the shore from one to seven rods in breadth, and is by estimate 5 acres of a good kind of marsh and may be cut six loads of hay on it which has been improved by Flye of Naskeag.²⁰

36. A good plot for a tide mill. Up this Harbor the channel has many turns and points of rocks.²¹

37. This peninsula is a level ground having sundry ranges of good land through it.²²

15. Probably a little N. of Goose Cove, Tremont.

16. Between Bass Harbor Marshes and S. W. Harbor.

17. High ridge of land east side of Bass Harbor.

18. Land near the shore from Bass Harbor Head to easterly to the sea wall; the morass is the large swamp lying between the east side of Bass Harbor and the New-man (?) settlement at S. W. Harbor.

19. Between the head of Bass Harbor Marshes and the mountain, embracing the lands where Mr. Levi Lurvey now lives.

20. Goose Marsh on the west side of the Island near the northerly part of Bartlett's Narrows.

21. The outlet of Goose Marsh. There has been a tide mill there in the past.

22. Point lying between Pretty Marsh and Goose Marsh on the east, and Bartlett's Narrows on the west.

F.

Pleasant Marsh laying in one body, a small Creek in the middle and a level shore round it contains about 18 acres of good salt marsh on which may be cut 20 loads of hay.²³ Has been improved in 1767 by Job Wells and George Goodwin of Naskeag, and this year 1768 by Wood and others of Blue Hill Bay. Remarked; that the contention amongst the people living on the main for the marshes on Mount Desert is so warm that they began on the 15th August to forelay one another; cutting the grass so out of season is a great damage to the marsh.

G.

North West Cove is a good tract of land, soil a good brown earth, in some parts sandy, having a good growth of Oak and white pine timber on it but most of the timber near the shore has been cut and carried away by strangers not only by people living on the main land, but as is said sundry vessels from the westward have loaded with staves, shingle bolts, &c. Upwards on the brook are alder swamps, meadows and uplands fit for improvements²⁴.

About 5 acres of Good marsh on which may be cut 6 Load of hay—has been improved by Stephen Hutchinson of Oak point in No. 1 as is Said he has erected 3 Stack yards on the marsh and brought over his Cattle to Spend the hay on the Ground. All which is an incumbrance on the marshes. Northerly from the marshes 5 or 8 Chains through a thick growth of alders, white birch and large blue jointed grass on a good soil of black mould which may make good mowing land. From thence Northerly towards Letter N is a level Land But find it divided by narrow ranges of 1 to 5 Changes of rough land, soil, gravel and white Sand. Growing on it white birches. Again ranges of about the same breadth of Alder Swompes Growing in them a large Growth of blue jointed Grass and a deep mud bottom which if Cleared up would be a Good Land for grass &c. That as these Lands lays round a Harbour near the narrows or main Land all which makes it a Valluable tract of Land for a Settlement.²⁵

N.

A plot of salt marsh estimated at 12 acres and may be cut on it 14 loads of hay; has been improved by Capt. (Nathan) Jones.²⁶

P.

North East Marshes; On this river are sundry tracts of broken marsh of about 12 or 15 acres and may be cut on it 10 loads of hay.

23. Must be Pretty Marsh lying south of Goose Marsh and outlets towards the south.

24. N. W. Cove on the N. W. part of the Island about three miles southwesterly from M^r. Desert bridge.

25. On the N. side of Clark's Cove and extending northerly on the Western Bay to the Bridges.

26. Now known as Jones' Marsh lying on the north part of the island about one mile easterly from the bridge.

The first part of the book deals with the early years of the Republic, from the signing of the Constitution in 1787 to the end of the War of 1812. It covers the presidencies of George Washington, John Adams, and James Madison, and the development of the federal government and the states.

The second part of the book covers the period from 1812 to 1848, including the presidencies of James Monroe, James Madison, and James Monroe again. It discusses the War of 1812, the Louisiana Purchase, and the expansion of the United States into the West.

The third part of the book covers the period from 1848 to 1861, including the presidencies of James K. Polk, Zachary Taylor, and Andrew Jackson. It discusses the Mexican-American War, the Texas Annexation, and the growing tensions between the North and the South.

Near these Marshes are sundry small alder swamps, which if cleared would be good for meadows.²⁷

14. A large morass.

15. On the southerly branch of the river are sundry small meadows and good alder swamps, by following the small brooks up the hills find many of them end in a level morass, and the larger mountains terminate in a pyramid of rocks.

16. On the northerly layer branch of the river about $\frac{3}{4}$ mile lays one of the most valuable tracts of land for grass &c.

The river is about 40 or 50 feet in breadth a deep mud bottom running very Crooked having many branches edged round with large alders which makes it difficult to pass through it or discover the form of it. To make a Survey of these Lands would be a work of time. Those parts of these Entervale Lands that are open from alder bush there grows a thick rank blue jointed Grass of 4 feet in hight. And the best of the Land is covered with alder brush &c., in many parts if cleared up the land would be dry enough for English Grass.

17. Lays about 18 acres of open meadow on which may be cut 25 load of hay. By a small expence in Clearing the meadow There may double the quantity of hay Cutt. This meadow is improved by Capt. Jones.

18. On the Northerly part of this tract appers like morass land and the Southerly meadow Land. Has two outlets where the water is Confined by bever Dams as there are many Beavers now in the pond. The Westerly Cave Dam is 120 feet in Length and 4 feet in hight now flowing 100 acres of land.

Remarks: That this river has near the mouth sundry bars of rocks and mud bottom which maks it not Navigable for any Vessel larger then Smal Gundelow. That it may require Sundry bridges for passing to and from the Entervale Land. That the blue jointed Grass now growing on the Land which is said to be a good fodder for cattle, But when Cut 2 or 3 year it Declines and Coms to a Short Coarse wild grass which is a bad fodder for Cattel.²⁸

Z.

A Stream large enough for a Saw mill But no Good harbour near the stream. The shore is Mountainous Rough lands which Continue from the Shore up the stream $\frac{3}{4}$ of a mile which is not practicable for Roads &c. A good tract of Land well timbered.²⁹

27. N. E. Marshes River now known as N. E. Creek. The main stream rises in the mountains near the Young settlement in Eden, near Eagle Lake and empties into the Bay near Thomas's Islands about $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the bridge. The main branch is formed by many brooks which rise among the hills, some being more than a mile long before uniting with the main stream. There must be 1500 or 2000 acres of land drained by N. E. Creek and its tributaries.

28. 14, 15, 16, 17, 18 are all situated on this stream and its branches. The Westerly Cove, Beaver Dam, was on the main stream near Mr. Richard Paine's, and the bridge across the stream is called the Beaver Dam Bridge. The other Beaver Dam was across the small stream near Gideon Li-comb's at the outlet of his meadow. There are beavers on the Island now. Blue Joint Grass has all died out.

29. Z, I think Duck Brook outlet $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles northwesterly from Bar Harbor.

M.

Up a Smal Cove³⁰ Being a good harbour is a Smal tract of Good land, having good Oak and white pine timber Growing on it.

There is now laying on the ground a quantity of pine timber lately hewed.³⁰

K.

A large tract of Good Land near level or rising with an easy ascent from the Shore $\frac{3}{4}$ of a Mile towards the mountain.

Soil a brown low Earth, few Stones larger than Gravel Stones. Trees are mostly white pine of the larger Growth and other Sorts of Timber. And is a Valuable tract of Land for Tillage. Through this tract of land Runs a Mill Stream which is the place Capt. Jones proposes to Build a Saw mill for the Governour.

From a Smal Harbour at Good Landing and level land about 10 Chains The stream is narrowed to little more than the Breadth of a mill by which the Dam may preformed with a Smal Expence. Above the Dam is a large Swomp which may make a good fore pond of water. The land is Level and Good for Conveying Logs to the Mill plott on which there is a large quanety of white pine Timber of a Good Sort. Some objections may be made to this Stream viz.: That the Stream is not large enough to keep a Saw Mill Going the year Round But only During the time of freshets.

That the Harbour is Smal and laying in that part of the Island towards the open Sea—Vessels may be in Danger in bad wather.

But (is said) a Vessel from the westward lay in this Harbour last winter while her Crew made Shingles on Shore.³¹

W.

There is a Large meadow near this Stream But by having Miss information Spent Several days in looking for it in the Northerly part of the Island and Could not find it. I have Since ben informed by Capt. Jones that the meadow lays at Letter W. which he saith is a good large meadow Surficent to kepe any team that may be Employed at the mill &c.³².

H.

This Stream³³ has Good falls and other Conveneney for Building a Mill But as the water rises and falls very quick after a rain which makes it unfett for building a Saw mill.

8. On the above Stream layes a Good tract of Land Ranging N. E. and S. W. between the mountains. Soil a fine black Earth and as the Ground rises towards the mountains the Soil is Brown, Yalow and Gravely. In sum parts may be maid tellege Lands having but a few Stons.

30. Hull's Cove.

31. Probably Bar Harbor. The mill stream on which Capt. Jones "proposed to build a mill for the Governour" I think is Cromwell's Harbor Brook, a very little southerly of Bar Harbor. It empties into Cromwell's Harbor which is small.

32. I cannot locate.

33. This stream is evidently other stream at the southeast part of the Island.

Trees a thick Groweth of birch, beech and maples, little or no Under brush.³⁴

9. Small tracts of meadow Lands.³⁵

The Stream where the Saw Mill is to Stand that is now removing from Bass Harbour.³⁶

47. Marsh that is improved by Somes.

48. About 3 acres of Cows meadow.

49. A Large Morass.³⁷

PETITION TO THE GENERAL COURT FROM BLUE HILL
IN 1785.

The Honourable Senate and House of Representatives in General Court Assembled:

The Petition of the Proprietors now Residents In a Township called No. 5, on Blue hill Bay In the County of Lincoln and Commonwealth of Massachusetts Humbly Sheweth—That in the year 1762 the Governor and Council and House of Representatives then in General Court assembled made a formal Grant of six Townships to David Marsh and others of one of which Towns your Petitioners are Original Proprietors and Agreeable to said Grant we came into the wilderness upon the Incouragement thereby given In the years 1763 and 1764 In order to fulfill the conditions of Said Grant and accordingly have fully satisfied the conditions of said Grant, except the settling of a Minister and we have had 20 years quiet and Peaceable Possession, and further after we had been Settled here some time, the Grant not being confirmed by the King, the Governor and Council was pleased to Issue a Proclamation for the encouragement of such Inhabitants as had Settled In those Towns In order to fulfill the conditions of said Grant, Viz. :—

In the year 1768 said Proclamation was Issued Declaring the Intention of the then Province of Massachusetts to protect and defend the said Lands to the Proprietors settled under the said Grant, upon which we went on with courage, the Houses being built and the land Cleared, which was required to fulfill the conditions of said Grant, and we find his Excellency the Governor and Council willing to assist us In every thing that was reasonable, that Lay In their power to Promote the Settlement of the Wilderness Country, and as they Declared their Intention to Defend us against all other claims to this Part of the 34. Land on both sides of Otter Creek.

35. I cannot locate.

36. It may be the largest brook that empties into the Head of the Sound, known as the Doctor's Creek. There was a tide mill there more than 100 years ago.

37. 47, 48 and 49 I cannot locate.

Country, Especially that of the Earl of Sterling either by Patten or Grant from which we are sufficiently Defended by said Proclamation were that Every Proprietor should enjoy his rights and Privileges without any other Acknowledgement that the fulfilling the conditions of said Grant, and furthermore your Excellency and Honors can not be unacquainted with the great expense we have been at In Laying out these Townships. and the expense we have been at In trying to Procure the King's Approbation and likewise In fulfilling the conditions of said Grant—But perhaps this objection will be made by some that we have not fulfilled the conditions of said Grant in Every Particular, therefore we have forfeited our rights to said Lands. Answer. It is true we have not an ordained Minister. but we together with a class of People among us called Settlers have been at more expense that it would have been to have fulfilled the conditions of said grant In every Particular. Provided his Majestyes Royal approbation had been obtained and the non-Resident Proprietors had come and settled when we did. For we have built a Suitable house of Publick Worship and have hired Preaching Every Summer for Seventeen years, Except In the time of the late war, and a school master every Winter, Built Bridges, cleared and maintained Publick Roads through the Town all which expence has been Bourne by us and that class of People call'd Settlers residing among us. Wherefore we trust that on a full Examination of the Matter it will appear to the Honourable Court that our title is good and valid, therefore we Pray your Honours to Remit or Discharge us of that Part of the Thousand Pounds which is laid upon us by a Resolve of the Court Passed the 17th of March 1785 or otherwise confirm us as your Honours In your Great Wisdom and regard to justice shall see fit—as In duty bound shall ever pray.

THE BANGOR HOUSE IN LONDON, ENG:—In "The Highway of Letters, by Thomas Archer," 1893, mention is made of the "Bangor House," in Shoe Lane, London, named after the house of the Bishop of Bangor, who had a town residence there till the time of Charles I. It was in existence during the last century.—

CHAPTER XIV. THE PRESENT POSITION OF THE UNITED STATES	255

The history of the United States is a story of growth and progress. It begins with the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus in 1492. The early settlements were established by European explorers and missionaries. The colonies grew and developed, and the struggle for independence led to the formation of the United States in 1776. The Constitution was adopted, and the Union was formed. The western explorations led to the discovery of gold and silver, and the movement of westward expansion. The Civil War was fought, and the Reconstruction Period followed. The United States grew and developed, and the progress of civilization was made. The present position of the United States is one of a great and powerful nation.

OLD TOWN VILLAGE, 1824.

BY DAVID NORTON, ESQUIRE, OF OLD TOWN.

Up to and including 1824 there were but nine dwelling houses within the limits of Old Town village, which included lots number twelve to eighteen by Holland's survey, and according to the best information now attainable they were erected in the following order :

1. Richard Winslow built the first house in 1798 for the use of his mill. The house now stands on the corner of Wood and Main streets, and is now owned by the "Bodwell Water Power Company."

2. William Dall built the second house in 1800, for the use of his mill at "Lower Old Town." It was torn down about 1860.

3. Jackson Davis then built a house next north of the "Wadleigh House" lot, which was moved away after the Wadleigh House was erected, and ultimately burned.

4. Abram Smith built a house as early as 1816, which was occupied as a public house, and for years was known as the "Green Tavern," owing to the color of the paint. It is now owned by E. A. Pond.

5. Abner Dearborn built a house in 1820 in connection with his tannery, which is now known as the "Old Town Exchange" and is the property of the Bowdell Water Power Company.

6. Daniel Davis built a house in 1822 on the corner of Brunswick and Davis streets. It is still owned by his descendants.

7. Richard H. Bartlet built the house in 1823 on the corner of Brunswick and Davis streets ; now owned by Hiram Smith.

8. Ira and Jesse Wadleigh built a house in 1823, which became famous all over the country as the "Wadleigh House." It was destroyed by fire in 1874.

9. Thomas Bartlett built a house in 1824, which he occupied as long as he lived, and which is now owned and occupied by E. W. Conant.

10. The school district erected a school house in 1824 on the west side of Main street. It was known and became famous in after years as the "Old Cradle of Liberty." It went out of use after 1849.

ROBERT McGLATHERY OF BRISTOL, ME.,

Came from Belfast, Ireland, prior to 1752, and settled at New Harbor, Bristol. He was a petitioner for a new county 1752. He married Polly Dobbin (?). He died 1768. Son Alexander was executor of his will Jan. 10, 1769; son William was appointed guardian of Sarah and Margaret, minor daughters. His descendants in female lines on Penobscot Bay and River are numerous and respectable; none more so. Children were:

- i. JANE, m. Joseph Eaton of Bristol, Feb. 28, 1769. Children:
 1. William Eaton.
 2. Joseph Eaton.
 3. Abigail Eaton.
- ii. WILLIAM, of Bristol, Camden and Frankfort.
- iii. ALEXANDER. Died at Pemaquid.
- iv. JOHN; m. ——— Little and lived at Newcastle.
- v. SALLY; m. Nathaniel Palmer of Bristol, published in Thomaston May 15, 1788, as "both of Camden."
- vi. PEGGY; m. Samuel Jacobs of Camden, pub. in Thomaston Mar. 17, 1789—his second wife. He was the first Representative to the General Court from Camden. He died Sept. 5, 1809. Children:
 1. Fred Jacobs; married Julia Cushing and settled in Limerick; returned to Camden and died 1834, aged 39.
 2. Samuel Jacobs, of Camden; lawyer, unmarried.
 3. Bela Jacobs, of Camden.
 4. Caroline Jacobs; m. Doctor J. H. Estabrook of Camden, 1823. He grad. W. C. 1818, settled in Camden 1821. He was President of the Maine Medical Society. 19 children.

WILLIAM McGLATHERY,

Of Bristol, Camden and Frankfort, son of Robert, born in Belfast, Ireland, about 1748, and came to this country about 1750 with his father and settled at New Harbor, Bristol. He was a man of great business capacity, merchant, mariner and fisherman. As a matter of fact in his time he was the most enterprising man in Bristol. He married Elizabeth Stinson of Rutherford's Island. He owned much real estate in Penobscot Bay.

"William McGlathery of Bristol, sold John Gilkey of Bristol, his interest or land situated and lying on Long Island (now Islesborough) in Penobscot Bay; 100 acres with dwelling house standing thereon; said tract of land lying on that part of the Island called Oak Point, Feb. 14, 1778."—Hancock Records, vol. V, p. 228.

During the Revolutionary war he and his vessel were captured by a British cruiser, and on the way to Halifax the captain of the

3.1. The structure of the boundary layer

The structure of the boundary layer is determined by the relative magnitudes of the Reynolds number Re and the Prandtl number Pr . For $Pr \ll 1$, the boundary layer is dominated by the convective term in the energy equation, and the temperature profile is linear. For $Pr \gg 1$, the boundary layer is dominated by the diffusive term in the energy equation, and the temperature profile is parabolic. In the present case, $Pr = 0.7$, and the boundary layer is dominated by the convective term. The velocity profile is linear, and the temperature profile is linear. The boundary layer thickness is given by $\delta \approx x^{1/2}$.

He was the principal citizen and selectman there for several years. He sold out in Camden* to John Pendleton of Islesboro, Dec. 15, 1797, for $1,297.00; wife Elizabeth signed the deed.

He bought as of Camden, Nov. 16, 1796, of John Cunningham of New Castle, $\frac{1}{2}$ acre of land in Frankfort, the other $\frac{1}{2}$ owned by Enoch Kingsbury, who owned $\frac{1}{2}$ of saw mill at Northern Stream at "Marshbee Bay."*

All have numerous descendants.

HOLMES' BAY, MACHIASPORT. The first house built at the Bay was built in 1784, about 110 years ago, by Jonathan Ackley. It is a small old-fashioned style house situated on Enoch's hill, overlooking the bay and surrounding country, and has always been occupied by descendants of the family, the present occupants being the grandson, Enoch and Hannah Ackley and their family. —Machias Union.

THE ABENAQUIS INDIANS.

As to the early Indian tribe which dominated Maine and Nova Scotia and its name, there is a great diversity of opinion among historical writers. It must be considered as settled that the Abenakis, otherwise Abenakies, Abenagues, Abenakis, Abenaki or Abnaki was the most ancient tribe.

I. Fr. Eugene Vetronile,* for years a Catholic priest at Old Town and a learned man in the Indian languages, says in substance: That the Abnakis never acknowledged any ancestral tribe, which is a proof of their antiquity. * * * The word Abnaki meant People of the East, and is spelled in the most ancient manuscripts, Abenakis, Abenagois, and Nabanki, which means, our ancestors of the East.

II. Frederick Kiddert† says all the tribes in Maine, New Hampshire and Nova Scotia were embraced under the name Abenakis.

III. Enoch Lincoln,‡ Governor of Maine, gave much time and study to the Indians of Maine. He says the Penobscot and Passamaquoddy Indians use the Abenakis dialect.

IV. Baron LaHontan,‡ an old writer, says: "The Abnakis Tribe is at the head of the tribes inhabiting Nova Scotia and that the quality of being a classic language belongs to them and not to the Algonquin Tribe, which is a small, miserable and wandering Tribe."

V. Fr. Sebastian Rasles, Catholic Priest at Norridgewock a great many years and who was killed there by the Colonial troops in 1724, called the Indians there the Abnakis.

VI. Bishop Fenwick§ of Boston, in his address, August 23, 1833, at the dedication of the monument erected in memory of Fr. Rasles at Norridgewock, said that Fr. Rasles was a missionary to the "Abenakis" for 34 years.

VII. The Very Rev. M. C. O'Brien of Bangor, who is probably the best French-Indian scholar in this state, says Abenakis is the French and Abenaki the English of the name. That is the whole story.

VIII. Judge John E. Godfrey* of Bangor, a great French and Indian student, says: "The Penobscot Indians were a clan of the Abenakis Tribe."

IX. Pierre Charlevoix, Catholic missionary in the 17th century, names the eastern Indians "Abenagues among whom were some Algonquins."

X. Gov. William D. Williamson† says the "Abenagues were the natives who lived between Penobscot and York." [Anciently Penobscot reached as far east as Mt. Desert.]

XI. General James Sullivan, 1795,‡ says "the Indians west of Sagadahoc were the Abenakis, and to the eastward Etchemins."

XII. William Willis* names them Abenaki and Abenagues, and says they lived between the Penobscot and the Piscataquis Rivers.

XIII. Rev. J. W. Hanson§ names them Abenakies, Abenagues and Abnakis, and says they occupied the present limits of Maine.

XIV. John G. Shea|| names them Abenakis or Tarentines.

XV. Gov. Thomas Hutchinson of Massachusetts, 1760, Abbe Raynal, Francis Parkman, Gov. Vaudreil¶ of Quebec, Gov. Shute of Massachusetts, 1722, J. Hammond Trumbull of Hartford, Conn., the eminent Indian historian, James P. Baxter of Portland, all name them Abenakis.

XVI. C. E. Potter†† of Manchester, N. H., a gentleman who has devoted much time to Indian lore, names them Abnagues.

OLD TOWN VILLAGE.—MARSH ISLAND.

John Marsh from Mendon, Mass., a soldier in the French War and also of the Revolutionary War, settled on Arumsunkhungan Island in November, 1777. July 8, 1783, he bought the whole island of the Indians for thirty bushels of good corn. His deed was witnessed by Jeremiah Colburn, another ancient settler and a man of integrity. The sale was not satisfactory to the tribe and the chiefs met at the house of Major Robert Treat in what is now Bangor and ratified the sale.

October 20, 1793, Mr. Marsh sent a petition to the General Court and asked that his purchase be confirmed to him. Mr. Marsh had been a valuable man in the Revolutionary War as an Indian interpreter and otherwise was of service. Land was cheap and the Court was well disposed toward old soldiers and the island was granted to him as follows :

“Resolve granting an Island in Maine to John Marsh, passed June 24, 1795.”

“On the Petition of John Marsh, of Marsh Island, in the County of Hancock, praying for compensation of said Island; Resolved, that all the right, title, interest, claim and estate which this commonwealth now have in and to the island aforesaid, encompassed by Penobscot River and its branches, near Indian Old Town, being the same island on which the said John Marsh now dwells, which contains about two thousand acres, be the same more or less, be and hereby is remised, released and forever quit claimed to the said John Marsh and to his heirs and assigns forever.”

DEEDS. I.

John Marsh of Marsh Island sold Doctor Elihu Dwight of South Hadley, Mass., June 4, 1796, for $1,100, “Part of the land I now live on beginning and bounding as follows : at a stake and stone on the east side of the Marsh Island and the most northerly part of the land which I now improve ; then run a due west line across said Island to the river ; thence northwesterly on the bank of the river to the most northwardly part of said Island ; thence southwardly as the river runs on the east side of said Island to the first mentioned bounds.” Wife Sarah signed the deed.*—Hancock Records, vol. 4, p. 112.

* Doctor Dwight immediately employed Park Holland of Belchertown, a famous surveyor, to lot out his purchase. Holland was a representative to General Court 1796-97-98 and other years. He settled in Eddington 1861; moved to Orono about 1824, and to Bangor 1842, where he died May 21, 1844. There was probably some business relations between Marsh and Holland and Dwight which are not recorded.

CHAPTER XXXV. THE CONSTITUTION OF 1787.

The Convention met on September 17, 1787, in Independence Hall, Philadelphia. It was composed of delegates from twelve states: Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Georgia, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Maryland. Rhode Island and New Jersey did not send delegates. The delegates were chosen by the legislatures of their respective states.

The Convention's task was to draft a new constitution for the United States. The delegates debated for several months, discussing the structure of the government, the powers of each branch, and the rights of the states. The final draft of the Constitution was completed on September 17, 1787, and signed by the delegates.

The Constitution established a federal government with three branches: the executive, the legislative, and the judicial. The executive branch is headed by the President, who is elected by the electors. The legislative branch is composed of the House of Representatives and the Senate. The judicial branch is headed by the Supreme Court. The Constitution also guarantees certain rights to the people, such as the right to a fair trial and the right to free speech.

The Constitution was ratified by the states in 1788. It became the supreme law of the land. The Constitution has since been amended several times, but the basic structure of the government remains the same. The Constitution is a cornerstone of American democracy and has shaped the course of the nation's history.

The Constitution is a living document that has evolved over time. It has been interpreted by the Supreme Court and has been amended by Congress. The Constitution is a source of pride for Americans and a symbol of the nation's commitment to liberty and justice for all.

III.

Doctor Elibu Dwight sold Park Holland "for good causes and good considerations" Lots No. 9, 10, 13, 14, 21, 22; Holland's survey on the east side of Marsh Island. July 28, 1797.

—Hancock Records, vol. 9, p. 294.

IV.

Doctor E. Dwight sold Seth Wright of Boston for $320 lots No. 11, 12, 19 and 20 on east side of Marsh Island, being part of the land bought of John Marsh (in June, 1796.) July 8, 1797.

—Hancock Records, vol. 5, p. 306.

V.

Park Holland sold Wm. Dall of Boston the Lots* he had of Elibu Dwight on the east side of Marsh Island by deed the present month. Aug. 16, 1797.—Hancock Records, vol. 5, p. 308.

VI.

Seth Wright of Boston sold Nathan Winslow of Falmouth, Lot on East side of Marsh Island No. 18, † 96 acres for $100. Sept. 7, 1802.

—Hancock Records, vol. 13, p. 366.

VII.

William Dall sold Joseph Treat and Daniel Webster $\frac{1}{4}$ of lot No. 14 East side of Marsh Island for \$427. The whole lot contained 122 acres. May 15, 1804.—Hancock Records, vol. 15, p. 358.

VIII.

Seth Wright sold Nathan Winslow of Falmouth, lot No. 17 E. side Marsh Island off against Indian Old Town, 123 acres and 120 rods. Sept. 12, 1804.—Hancock Records, vol. 17, p. 29.

IX.

William Dall sold Treat & Webster $\frac{2}{3}$ of lots No. 13 and 14 E. side of Marsh Island, also $\frac{2}{3}$ of saw mill. They mortgage back to Dall. May 3, 1806.—Hancock Records, vol. 19, p. 216.

X.

Nathan Winslow of Falmouth sold Jackson Davis, Merchant of Portland, land on Marsh Island nearly opposite Indian Old Town; beginning at the S W corner of lot No. 17; thence north northerly by the W line of lot No. 17 forty-four rods; thence easterly or east parallel with the south line of said lot until it comes within 37 rods of the bank

* The second saw mills were built about 1800-02 on a dam from the foot of Treat and Webster's Island to the main shore, on Lot No. 14, just below the M. C. R. R. station at Old Town. This mill was built by William Dall, Joseph Treat and Webster.

† Lots 17 and 18 were where the first saw mills were built on Old Town Upper Falls by Richard Winslow, son of Nathan Winslow, in 1798, so David Norton, the historian of Old Town, says. I find no deed on record to Richard Winslow prior to 1807, and conclude that he must have built the mills on his father's land. He appears to have been the first real settler. He was Justice of the Peace for the town of Orono 1806, and Superintending School Committee 1807-1808, and about this time moved to Westbrook.

MACHIAS ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

AN OLD ACCOUNT BOOK.

I suppose an old account book or ledger with its prosaic names, curious entries and antiquated spelling is calculated to afford but dry fodder to the average reader of today, but not long ago I stumbled upon a venerable relic of the early days of the lumbering interest in Machias, and derived no little satisfaction from a perusal of its time-yellowed pages. I look upon it with much the same tender reverence as that which fills me when I visit the graves of my forefathers. For what is this old ledger but a tomb wherein "the rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep?" Here are to be seen on some of its pages their own signatures in token of settlement of "accoumt," coupled in each case with that of the accurate book-keeper, whose hand has been mouldering in the village churchyard three quarters of a century at least. In this simple record of debits and credits, what histories of hard toil and stern privation appear!

On July 11, 1804, Mr. Abijah Foster is charged with a bushel of

* This house was for many years one of the most famous hotels in Maine. It was burned in 1874.

† The lot the Wadleigh House stood on. The first lot of land that Ira Wadleigh purchased in Eastern Maine was May 15, 1823.

The year 1811 was marked by a series of events that shaped the course of American history. In the north, the War of 1812 had just begun, and the British were making significant gains. In the south, the Creek War was in progress, and the United States was struggling to maintain its control over the region. The year also saw the beginning of the Second Great Awakening, a period of religious revival that would have a profound impact on American society.

The year 1812 was a pivotal year in American history. It was the year that the United States declared war on Great Britain, leading to the War of 1812. The war was fought over a number of issues, including British interference with American trade and the impressment of American sailors. The war ended in a technical draw, but it had a profound impact on the young nation, leading to a renewed sense of national identity and the emergence of a new generation of leaders.

The year 1813 was a year of continued conflict and struggle for the United States. The War of 1812 was still in progress, and the British were making significant gains in the north. In the south, the Creek War was still ongoing, and the United States was struggling to maintain its control over the region.

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

The history of the United States is a story of a young nation that grew from a small colony to a powerful superpower. It is a story of struggle and triumph, of hope and despair. The United States has been shaped by the actions of many great men and women, and it continues to be shaped by the actions of the people who live in it today. The history of the United States is a story that is still being written, and it is a story that is worth knowing.

corn at 14 shillings, or $2.33. Why, on that same summer morning Alexander Hamilton fell before the murderous pistol of Aaron Burr. This reads like ancient history now.

Turn the page. Another worthy citizen is charged with a "kanteen" of rum. 6 shillings, $1. Doubtless he carried his purchase home as unconcernedly as one of his descendants would now tote through the streets a jug of vinegar or a can of coal oil. I suspect there were few in those years who did not use liquor of all kinds freely.

Another is credited with four days sawing (in the mill) at 10-6 per day, $7. Fair wages? Yes, but look at the cost of living. It appears that our great grandfathers had to pay 90 cents for molasses, 25 cents for sugar (brown, very brown at that), $1.50 for tea (not Formosa or Imperial, either), $1 for oil, 25 cents for pork, and, as indicated above, $2.33 for corn per bushel. This was their only bread. Wheat flour is nowhere mentioned. Very likely large families grew up, not a member of which ever tasted of white bread. A pair of cow-hide boots cost $5.00, a pair of suspenders $2.00, a half dozen buttons were 21 cents, and sewing silk was nine pence a skein. But as West India rum was only $2 a gallon, N. E. rum $1.16, brandy $2.25, tobacco 25 cents per pound and cigars a cent apiece, their lot might to some people seem to have been quite an endurable, if not, indeed, an enviable one.

Quaint old volume, I would that you could break the silence and tell us all about those "good old times," ere yet Mechisses had put off her swaddling clothes!

There was not one of the first settlers or their sons with whom you were not on familiar footing—the O'Briens, the Libbees, the Longfells, the Talbots, Fosters and Munsons—you knew them all. Up and down your neatly ruled pages most of them have cast their anxious eyes and run their unsteady hand, trembling lest the balance might prove to be on the wrong side for them. What confidential talks you have heard between the old lumber merchant and his lieutenant! What sage discussions of citizen millmen and farmers over Jefferson's second election, or the crime of Aaron Burr; what violent debates over the claims of the "standing order," the "new lights," the "come-outers," or the "heterodox" Methodists and Baptists! All that is past now. The river rushes down to the tide, the tide ebbs and floods as of yore. The green wooded hills and deep blue skies above them remain, but all else is changed. Not a man, old or young, that ever had any business with you but has been dust for more than sixty years.

It would be no easy task to present an accurate picture of the Machias of a century ago, when this book was acknowledged by a whole community as a thing to swear by—or swear at, as the case might be. But let us leave our antiquated and tongue-tied friend on the shelf for a time, and glance at the old town as it was when this century was in the bud.

At the foot of Main street was Bowles wharf, which covered the landing place of the original colony. The wharf was at this time in a dilapidated condition, as also was the store of Stephen Jones, which stood upon it. Up the river a little farther was a similar establishment owned by Stephen Smith, and on the same side of the street John Keely

It covers the early years of settlement, the struggle for independence, the formation of the Constitution, and the development of the nation as a great power. The second part of the book is devoted to a detailed history of the United States from 1789 to the present time. It covers the early years of the Republic, the struggle for the abolition of slavery, the Civil War, and the Reconstruction period. The third part of the book is devoted to a detailed history of the United States from 1865 to the present time. had a blacksmith shop. A few steps farther on a school house; next, a hut which sheltered an Acadian Frenchman. Blacksmith Keely lived across the road from here. Next above was the two story house occupied by Messrs. (Amos) Boynton and Longfellow; then Stephen Smith's, and next that the house of Hon. S. Jones, judge of all the courts. This place was afterwards owned by Capt. Jacob Longfellow, whose barn stood on the spot now occupied by the Court House, while Capt. Smith's barn occupied the present site of the Congregational Church on Centre street.

Benj. Wescott lived at this time in the house afterwards owned by Major Inglee. From a house near the end of the bridge Dr. (Parker) Clark was wont to issue forth on missions of healing. Dr. (William) Chaloner lived in a small house near that which Josiah Hall afterwards occupied. In the next one to that Mr. (Samuel) Ellis kept a tavern. In those days a small wooden jail was found sufficient for the purposes of law and order, and near it was a ramshackle old building in which lived the famous Talitah.

R. H. Bowles was postmaster and town clerk. He lived where the Stephen Bowles' house was afterwards erected. Gen. John Cooper (at that time sheriff) occupied a small house on the Dea. (John) Crocker place. Near by was Mr. Prescott's small house. Phinehas Bruce, the only lawyer in the county, had the place afterwards known as Mrs. Wetherbee's.

Then came Wm. Albee, Jonathan Longfellow, Ellis Smith's house and store. Where Libby Hall stands was Parson Lyon "hys meeting house." Not far from here Capt. Longfellow's mother lived, he, himself, on the side of the hill lower down. Of all these houses two were painted red, the rest were not even lime-washed.

Now cross to Dublin side. We pass the saw-mills (double)—no such machinery as we see there now, and yet an enormous quantity of lumber was run off in those years. Not far from the bridge dwelt Capt. Gideon O'Brien, Capt. Elliott, Col. Jeremiah O'Brien and Morris O'Brien. Farther down the river we come to the two Meserveys, Deacon Libbee, Eben Gardner, Jacob Palmer and his sons.

Sam Cates lived at the end of the road where the toll bridge now crosses; John Day at the fork of the rivers.

The Port village comprised the families of Mr. (Matthias) Tobey and Mr. (Nathaniel) Phinney. Benj. Berry lived on the Peterson place lower down, John and Wm. Sanborn near the old fort. The Larrabees and Pettigroves were found at Larrabee's Cove, the Colbaths and Libbys at Buck's Harbor, and the Bryants and Millers at Little Kennebec.

Returning now to Machias village, we cross the bridge eastward to "Potato Point." Here dwelt Samuel Smith, in what is now called the Burnham house. Not far hence, on the "Connors place," lived one of Burgoyne's old soldiers by the name of Thorpe. Next came Hoyt, Seavey, Hanscom. (Aaron and Isaac) and Gen. (George) Stillman. This brings us to the "Rim." Here we find the humble farm houses of Abijah Foster, (son of Col. Ben) Josiah Harris and the widow (Rebecca) Avery.

In my last communication I took my reader around old Machias, and down to the Port and below, pointed out as nearly as I could locate them, the sites occupied by the original settlers and their immediate successors, and drew up finally at Abijah Foster's ranch at the "River."

Starting again at this point let us proceed up the river, threading our way along the margin where now we find at this day the "Moose Point" shipyard and the causeway just beyond. Two high wooded ridges meet at right angles here bending the river in its course from west to south. Where the two hills meet a road comes straight down, rough, steep and stony; always a famous place for coasting in winter. This was until recent years the county road and the only thoroughfare between the two villages.

A little to the westward of this road and toward the top of the hill stood the house of Samuel Scott, one of the pioneers of the place, the first white man in fact that ever ascended the river. His farm consisted of 250 acres of land, and the house, which was standing in 1795, was a one story affair with a long roof on the back side, much like the old colonial residences which may be seen to this day in Plymouth, Ipswich, and other primitive Massachusetts towns. It contained two large rooms and two, perhaps three smaller ones, none of which were plastered, yet eleven children grew up to stalwart, healthy manhood and womanhood under that roof. I think Mr. Scott died before the opening of the present century, when the writer of this article was a boy. An old resident pointed out to him a large oak tree which I believe may still be seen a few rods to the rear of Capt. Brown's residence. "Just at the foot of that big tree," he said, "is an old grave-stone lying flat upon the ground. Old Mr. Scott was buried there, and it has his name upon it."

A little farther up the river we cross the tract of land taken up and occupied by Joseph Munson. It contained the same number of acres as the rest and included what is now known as the "mountain." Mr. Munson had four sons, of whom the eldest, Stephen, built a house on the hill across the river and opposite his father, while Joseph, Jr., settled on what has since been known as the Crocker place.

Daniel Fogg's place next. His house was small and was located where Pearl Howe lived in later times. Mr. Fogg was killed while logging and some time afterward Samuel Rich married his widow and carried on the farm.

Passing on, we find no building of any sort until we reach the upper end of the village. On the site now occupied by Hon. J. R. Talbot stood his grandfather's large two story house built in 1772 and opened as a tavern. It was removed bodily a few years ago to give place to a more modern and elegant structure, but it still appears to look down in mild contempt upon newer houses, as if conscious that it is the oldest building left in town.

Who does not remember Peter Murphy, and his little store, and his house a few rods back upon the hill overlooking the logs, the piers, the bridge and the mills. Peter departed years ago, and the store passed into other hands and so did the house. The latter has put on glories never dreamed of in the olden times and sits upon the hill as a queenly summer villa. A hundred years ago Benjamin and John Gooch lived on

The author also discusses the Reconstruction period that followed the war, and the challenges that the South faced in rebuilding its society.

The third part of the book is a history of the United States from 1865 to the present. It covers the Gilded Age, the Progressive Era, and the modern era. The author discusses the rise of big business, the growth of the middle class, and the challenges of the Great Depression and World War II. He also discusses the civil rights movement and the social changes of the 1960s and 1970s.

the Murphy place and they had large families and their descendants are numerous. The Wescott Avery place was owned by Benjamin Gooch, Jr., Josephr Seavey, Sen., lived on the Lowry place. Several other small houses stood in that neighborhood and near Hadley's Lake, occupied by Scotts, Chases, Fenlasons and Seaveys.

As early as 1770 several houses were built and also a saw mill at what has since been known as "Chase's Mills." The place taken by a Quaker family, named Gardner, from Nantucket.

There were two Browns and a man by the name of (James) Huntley working there at that time. The Browns lived on the place since known as the Willow Farm; Huntley on the opposite side of the stream.

The Gardners hauled their boards, etc., through the woods to the cove, where Pope & Co's shipyard now is, and loaded them upon schooners at that place. This road, long known as the "Quaker road," could, until quite recent years, be plainly traced.

HISTORY OF BATH, MAINE.

A BOOK NOTICE.

A history of Bath, published by Parker McCobb Reed. 1894. Price $5.25. Mr. Reed has printed in these 526 pages a vast amount of historical lore of much interest. The biographical part is a wonder to non-residents. There are biographies of some persons belonging in the town, and some out of it, which are of but little consequence as a matter of history; while, of many of the famous ship builders who have made a name all over the world for themselves and Bath, there is only a casual mention. Prior to 1800, Dummer Sewall was the most eminent and well known citizen of the town; he receives only fragmentary mention. After Governor King, the most eminent citizen of Bath was Freeman H. Morse; I have not found him mentioned. I add some notes:

1. SOLOMON PAGE (page 287), minister of Bath. Grad. H. C. 1729, settled in Bath 1762, died 1788. He has descendants on Penobscot Bay.

2. JOHN BERNARD (page 366) was son of Sir Francis Bernard, Lieut. Gov. of Massachusetts 1760-99. John Bernard as of Bath was in right of his father a grantee of $\frac{1}{2}$ of the Island of Mt. Desert, June 23, 1755. He returned to England and died as Sir John Bernard. 1809.

3. ELISHA SHAW (page 307) was of South Weymouth, Mass. He married Susannah Clark of South Braintree, now Holbrook, Mass., Jan. 3, 1744, by Rev. Elisha Eaton, who afterward removed to Harpswell. Shaw moved to Georgetown, where he died 1775-6.

4. CHARLES CLAPP (page 309) was born Scituate, Mass., Mar. 16, 1774.

5. JOHN PETERSON (page 312) was son of Jonathan, of ———. He married there Sarah Hewett, Sept. 10, 1765.

6. ACTOR PATTEN (page 337) lived in Surry, not Sullivan.

7. ESTHER WHEELWRIGHT (page 350) was taken prisoner 1723-24. She was a sister of Mrs. Moody and was never married. She died in Quebec, 1785.

8. REV. FRANCIS WINTER (page 478-482). I have always understood that Mrs. John F. Anderson of Portland was his grand-daughter or great-grand-daughter.

SOLDIERS FROM LEE, PENOBSCOT COUNTY, IN THE WAR OF THE REBELLION.

BY MAJ. C. J. HOUSE, AUGUSTA, ME.

The following is a complete list of Lee men who served in the late war. It includes no residents of other towns who may have gone to fill that town's quota, but does include all who were actual residents of Lee at the time of their enlistment whether going for Lee or some other town. Keith and Moody were Province men who were making their home there as laborers. The fact that King was a resident of Lee has been questioned, but I have positive proof that he was living there with his family six months at least before he enlisted and the further fact that he was enrolled there as he was drafted from that town a few months after enlistment. All the others were well known old residents. The name, highest rank attained and the organization or organizations in which they served are given and the casualties, such as killed, wounded, died, prisoner, or died in prison, are all noted. This list has been made with the utmost care, not only by getting all the information possible from the records at Augusta but by personal interviews in most cases either with the soldier or his relatives and friends. I have been personally acquainted with every man on the list excepting Hanscomb, Keith, Moody and Whitney.

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

CHAPTER I. THE DISCOVERY OF AMERICA.

THE first discovery of America was made by Christopher Columbus in 1492.

He sailed from Spain on August 3, 1492, and after a long and dangerous voyage, he reached the island of San Salvador on October 12, 1492.

At first, Columbus thought that he had reached the Indies, but he soon discovered that he had found a new world.

His discovery opened up a new era of exploration and trade between Europe and America.

The first European settlement in America was founded by Juan Ponce de Leon in 1493.

He established the town of St. Augustine in Florida, which is now one of the oldest cities in the United States.

The discovery of America led to the great migration of people from Europe to America.

Many people came to America in search of a better life, and they found it.

The United States has since become one of the most powerful and prosperous nations in the world.

It has a rich and diverse culture, and it has made many contributions to the world.

The history of the United States is a story of courage, discovery, and achievement.

It is a story that has inspired people all over the world.

The United States is a land of opportunity, and it is a land that has made a difference in the world.

It is a land that has shown the world that a better life is possible.

Three residents of the town, Nelson O. Deering, Charles A. Cushman and James T Budge, put in substitutes. Frank Field of Lee went for Deering, but the other two were foreigners and are not enumerated in this list.

Walter Coffin, Jr., and John Tobin paid a commutation of $300 each.

Out of a population of 937 in 1860 there were 109 men entered the army from this town, 22 of whom re-enlisted for a second term. Three were promoted to commissioned officers and 18

PETITION OF JOHN BERNARD OF BATH, MAINE, RELATING TO MOUNT DESERT.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, 28 JAN'Y, 1785.

On the Petition of John Bernard, Praying for permission to take possession of the Island of Mt. Desert.

Whereas, the said John Bernard, as appears from ample Certificates Signed by many respectable persons, Subjects of this commonwealth, has conducted himself during the late War, uniformly unexceptionable, both in his political & moral conduct—and Whereas by an Act passed in the year 1778—which was several months after the Island of Mt. Desert was bequethed to the said John Bernard by his deceased farther Sir Francis—the said Island with the rest of the said Baronet's Estate laying within the Commonwealth was forfeited not withstanding he had left this State several years before the Commencement of Hostilities in 1775 x and this court considering the circumstances of the case, and commiserating the situation of the said John Bernard.

X and Whereas the said John Bernard as a residuary Legatee has been a great sufferer by the forfeiture of his Said Father's Estate :

Resolved, That John Bernard, have one full third part of the monie arising from the Sale of the Island of Mount Desert, for his own private use & benefit.

Resolved, That the Committee for Selling the Eastern lands be and they are hereby empowered and directed to Sell the Island of Mount Desert for Specie, or for the Securities of this Commonwealth: and they are hereby Ordered to pay one third of the nett amount of such Sale, unto the said John Bernard, whose receipt for the same shall be received of the said Committee by this States Treasurer, as so much in discharge with them,—and the Treasurer of the Commonwealth is hereby empowered to receive such receipt accordingly.

CITY POINT IN BANGOR.

The first settler on the lot at the junction of the Kenduskeag and Penobscot, northerly side, was Thomas Smart from Brunswick, 1771. Smart died in 1776, and his brother, John Smart, took the lot, and April 13, 1784, sold it to James Budge from Orrington, who moved on to it. Budge was an important man in the Plantation and Town. He was a merchant and perhaps kept a kind of inn, where he supplied the people on the river with rum.

BUDGE DEEDS.

I.

James Budge sold Robert Hichborn of Boston lot of 100 acres; beginning at a stake and stone between land formerly John Partridge, now in possession of John Smart, running N one mile W 50 rods; S one mile to Condeskeag stream; E 50 rods to first mentioned bounds. Mortgage £43.2s. July 13, 1792.—Hancock Records, vol. 1, p. 501.

II.

“James Budge of Bangor to John Lee of Penobscot for £272 mortgages land in Bangor, on which I now live, situated on the confluence of the Penobscot River and the Condukeag River, being the Point of land formed by the said Rivers, beginning at the S E corner of land of Nath'l Harlow; thence by water down the Condukeag stream and round the Point till it meets John Smart's land, running back on N course one mile and bounded westerly on Harlow and easterly on Smart being 50 rods across the Point in front. April 12, 1794.”

—Hancock Records, vol. 2, p. 411.

III.

“James Budge of Bangor sold William McGlathery of Frankfort, lot on Condeskeag Point, beginning at a stake on W bank of Penobscot River, running N 11 rods; thence (westerly) to corner; thence S 9 rods to stake and stone on same bank; then on western bank of river to high water mark 16 rods to first mentioned bounds. April 19, 1798.”

—Hancock Records, vol. 5, p. 354.

IV.

“James Budge sold John Peck of Boston land on the Point known as Budge's Farm; except one acre sold to William McGlathery April 19, 1778, and subject to a mortgage to John Lee for $272, with dwelling house, store and other buildings. Mar. 13, 1799. Wife Margaret signed the deed.”—Hancock Rec. vol. 6, p. 161.

This wound up Budge, who suffered by being “overcome with strong drink.”

John Peck sold out to Daniel Wilde and others Mar. 23, 1799.

Daniel Wilde sold to Zadok French of Boston 4, John Lapish of Bangor 4, and Amasa Stetson of Dorchester, Mass., 4.

By a Resolve of the General Court March 5, 1801, all settlers prior to Jan. 1, 1784, were entitled to a deed of their lots by paying $8.75cts. and all between Jan. 1, 1784, and Feb. 17, 1798, for $100 a lot.

Park Holland was appointed the surveyor to lay out the lots for settlers, which he did in 1801. This lot was No. 11 and contained 77 acres. Lapish, French and Stetson received a deed as assignees of the first settlers March 2, 1802.

The Proprietors employed Charles Bulfinch of Boston to lot out the land. He was the architect of the State House built in Boston 1798-99, and afterward architect of Maine State House 1829-30, and perhaps had something to do with the Capitol at Washington.

He completed his work and made his report Oct. 24, 1801-2. He laid out streets; Maine street now State street, York street, Hancock street, Washington street, Poplar street now Exchange street, Ash street now French street, Oak street, a part of which is now Oak street and a part Broadway, and Pine street.

JONAS BOND OF ROBBINSTON, died Sept. 13, 1841. His daughter Mira married Benjamin Shattuck and died Nov. 10, 1878, aged 78; daughter Nancy married George Fell (?) of Robbinston, his second wife. She died Jan. 28, 1882, aged 88. Dea. Benjamin Shattuck (Jr.) resides at Red Beach, Calais.—P. E. Vose.

THE NEW CITY HALL IN BANGOR

Is built on the lot formerly occupied by the old City Hall. The corner stone was laid July 4, 1893, and the building was completed and dedicated July 4, 1894. It was built mainly through the persistency and perseverance of His Honor Flavius O. Beal, Mayor of Bangor 1892-93-94, and to him in a large degree the credit belongs. In its exterior the building is a fine one, and in its interior its appointments are unequalled in any public building in New England except, possibly, the State House at Hartford, Conn. The whole cost was not far from $130,000. Mr. Charles G. Bryant presented an illuminated clock. A bust of General Samuel F. Hersey, a former citizen of Bangor, was presented by his sons; it is not regarded generally as a good portraiture of General Hersey. The building is now occupied by the City Officers of all departments.

CHAPTER IV. THE CITY OF BOSTON, FROM 1630 TO 1690.

The first settlement in Boston was made in 1630, by a company of Puritan emigrants, who landed on the 21st of September, at a place called Boston Neck, and immediately commenced the building of a town, which they named Boston, in honor of the city of the same name in England.

The building shown in the engraving is the Old North Church, which was the first church in Boston. It was built in 1631, and is one of the oldest churches in the city. The church is a fine example of Puritan architecture, and is still in use as a church.

THE OLD NORTH CHURCH.

A RECORD OF PUBLISHMENTS AND MARRIAGES IN THE TOWN OF PROSPECT, 1789 TO 1832.

CONTRIBUTED BY JOSEPH WILLIAMSON, ESQ., OF BELFAST.

These records were contained in a small quarto volume 7½ inches long by 6 inches wide and having 39 and 141 pages. The existence of the book was unknown or forgotten until a recent search discovered it at the bottom of an old chest.

Prospect was formerly a part of the plantation of Frankfort. It was incorporated as a town February 24, 1794, and then comprised its present territory and the territory of Stockton Springs, and what is now Scarsport as far west as Half-way Creek, which then formed the dividing line between Frankfort and Belfast.

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

CHAPTER I
 THE DISCOVERY OF AMERICA

THE discovery of America by Christopher Columbus in 1492 is one of the most important events in the history of the world. It opened up a new world of opportunity and led to the development of a new civilization. Columbus's voyage was the first of many that would follow, leading to the discovery of the Americas by other explorers.

Before Columbus's voyage, the world was divided into two main parts: the Old World and the New World. The Old World was known to all, but the New World was a mystery. Columbus's voyage was the first to cross the Atlantic Ocean, leading to the discovery of the Americas.

Columbus's voyage was sponsored by the Spanish monarchs, Isabella and Ferdinand. He set sail in 1492 and reached the Americas in October of that year. His discovery led to the Spanish conquest of the Americas and the beginning of a new era in world history.

The discovery of America had a profound impact on the world. It led to the development of a new civilization in the Americas and the beginning of a new era in world history. It also led to the discovery of the Americas by other explorers, leading to the Spanish conquest of the Americas and the beginning of a new era in world history.

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

The history of the United States is a story of a young nation that grew from a small group of colonies on the eastern coast of North America to a powerful and diverse country that spans the continent. The story begins with the first European settlers in the early 17th century, who came to the New World in search of new opportunities and a better life. Over the years, the colonies developed their own unique cultures and ways of life, and they began to assert their independence from British rule.

The American Revolution was a turning point in the nation's history. It was a struggle for independence that began in 1775 and ended in 1783. The revolution was fought against the British, who had imposed a series of taxes and restrictions on the colonies. The colonists fought back, and they won. The result was the birth of a new nation, the United States of America.

The early years of the United States were a time of growth and expansion. The nation's territory grew from a few small colonies on the eastern coast to a vast country that stretched from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The population also grew rapidly, and the economy began to develop.

The American Civil War was a major event in the nation's history. It was a struggle between the North and the South over the issue of slavery. The war began in 1861 and ended in 1865. The North won, and slavery was abolished. The result was a more unified and powerful nation.

The late 19th and early 20th centuries were a time of rapid change and progress. The nation's economy grew rapidly, and it became a world power. The United States played a major role in the world wars of the 20th century, and it emerged as a superpower.

The 1960s and 1970s were a time of social and political upheaval. The Vietnam War was a major event, and it led to a loss of faith in the government. The civil rights movement was a struggle for equality, and it led to the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

The 1980s and 1990s were a time of economic growth and technological progress. The United States became a global leader in the fields of science, technology, and industry. The end of the Cold War led to a new era of international relations.

The 21st century has been a time of challenges and opportunities. The United States has faced a global financial crisis, a pandemic, and a new era of international relations. The future of the United States is uncertain, but it is also full of potential.

(1) The patient is a 45-year-old male, single, of average build, who has been in good health until the past few years, when he began to experience occasional attacks of dizziness and vertigo, especially when he was engaged in his work. These attacks were usually of short duration and were accompanied by a feeling of giddiness and a slight nausea. He also noticed a gradual increase in the frequency of these attacks, and they became more severe and longer in duration. At the present time, he is unable to perform his work, and he has lost considerable weight.

(2) The patient's medical history is unremarkable, except for the above-mentioned symptoms. He has never had any other illness, and he has no family history of similar symptoms. He has never been treated for any disease, and he has no previous operations.

(3) The patient's physical examination is normal, except for a slight loss of weight and a few scattered freckles. His blood pressure is normal, and his pulse is regular. His eyes, ears, nose, and throat are normal. His heart and lungs are normal. His abdomen is normal, and his bowels are regular.

(4) The patient's laboratory examinations are normal, except for a slight increase in the number of red blood cells and a slight decrease in the number of white blood cells. His urine is normal, and his stool is normal.

(5) The patient's diagnosis is vertigo, and the cause is probably a degenerative change in the inner ear. The treatment is symptomatic, and it consists of the use of sedatives and a low-salt diet. The patient should also avoid any work that requires concentration or balance.

(6) The patient's prognosis is good, and he should be able to return to his normal state of health within a few months.

OLD INDIAN PURCHASE ON PENOBSCOT RIVER, 1796.

By a treaty with the Penobscot Indians, Aug. 1. 1796, the State acquired all the rights to lands from Nichols Rock in Eddington, thirty miles up the river, excepting Old Town (Indian) Island and those in the river above it. In 1797 the General Court authorized Gen. Salem Town to survey these lands into townships. He appointed to make the survey Park Holland, Jonathan Maynard and John Chamberlain. They made their return Dec. 2, 1797, and found 189,426 acres in the tract and run it out into nine townships.

CHAPTER I. THE FOUNDATION OF THE NATION

SECTION I. THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

The Continental Congress, assembled at Philadelphia, on the 7th of September, 1776, after a long and anxious deliberation, declared the thirteen united Colonies to be free, sovereign, and independent States.

This declaration was a bold and revolutionary step, which marked the birth of a new nation.

1. The first of these States was the State of New York.

2. The second was the State of New Jersey.

3. The third was the State of Pennsylvania.

4. The fourth was the State of Delaware.

5. The fifth was the State of Maryland.

6. The sixth was the State of Virginia.

7. The seventh was the State of North Carolina.

8. The eighth was the State of South Carolina.

9. The ninth was the State of Georgia.

10. The tenth was the State of Connecticut.

11. The eleventh was the State of Rhode Island.

12. The twelfth was the State of Massachusetts.

13. The thirteenth was the State of New Hampshire.

The Declaration of Independence was a landmark event in the history of the United States, and it is celebrated every year on the 4th of July.

Jan 30, 1815, Joseph Shepard and Polly Lambert both of Plantation No. 3.

March 30, 1816, Isriel Johnson of Blue Hill and Elizabeth Stephens Mitchell of this plantation.

November, 1823, Luther Mack and Polly Kittredge both of Dover.

A. In the early days much trouble was caused by strangers coming from the main land and cutting hay on the marshes and meadows. At the first Plantation Meeting held on the Island of Mount Desert, March 10, 1776, it was:—“ Voted that John Tinker, Thomas Wasgatt and Abraham Somes be a committee to take care of the meadows on this and the adjacent Islands in this District both salt and fresh that strangers may not destroy them or any other of the privileges belonging to said Island.”

“ Voted that the committee for the meadows call on Mr. John Tinker and Mr. Amariah Leland to render an account of what hay was cut and carried off the Island last year.”

P—18. The are no Beavers on the Island now.

W—32. Robert’s Meadow.

H—33. Otter Creek Brook.

CHAPTER I
THE EARLY HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

The history of the United States is a story of discovery, exploration, and settlement. It begins with the first Native Americans who lived on the continent for thousands of years before the arrival of European explorers. In 1492, Christopher Columbus sailed across the Atlantic Ocean and discovered the Americas. This event marked the beginning of European contact with the continent. Over the next century, other explorers such as Amerigo Vesputi, John Cabot, and Hernan Cortes explored and colonized different parts of the Americas. The Spanish, French, and British established colonies and territories across the continent. The British colonies in North America grew in number and size, and they began to develop their own identity and sense of independence. In 1776, the thirteen British colonies declared their independence from Great Britain, and the United States of America was born. The new nation faced many challenges, including war with Britain and the struggle to establish a stable government. The Constitution was drafted in 1787, and the United States entered a period of growth and expansion. The country's territory expanded westward, and new states were admitted to the Union. The United States emerged as a major power in the world, and its influence grew over the years. Today, the United States is a diverse and dynamic nation, and its history continues to shape its present and future.

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

The history of the United States is a story of growth and change. From the first European settlers to the present day, the nation has evolved through various stages of development. The early years were marked by exploration and the establishment of colonies. The American Revolution led to the birth of a new nation, and the subsequent years saw the expansion of territory and the growth of industry. The Civil War was a pivotal moment in the nation's history, leading to the abolition of slavery and the strengthening of the federal government. The late 19th and early 20th centuries were characterized by rapid industrialization and the rise of a new middle class. The Great Depression of the 1930s led to significant government intervention in the economy. The mid-20th century saw the United States emerge as a global superpower, leading the world in the Cold War. The latter part of the 20th century was marked by social and cultural changes, including the civil rights movement and the Vietnam War. The 21st century has brought new challenges, including the global financial crisis and the rise of digital technology.

The history of the United States is a complex and multifaceted one. It is a story of the struggles and triumphs of a young nation. The values of freedom, democracy, and equality have been central to the American experience. The history of the United States is a testament to the resilience and adaptability of the American people. It is a story that continues to shape the nation's identity and future.

A FAMOUS LAW SUIT 1765-1766.—RELATING TO BATH.

The early land Grants or Patents in Maine were made by the Crown and by the Indians without much regard to each other or to location or to boundaries.

THE PLYMOUTH PATENT.

This Patent, the most ancient and long lived, was made by the "Council of Plymouth, England," who were grantees of the Crown in 1620, to William Bradford and others of New Plymouth in New England, Jan. 13, 1629 :

"Forasmuch as they (the Pilgrims) had no convenient Place either of trading or fishing within their own Precincts."

The Grant* was of "all of that part of New England in America which lieth within or between and extendeth itself between the utmost limits of Cobbisecontee which adjoineth to the river Kennebec, towards the western ocean and a place called the Falls at Neguankike in America aforesaid and the space of fifteen miles each side of the river commonly called the Kennebec that lies within its limits." It may never be known where these Falls were, but the Patent was a broad one.

In 1640 Bradford and others sold out to Plymouth Colony, which built forts and trading houses and carried on a large business at Kennebec. The Colony claimed all the territory from Casco Bay to Pemaquid and from the ocean to Caritunk Falls, and established Courts and a "body of laws" for its protection. Minor offenses and small civil suits were tried at Kennebec, while trials for higher crimes and causes appealed were tried by the General Court at Plymouth. For over twenty years they exercised jurisdiction over the larger part of the territory claimed by them.

The northerly line of the Patent was shadowy, and to protect the Colony and improve the title, more Indian titles were obtained in 1648 and 1653.

The Colony of Massachusetts Bay was constantly encroaching in the western part of the Province of Maine, and by judicious manipulation obtained the consent of a majority of the inhabitants of the Province to annex it to Massachusetts.

October 27, 1661, Plymouth Colony sold out its interest in the Patent for 400£ to some Boston men, viz.: Antipas Boies, Edward Tyng, Thomas Brattle and John Winslow.

The Colony of Massachusetts Bay was growing strong, Plymouth Colony was growing weak and it virtually surrendered.

From 1661 to 1751 very little is known of the Patent; but few of the heirs of the grantees of 1661 had any share in it. The land speculators had got hold of it. They built forts at Richmond, now Bowdoinham, and at Frankfort, now Dresden, in 1751.

In June the owners were incorporated under the name of the "Proprietors of the Kennebec Purchase." The modern way of promoting is not new.

In the meantime, by the reduction of the French in Canada by the English in 1759, the property of the company was much increased in value and fabulous estimates were put upon it.

Many other claimants had arisen, whose claims had overlapped the Kennebec Proprietors, and the Company determined to compel them to settle or recognize it. Dr. Sylvester Gardiner of Boston was a large proprietor and a man of great energy and determination, and by direction of the Company he undertook the job. Long, tedious and expensive litigation ensued, the results of which will be shown.

[The main body of the page contains several paragraphs of extremely faint, illegible text. The text appears to be a formal document or report, but the characters are too light to be transcribed accurately. It seems to follow a standard structure with an opening paragraph, several body paragraphs, and a closing section.]

THE CLARK & LAKE CLAIM

Was derived from Indian Chiefs, who in 1649, deeded lands to Christopher Lawson; he sold out to Clark & Lake in 1653. These lands were east of Kennebec River. In the lapse of time this claim passed into the hands of land speculators. The Kennebec Company compromised with the owners of this claim in 1758, by an agreement that: "The north line of the present town of Woolwich should be the south line of the Plymouth Patent and the north line of the Clark & Lake Claim."

THE WISCASSET CLAIM.

In 1663 the Indians sold George Davie, a settler at Wiscasset Point, a large tract of land west of the Sheepscot River which included the present town of Wiscasset, and another tract east of Sheepscot. In 1734 certain wealthy and influential Boston gentlemen had come into possession of these lands and formed a company called the Wiscasset Company. The Kennebec Company compromised with them in 1762 by fixing the boundary line at:

"Half way between the Sheepscot and Kennebec rivers from Monsweag Bay to the Upper Narrows in Sheepscot River."

THE PEJEPSCOT PURCHASE.

The Plymouth England Company is said to have granted a Patent to Thomas Purchase and George Way, June 16, 1632, of:

"All lands lying on both sides of the Pejepscot river on the eastern end of the Androscoggin river on Kennebec river and Casco Bay."

This Patent was never recorded and is said to have been lost; the evidence of its existence was by frequent references to it in ancient deeds.* This Patent covered a part of the Plymouth Patent, and while its existence may have been doubtful, it served for a foundation.

July 4, 1683, John Shapleigh as agent for certain heirs and claimants sold $\frac{1}{2}$ to Richard Wharton of Boston. July 7, 1684,† Wharton mended his titles by the purchase of lands of Worumbo

The first of these was the discovery of gold in California in 1848. This discovery led to a great influx of people to California, and the population of California increased from about 10,000 in 1847 to about 250,000 in 1852. This influx of people led to the discovery of gold in California, and the discovery of gold led to the discovery of gold in California.

THE DISCOVERY OF GOLD

The discovery of gold in California was made by James W. Wadsworth in 1848. Wadsworth was a young man who had come to California in search of a better life. He had heard that there was gold in California, and he had come to California to find it. He had heard that there was gold in California, and he had come to California to find it.

and other Indians. He died in London in 1690, insolvent. Ephraim Savage was appointed administrator Dec. 30, 1693.

Savage sold Wharton's interest in the Purchase Nov. 5, 1714, to Adam Winthrop, Thomas Hutchinson, John Watts, Stephen Minot, Oliver Noyes, David Jeffries and John Ruck of Boston, and John Wentworth of Portsmouth, N. H., for £140. They bought up other claims. By judicious management they obtained a confirmation of their title from the General Court May 27, 1715. They made some claim to the town of Bath as against the Kennebec proprietors. The conflict between these two companies was long and tedious. A compromise was effected Feb. 20, 1758, which was not final; another settlement was made May 29 and June 11, 1766 (in the shadow of this great trial) when, among other things, the Pejepscot Company released all their claim to lands between the "New Meadows and Kennebec river" to the Kennebec Company. This included Bath. The Pejepscot proprietors had left to them the present towns of Danville, Lewiston, Greene, a part of the towns of Lisbon, Leeds, Poland and Minot, and the towns of Durham, Bowdoin, Topsham, Brunswick and Harpswell. The Kennebec Company had the territory to the northward. Having now compromised or settled with all the other claimants, the Kennebec Company turned its attention to the poor settlers at Bath who seemed to have no rich or influential friends. No attempts to compromise are seen.

THE GUTCH OR GOOCH CLAIM.

Rev. Robert Gutch or Gooch from Salem came to Kennebec river, and May 29, 1660, bought of Robin Hood and other Indians a tract of land which was substantially what was incorporated into the town of Bath, Feb. 17, 1781. This deed was recorded in York Records, vol. 2, folio 32, Oct. 27, 1667. Gutch died in 1666. He had a family of children, some of whom lived in the vicinity, but nothing is seen of them until about 1740 when new settlements began there under claims from the heirs of Gooch. Dr. Sylvester Gardiner, with the consent of the company, undertook to prosecute its claim on the Bath territory. Dr. Gardiner probably for the purposes of this case sold out to David Jeffries of Boston, or appointed him as attorney. David Jeffries,

The first part of the book is devoted to a general survey of the history of the United States, from the discovery of the continent to the present time. The author discusses the various stages of the country's development, from the early years of exploration and settlement to the period of the American Revolution and the formation of the new nation. He then turns to the period of the Civil War and Reconstruction, and finally to the present day. The second part of the book is devoted to a detailed study of the political and social conditions of the United States at the present time. The author discusses the various political parties and movements, and the social and economic conditions of the country. He also discusses the various problems and controversies of the day, and offers his own views on the future of the United States.

The author's treatment of the subject is clear and concise, and his arguments are well supported by facts and figures. He is particularly strong in his analysis of the political and social conditions of the United States at the present time, and his views on the future of the country are well reasoned and convincing. This book is a valuable contribution to the study of the history and politics of the United States, and is highly recommended to all students of the subject.

clerk of Boston, claiming title under Sylvester Gardiner, by deed of April 1, 1762, brought a suit against one Joseph Shepard of George Town for :

“Twelve thousand acres of land in George Town more or less, beginning on the westerly side of the Chops of Merrymeeting Bay, thence southerly down the Kennebec River as the river runs to Winnegance Creek, thence to the farthest part of said Creek, thence by the nearest and most direct route to New Meadows Bay, and from thence along said Bay westerly and northerly up to Stevens river and by said river and Creek to the bridge above the head thereof, and from said bridge north to Merrymeeting Bay, thence north westerly along said Bay to the Chops aforesaid, being the first mentioned boundary, the same being parcel of the Tract called the Kennebec Purchase from the late Colony of New Plymouth.”

This suit was for the whole, not a part of the town.

Shepard, as far as is seen, was a man of straw. The case was originally brought in the Inferior Court and by sham demurrer carried to the “Superior Court of Judicature.” Here a new party appears: Colonel Nathaniel Donnell,* an eminent citizen of York, was upon petition admitted to defend. Jeffries found his match. This Nathaniel Donnell of York was a kinsman (and probably uncle) of the other Nathaniel Donnell, the settler in Bath prior to 1750, who claimed rights under the Gooch claim. The York man bought lands of the Bath man, and he in turn sold to others, and this obliged him to defend. The case was tried at the term held in Cumberland County the fourth Tuesday of June, 1765. The full bench of judges were present, viz.: Chief Justice Thomas Hutchinson of Milton, afterwards Lieut. Governor; Benjamin Lynde of Salem, afterwards Chief Justice 1781; John Cushing of Scituate; Peter Oliver, afterward Chief Justice, and Edward Trowbridge, of Cambridge, sometime Attorney General. The most able and efficient lawyers of the country were employed at the trial. For the plaintiff were Jeremiah Gridley of Boston, Attorney General; James Otis, Jr., of Boston, the great patriot; and William Cushing of Pownalboro, afterward Chief Justice 1777, and Judge of the Supreme Court of the United States. For the defendant were William Parker of Portsmouth, N. H.,

* Col. Nathaniel Donnell was born in York Nov. 18, 1689, and died there Feb. 9, 1750.

afterward Judge of Admiralty and of the Supreme Court of New Hampshire; Daniel Farnham of Newbury, and David Sewall of York, afterward Judge of the Supreme Court 1777 and the first Judge of the United States District Court for Maine 1789 to 1818. Such an array of judges and attorneys was never seen in Maine before nor since. The case was tried and the jury found for Donnell and judgment was entered upon their verdict. Later Jeffries brought a writ of review, as he had a right to do, and that was entered and tried at the court held in Falmouth (Portland) on the fourth Tuesday of June, 1766. A great concourse of people were present. Parson Smith says in his Journal: "June 29, Sunday, the Lieut. Governor (Sir Francis Bernard), Judge Oliver, Mr. Goff, Mr. Winthrop and Mr. Bowdoin at Meeting." The case was thoroughly contested, but the jury under the instructions of the court, brought in a verdict for Donnell again. At the end of the record is the following:*

"Immediately after entering up this Judgment, the plaintiff moved for an appeal from the same unto his Majesty in Council. Not granted: the Court being of opinion that by the Royal Charter an appeal does not lie in this case."

In all probability the defense plead the Gooch Claim and possessory rights, both.

The Kennebec Company were defeated and gave up the contest.

James Sullivan of Berwick was a law student in 1766 and settled in George Town 1767. Attorney General, 1790-1807, and Governor 1807-1808. He wrote a history of Maine, 1795. I quote from pages 118 and 119:—

"There can be no pretension that this was the true construction of the (Kennebec) Patent. * * * But the construction by the judges was popular, and under all the circumstances * * * very equitable and just. There is something in popular opinion which never fails to influence the tribunals of Justice in a Country: * * * it is always more agreeable to Judges to have a coincidence of public opinion for their support. In the case above the rights of the Crown were not concerned and the decision was popular."

* Court Records 1764-65-66, page 205. I am under obligations to Hon. Josiah H. Drummond for an examination of them.

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

The history of the United States of America is a story of growth and change. It begins with the first settlers who came to the eastern coast of North America in the early 17th century. These settlers, known as the Pilgrims, were seeking religious freedom and a better life. They established the Plymouth colony in 1620, which became one of the first permanent English settlements in North America.

Over the next century, more and more settlers came to the United States, and the colonies grew in size and number. By the mid-18th century, there were thirteen colonies along the eastern coast. These colonies were part of the British Empire, but they began to assert their independence from Britain in the 1760s. This led to the American Revolutionary War, which ended in 1781 with the British surrender at Yorktown.

The war resulted in the signing of the Declaration of Independence in 1776, which declared the United States to be a free and sovereign nation. The new nation then adopted the Constitution in 1787, which established the framework for the federal government. The Constitution created three branches of government: the executive branch, the legislative branch, and the judicial branch.

In the years following the Revolution, the United States continued to grow and expand. It acquired new territory through purchase and conquest, and it became a major power in the world. The Civil War, which lasted from 1861 to 1865, was a turning point in the nation's history. It resulted in the abolition of slavery and the strengthening of the federal government.

The United States continued to grow and expand in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. It became a world superpower and played a major role in the two world wars. The Cold War, which lasted from 1945 to 1991, was a period of tension between the United States and the Soviet Union. The United States emerged as the dominant power in the world after the end of the Cold War.

The United States is a country of many different people and cultures. It is a country of opportunity and freedom. It is a country that has made great contributions to the world. The history of the United States is a story of a nation that has grown and changed over time, but that has always remained true to its founding principles.

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

The history of the United States of America is a story of a young nation that grew from a small group of colonies on the eastern coast of North America. In 1492, Christopher Columbus discovered the continent, and the first European settlers arrived in 1607. Over the years, the colonies developed their own institutions and traditions, and in 1776 they declared their independence from Great Britain. The American Revolution was a struggle for freedom and self-governance, and it led to the creation of the United States Constitution in 1787. The Constitution established a system of government with three branches: the executive, the legislative, and the judicial. The United States has since become a major world power, and its history is a testament to the power of democracy and the American dream.

The early years of the United States were marked by westward expansion and the search for new lands. The Louisiana Purchase of 1803 doubled the size of the country, and the Texas Revolution of 1835-36 led to the annexation of Texas in 1845. The Mexican-American War of 1846-48 resulted in the acquisition of California and other western territories. The discovery of gold in California in 1848 led to a massive influx of settlers, and the California Gold Rush of 1849-52 became a defining moment in American history. The westward expansion of the United States was a process of conquest and settlement, and it shaped the character of the nation.

The American Civil War of 1861-65 was a pivotal moment in the history of the United States. It was a struggle over the issue of slavery, and it resulted in the preservation of the Union and the abolition of slavery. The war led to the Reconstruction era, a period of rebuilding and reform in the South. The Reconstruction era was a time of great change and challenge, and it laid the foundation for the modern United States. The Civil War and Reconstruction were defining moments in American history, and they shaped the course of the nation.

The late 19th and early 20th centuries were a time of rapid change and progress. The Industrial Revolution transformed the United States into a major industrial power, and the United States emerged as a world superpower. The Spanish-American War of 1898 marked the beginning of the United States' role as a global power. The Progressive Era of the early 20th century was a time of reform and social change, and it led to the passage of the 16th, 17th, and 18th Amendments to the Constitution. The Progressive Era was a defining moment in American history, and it shaped the course of the nation.

The 20th century was a time of great challenge and achievement. The United States played a leading role in World War I and World War II, and it emerged as a superpower. The Cold War of the mid-20th century was a period of tension and conflict between the United States and the Soviet Union. The Civil Rights Movement of the 1950s and 1960s was a struggle for equality and justice, and it led to the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. The Vietnam War of the 1960s and 1970s was a defining moment in American history, and it shaped the course of the nation.

The late 20th and early 21st centuries have been a time of rapid change and progress. The United States has continued to play a leading role in the world, and it has achieved many milestones. The 9/11 attacks of 2001 were a defining moment in American history, and they shaped the course of the nation. The 2008 financial crisis was a defining moment in American history, and it shaped the course of the nation. The 2016 presidential election was a defining moment in American history, and it shaped the course of the nation.

Prospect February 8th 1818 this Day the above Named Luther Pendleton and Nancy Nickels were married By me

Ebenezer Williams Justice of the peace

July 22d 1807 this day Mr Thomas Crockett and Miss Rebecca Berry both of Prospect, were joined in wedlock by Rev'd Mr Mighill Blood Pastor of the Congregational Society in Buckstown.

[The foregoing comprises a record of publications and marriages contained on pages 1 to 39 inclusive, of the record book first mentioned.]

ALEXANDER NICKELS OF BRISTOL.

In the Scotch Irish emigration, in the early part of the 17th century, there came families of Nickels, Campbell, Stark, Knox and others. These families settled in Boston, Worcester, Londonderry, N. H., and in Maine, east of the Kennebec river. They all intermarried and seem to have radiated between the places before named.

CAPT. ALEXANDER NICKELS

Seems to have lived in Boston for some years and was at Bristol early, either permanently or otherwise. Capt. Nickels was at Sheepscot, (Newcastle), previous to 1750, and built a saw mill on Allen's Falls, Mill river. He was a petitioner for incorporation of the town, May 25, 1750, and for the incorporation of a new county in 1752.

“George Hughs of Wrentham, Mass., sold Alexander Nickels of Newcastle Alias Sheepscot Land there on the Great Neck Oct. 12, 1754 for £188 in Bills of Credit part paid in hand, the rest made sure by Bond.” Acknowledged before J. Cargill, J. P., the same day.*

He built a house near the middle of the town where he kept tavern as long as he lived. In 1754, he was appointed by the town to attend the ordination of Rev. Alexander Boyd at Newbury, Mass., Sept. 19. Boyd was minister of the town and had to be ordained at Newbury, because there was no Presbytery nearer. In 1754 also, he was appointed a committee of the town, to lay out a road from his mill to Damariscotta Mills. The the following conditions: (1) the function $f(x)$ is continuous on the interval $[a, b]$; (2) the function $f(x)$ is differentiable on the interval $[a, b]$; (3) the function $f(x)$ is not constant on the interval $[a, b]$. The function $f(x)$ is not constant on the interval $[a, b]$ because it is not constant on the interval (a, b) .

THEOREM 2.1 (Rolle's Theorem)

Let f be a function which is continuous on the closed interval $[a, b]$ and differentiable on the open interval (a, b) . If $f(a) = f(b)$, then there is at least one point c in the interval (a, b) such that $f'(c) = 0$.

PROOF.

Let f be a function which is continuous on the closed interval $[a, b]$ and differentiable on the open interval (a, b) . If $f(a) = f(b)$, then there is at least one point c in the interval (a, b) such that $f'(c) = 0$.

Since f is continuous on $[a, b]$, it attains its maximum and minimum values on $[a, b]$. Let M and m be the maximum and minimum values of f on $[a, b]$, respectively. If $M = m = f(a) = f(b)$, then f is constant on $[a, b]$ and there is no point c in (a, b) such that $f'(c) = 0$.

If $M > m$, then there is at least one point c in (a, b) such that $f(c) = M$ and one point d in (a, b) such that $f(d) = m$. Since $f(a) = f(b)$, it follows that $a < c < d < b$. The function f is differentiable on (a, b) and $f'(c) = 0$ and $f'(d) = 0$.

history of Bristol* says he was commander at Fort Frederick, Pemaquid, 1758. The following deed seems to locate his sons.†

“Robert Adams of Londonderry, N. H., sold to James Nickels of Boston, Mariner, William Nickels of Boston, Gentleman, John Nickels of Boston, Alexander Nickels of Pemaquid, Gent. and Samuel Nickels of Newcastle, Gent., Land in Newcastle Oct. 25, 1761.” Acknowledgement in the Province of N. H. July 6, 1769.

His wife Hannah, died April 3, 1767, aged 67; he died Feb. 1, 1758, aged 67. His will‡ was as follows:—“I Alexander Nickels of Newcastle in the County of York, Gentleman, being very Sick and weak of Body * * * Give and bequeth to my beloved wife Hannah the East End of my Dwelling House with two acres of land adjoining, and money for her support.” To sons James, William, Alexander, John and Samuel he gives all the remaining part of his real estate, together with the saw mill and vessels at sea. * * * Alexander to have his part of land adjoining his dwelling house: Samuel to have the West End of his dwelling house. He gives daughter Mary and her husband, daughter Margaret, each £40; Jane £53-6s-8d; Hannah £40 and Elisabeth £53, 6s, 8d. Dated Jan. 10, 1758. Proved Oct. 2, 1758. Alexander Nickels, Samuel Nickels, and his son in law William Millar were sole Executors.

BURLINGTON, MAINE.

This township was number two, Range one, north of Bingham's Penobscot Purchase. Tristram Hurd, Jr., from Harmony, felled the first trees in 1823, on the Peaslee lot. In 1824 he moved to the south part of the town and built the first barn and house in it. He lived there for more than forty years. In 1824 Samuel Coombs from Brunswick made another opening on a lot which he sold to Thomas Page, and moved to Carroll. In 1825-6 a number of families who had settled previously at what is now Lowell Tannery, removed to Burlington; Col. Thomas Page, from Conway, N. H., Caleb Page and his two nephews, David and James Page from Fryeburg; Edmund Page,* brother of Caleb, from Rumford. They all had families but David and James, and were all relatives. Ezra Richardson, the first Justice of the Peace, from Jay, and his brother Samuel Richardson from Standish, 1825; Deacon Benjamin Woodman† from Fryeburg, 1826-7; Samuel Taylor and his sons, Col. Theodore and George W., from Lyman; David and Ezekiel Shora, brothers; Nathaniel Shora; Ichabod L. Witham from Montpelier, Vt., via Foxcroft, August, 1824-25; Asa White; Andrew and Jabez Bradbury from Buxton, 1825; Andrew and William Eaton; Isaac Brawn; Noah and Thomas A. Barker,* brothers, from Hiram; William Costigan and his sons William and Franklin from Sunkhaize; William Gipson, or Gipson, from Monroe, 1828; Alanson Houghton; Moses Hanson and his sons, from Buxton; John B., Eliphalet, and Alfred Miller, brothers, from Brownfield; Moses and Enoch Peaslee from Whitefield; Benjamin Coffin and his sons Aaron, Nathaniel, Osburn, Stephen, and Benjamin, Jr.; Samuel Folsom from Waterborough; William Douglas, a Scotchman from the British Army; Johnson Neal; John Munsell and his son (probably), Rev. Joseph R. Munsell; Moses and Harvey Stickney from Lyndon, Vt. The last, the only survivor of the ancient settlers, born Nov. 2, 1812, now lives in Grand Falls Plantation.

* His son, John B., was mortally wounded at the battle of Palo Alto, May 8, 1846, and his great-grandson, Thomas F. Oakes, was for several years President of the Northern Pacific R. R. Co.

† His daughter married Hon. John Lynch of Portland.

REIGN OF KING CHARLES THE FIRST

The first part of this history is divided into three books. The first book contains the reign of King Charles the First from his accession to the throne in the year 1625 to his death in the year 1649. The second book contains the reign of King Charles the Second from his accession to the throne in the year 1660 to his death in the year 1685. The third book contains the reign of King James the Second from his accession to the throne in the year 1685 to his death in the year 1702.

The second part of this history is divided into three books. The first book contains the reign of King William the Third from his accession to the throne in the year 1689 to his death in the year 1702. The second book contains the reign of King Anne from her accession to the throne in the year 1702 to her death in the year 1714. The third book contains the reign of King George the First from his accession to the throne in the year 1714 to his death in the year 1727.

The third part of this history is divided into three books. The first book contains the reign of King George the Second from his accession to the throne in the year 1727 to his death in the year 1760. The second book contains the reign of King George the Third from his accession to the throne in the year 1760 to his death in the year 1820. The third book contains the reign of King George the Fourth from his accession to the throne in the year 1820 to his death in the year 1830.

Tristram Scammon from Saco via Howland went some years later (1840).

The most of these men had families; they were sturdy, vigorous and industrious men; some of them had great natural abilities. Several were sons of Revolutionary soldiers, some served in the war of 1812; one served in the Mexican war and a large number in the Aroostook war. In the war of the Rebellion no town in Maine sent more soldiers in proportion to its population than Burlington.

They started their settlement in the old Puritan way, by founding a church July 12, 1827. Rev. Joseph R. Munsell was minister from Oct. 31, 1831, to June 12, 1839. In 1832 the township was incorporated.

“AN ACT TO INCORPORATE THE TOWN OF BURLINGTON.

Be it enacted, &c., That the township numbered two in the first range north of Bingham's Penobscot Purchase, East of Penobscot River with the inhabitants thereon be and hereby is incorporated into a Town by the name of Burlington * * * . Approved March 8, 1832.”

By an Act approved March 10, 1835, all that part of the two mile strip in the County of Hancock, north of Township number two, Bingham's Purchase, east of Penobscot river, was annexed to Burlington.

The first town officers, 1835, were Ezra Richardson, William Costigan, Jr., and Osburn Coffin, Selectmen; Ezra Richardson, Town Clerk, and Osburn Coffin, Treasurer.

Its Postmasters have been: Ezra Richardson, Amzi Libbey, Charles R. Libbey, Theodore Taylor, William H. Taylor and Thomas W. Porter.

Its Representatives have been Amzi Libbey, 1838; Isaac Hanson, 1847; Lloyd W. Richardson, 1862; Joseph W. Porter, 1864, 65, 68, 72, 76; James Edes, 1874, 75; Thomas W. Porter, 1877, 78. Joseph W. Porter was Senator, 1866, 67, and Executive Councillor, 1868, 69.

ABOUT GRAVE STONES.

One of the first things the early New England settlers did was to provide a place to bury their dead. If they had a meeting house, a lot was set apart near it and "fenced about." If there was no meeting house, they set apart a lot on or near the river or bay, so that in the absence of roads it could be reached by boats.

The dead were buried deep in the earth, with their feet towards the east and the graves almost filled with cobble stones for protection against wild animals. Field stones marked the early graves, one at the head and another at the foot. Few grave stones were set up prior to 1670; then slate grave stones from the west of England came very small and very thick, and upon them rude hands traced the initials of the dead. Between 1690 and 1710 larger slate stones came with elaborate scroll borders and heavily cut heads with skulls and cherub faces. Many of these stones are broken and have wasted away, while some are so well preserved that today the faint lines made by the engraver to guard him in the height of letters, are still as distinct as they were 150 or 200 years ago. Between 1700 and the breaking out of the Revolutionary War, the slate of the west of England, of different colors and qualities was almost universally used. These stones of the best quality are almost indestructible and superior to much of the marble now in use.

During the Revolutionary War, grave stones of sand stone, began to be used in Connecticut; this kind of stone yielded early to the influence of our climate and the inscriptions soon became illegible. About 1790, Vermont marble came into use, but the quality was then poor. About 1800, Italian marble, now so universally used, began to be imported.

The use of grave stones is now rather more common than formerly, although take Maine right through and the vast majority of the dead have no gravestones. In some cemeteries however, the graves are known by the number of the lot kept on the records.

EXTRACTS FROM THE RECORDS OF THE TOWN OF
TOWN CLERK FROM 1818 TO 1843.

Memorandum. (January, 1821). The summer of the year 1820 was remarkable dry throughout. The winter following as remarkable severe, a general scarcity of hay—a large number of cattle sheep etc died for want of fodder and other causes. Memorandum. (under date of October 27, 1821.) The summer of 1821 was exceedingly hot and dry, considerable damage done to the crop by the drouth, the fall months very fine.

Memorandum. 1822. The summer of 1822 remarkable dry, water hardly to be procured at any rate, potatoes and other later crop very poor pastures all dried up, no rain of any consequence from the first part of July to the latter part of September.

Memorandum. 1823. The summer of 1823 remarkable dry, supposed to be the greatest drouth ever known by the oldest inhabitant. hay, etc. exceeding scarce, the cattle almost famished by thirst, great fire in all directions, great damage done, no rain of any consequence from the first part of July to the middle of September. Serious, melancholy time.

Memorandum. The winter of 1823 remarkable fine and moderate—very little snow, considerable rain, some very heavy blows during the winter—on the whole as fine a winter as is commonly experienced in this climate—signs of a forward Spring.

Memorandum. The winter of 1824 remarkable mild, very little snow, no boisterous storms, plenty of hay, the spring of 1825 remarkable forward hitherto,—April 27.

Memoranda. The winter of 1825 was very moderate—no sleighing until February—very little cold weather—plenty of hay—other crops especially potatoes pretty slim occasioned by very dry weather the latter part of the summer past.

March 23 1827. Memoranda. The winter past has been in general moderate. no snow of consequence till New Years. Short time of sledding, pretty cold; but no severe storms. Good stirring in the woods all winter. considerable rain during the winter, hay scarce occasioned by the drouth last summer which was remarkable dry.

Memorandum. The winter of 1827-8 remarkable mild, not snow enough for sledding to procure the necessary fire wood, no tedious storms, mostly rain and those very short, no severe cold snaps, except one and that about the middle of January, all the month of February warm, some remarkable warm days, the ground in the open land entirely bare, no ice in the coves and remained so April 1, 1828.

Memorandum. (Under April 1829). The winter past has been remarkable severe; more snow fell than has fallen for many years past. Very windy and cold, snow drifted very much, filled all the roads full to the tops of the fences, many drifts 8 or 10 feet deep, hay scarce.

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

The history of the United States of America is a story of growth and expansion, from a small collection of colonies to a global superpower.

The early years of the nation were marked by the struggle for independence and the establishment of a new government.

The American Revolution was a pivotal moment in the nation's history, leading to the birth of a new republic.

The 19th century was a period of westward expansion and the discovery of gold in California.

The American Civil War was a defining moment in the nation's history, fought over the issue of slavery.

The 20th century saw the United States emerge as a global superpower, leading the world in the Cold War.

The United States has a rich and diverse history, shaped by the actions of its people and the challenges it has faced.

Snow 2 feet deep in the woods the 10th of April. Many Moose, deer and caribou killed in the country.

Memorandum. (under September 15, 1829.) The Spring of 1829 was exceeding wet and cold; grass was remarkable good, hay was plentiful of course. All other spring crops were very backward. About the first of July the drouth set in and held until October, scarcely rain enough all that time to lay the dust, springs exceedingly low, pastures all dried up. No Indian corn, potatoes very scarce and poor. Summer wheat good in general. Some people forced to fodder their cattle with hay in September. Never drier for forty years past.

Memorandum. The winter of 1829 was severe, much cold weather, snow about 2½ feet deep in the woods; not more than two or three very severe snow storms, the last March 26. Hay pretty plenty.

Memorandum. The winter of 1830-1 remarkable mild, no sliding, not snow enough to sled fire wood, the fore part of the spring as remarkable wet and tempestuous—great damage done to roads buildings etc., by the wind, ice and water.

Memorandum. The winter of 1831-2 was very severe, more snow fell and more cold weather than has been experienced for many years, but not many very severe storms, or very high winds, but notwithstanding a very tedious winter, long and sharp, a tolerable plenty of hay.

Memorandum. The summer of 1832 most remarkable wet and cold all kinds of crops very poor except hay, and that nothing to boast of.

Memorandum. The winter of 1832-3, was very severe, sat in about the last of November and continued with very short intervals till the last of March; snow four feet deep, and more, and exceeding cold weather, the river and bay frozen over, so that people passed on the ice to the outermost islands in the bay, snow two feet deep on an average, in the woods the first of April. There has been no winter comparable with this since the year 1778.

Memorandum. The winter of 1833-4 was remarkable mild, only one very cold spell of weather, (about the middle of Jan'y) the most snow that fell at any one time was about twelve inches, and that was about medium depth about the whole winter, the months of February and March were more like May than Winter.

1835. Memorandum. The winter of 1834-5 was the coldest ever known by the oldest inhabitant of this town; the bay was frozen down to the outermost islands. Sleighs and sleds passed back and forth from the main to Long Island in March, the longest continuance of severe cold, perhaps ever known in this State by the white inhabitants. Hay was exceeding scarce prices from 15 to 20 dollars a ton, many cattle perished. people in general were obliged to use corn, grain, oats, potatoes and every vegetable substance in their possession that cattle could eat to preserve them alive. On the sea board the quantity of snow was not large, but in the back country 'twas said it was six feet deep in April and in some places four or five feet deep the last of May or even in the first part of June. The spring following backward, cold

The history of the United States of America is a story of growth and change. From a small collection of colonies on the eastern coast, it grew into a vast nation that spans across continents. The early years were marked by struggle and uncertainty, but through perseverance and the pursuit of freedom, the United States emerged as a powerful and influential world leader.

The American Revolution was a pivotal moment in the nation's history. It was a fight for independence from British rule, driven by the desire for self-governance and the protection of individual rights. The Declaration of Independence in 1776 was a bold statement of the colonies' intent to sever ties with the United Kingdom and establish a new, sovereign nation.

The Constitution of the United States, drafted in 1787, provided the framework for the new government. It established a system of checks and balances, ensuring that no single branch of government would become too powerful. The Constitution also guaranteed the rights of citizens and provided for a system of federalism, where power is shared between the national government and the states.

The United States has a rich and diverse cultural heritage. It is a melting pot of different ethnicities, languages, and traditions. This diversity has been a source of strength and innovation for the nation. The American dream, the belief that anyone can achieve success and prosperity through hard work and determination, is a central theme in the nation's history.

and wet. No very promising anticipation of abundant crops of hay now, July 10, 1835.

I ne'er saw such a winter since I was born of My Mother.
By the favour of Heaven, hope ne'er to see such another.

Memorandum. The winter of 1835-6 was exceeding severe, much cold weather and abundance of snow, fodder for cattle scarce. Hear of many cattle dying of hunger in the middle and Western States, crops of hay short last season. very backward weather yet, and no encouragement for better, April 12, 1836.

DOCUMENTS CONCERNING PENOBSCOT EXPEDITION, 1779.

[From Massachusetts Archives, vol. 145.]

Monday, July 19, 1779. At 4 p. m. got under way the Ship Hampden from Piscataqua and sailed for Townsend in order to join the fleet from Boston, and agreeable to my orders to myself under the command of the Commodore of said fleet. on Tuesday the 20th at 8 a. m. came to anchor in Townsend harbor where I found fourteen Transports with troops on board waiting for the Commodore.

On Wednesday, 21st, 3 p. m. the Commodore in the ship Warren came into the harbor with the fleet of armed ships, &c. I went on board the Commodore and delivered him a letter from the Board of War at Piscataqua and agreeably to my orders put myself and ship under the command of said Commodore and received my orders including signals, &c. On Saturday, 24th, 3 a. m. the signal was made for sailing: at five a. m. I found the whole of the fleet under way. I hove up and brought up the rear agreeably to orders and made sail for Penobscot: at 11 o'clock at night we anchored under the Fox Islands. On Sunday 25th 7 a. m. the fleet all under way, we hove up and made sail: Light wind. We run up the bay about 3 p. m. and the fleet came in sight of the enemy's forts and shipping. I found the headmost "ships held their wind and stood towards Long Island. I ran up for the Commodore's ship and found the Commodore on board Capt. Parker's schooner; he hailed the Hampden and I answered him: he told me to hold my wind and stand across the bay and keep to windward and when his ship anchored I must come to. I answered him "very well, sir;" I should be glad sir if you would give me men enough to man my ship; I stand ready sir to go anywhere, wherever you order me. be it where it will." The Commodore told me my ship would make a very good parade ship and I answered him, "Sir, I did not come here for a parade ship, I came for something else."

On Monday, 26th, 3 p. m. the Commodore and sundry of the ships passed the harbor of Bagaduce and our ships under an easy sail and fired on the enemy's ships and two of their batteries: soon after the sloop Providence brigs Pallas and Defence landed their men and took possession of Banks Island where a battery was immediately erected which obliged the enemy's ships to go farther up the river. Wednesday, 28th, at 3 A. M. sundry vessels began to fire on the shore for covering the landing of the troops which was affected and at the same time the enemy left their outermost battery on the larboard hand going into Bagaduce harbor.

Sunday, 1st August, 3 A. M., our troops marines &c., stormed the enemy's second battery and carried it, which was near the water side, which removed every difficulty out of the way that might endanger our shipping in going into Bagaduce harbor to attack one 20 gun, one 18, and one sixteen gun ship. Now the way being clear except the enemy's fort upon the hill, which we could not come nearer to than three quarters of a mile, say a half a mile, one transport ship added to their N. Line with six guns. After we had been there a week or more: if it was thought not safe in lying in the harbor after taking the enemy's ships which might be done with ease whenever orders were given for that purpose, we should not have been obliged to lay exposed to a fire of the enemy's fort, as there was a large bay and we might have gone out of the reach of the enemy's shot. It is impossible for me to say how many councils of war were held at different times: but upon finding them not to the purpose, I desired that yea and nay might be entered and every person's name mentioned,—and if the original is produced, you will find I always voted to go in and take the enemy's ships.

August 11, Wednesday, I received orders to go in to Bagaduce harbor at attack the enemy's ships, on Friday 13th, being on Bank's Island to see our troops march round the enemy's works, at about 6 P. "M." I saw the signal was out for all Capt's. to come on board the Commodore. I immediately returned to my boat and went on board my ship and desired Capt. Hacker to let me know what were the orders when he returned. I then perceiving the strange ships to windward: I immediately hove up as I lay in the mouth of Bagaduce harbor; my ship and the Putnam had lain ten or twelve days in reach of the guns in the enemy's fort from which they fired at me the whole of the time, my ship was a wearing as though I was going into the harbor of Bagaduce. at that time Gen. Lovell with five or six hundred of his troops and marines &c., was between the enemy's fort and their shipping: I soon got clear of the enemy's fire and stood off till flood tide and then calm, was obliged to come to anchor.

Saturday, 14th, 8 A. M. The signal for all Capt's. from the Commodore I went on board: sundry captains coming away as I went on board, I asked the Commodore if he had any orders for me: he told me no: he believed we must all shift for ourselves: with that I left him and went to the Gen'l sloop to request liberty for some of his men as I was in expectation of coming to action: the General sent Maj. Brown with me to order some of the troops on board my ship:—near twenty turned out as volunteers and went with me on board at 1 P. M. I returned to my ship and found the Commodore and all the fleet getting under way: I weighed, and set all the sails I could, the enemy then not more than a league and a half astern of me, the fleet standing for Fort Pownal. My ship sailing heavy, the enemy soon came up with me and fired one after another:—three frigategers cut away my rigging and stays, &c., and hulled me sundry times wounding some of my men. I found it impossible to join our fleet again and was obliged to strike, although contrary to my will.

TITUS SALTER, Capt. of Ship Hampden, from the State of New Hampshire.

The time when the orders above mentioned were given for attacking the enemy's fleet was on Wednesday the 11th. It is my opinion it was always in the power of our fleet to have destroyed the enemy's shipping without any assistance from the land army, until the arrival of their reinforcement.

TITUS SALTER.

The above deposition with the addition below, was sworn to in Court Sept. 25.

Attest,

O. PEABODY, Clerk.

COL. JOSHUA CARPENTER, THE FIRST REPRESENTATIVE FROM DOVER, MAINE.

He was born in Paris, 27 Feb., 1790, and was a soldier of the war of 1812. He moved to Plantation No. 3, Range 6, now Dover, between 19 Jan. and 30th of April, 1821, and was elected Representative the same year. He procured the Incorporation of the town of Dover at the next session of the Legislature, 19 Jan., 1822. He had brothers; Nathan, who settled in Foxcroft, Dennis W., who settled in Bangor, and Reuben E., who settled in Lincoln, and sisters Mrs. Nehemiah Emery and Mrs. Dr. Fobes, in Lincoln. He sold his $\frac{1}{2}$ of saw mill in Dover, and July 25, 1823, sold part of his village lot to David Haynes, for \$93 and a part of the same lot to Isaac Blethen, Sept., 1823, for \$1200, which I suppose was his homestead. He moved to Howland in 1823, and was Representative 1825, 1827, 1828 and 1829. Jackson appointed him Collector of Castine in 1829 and he moved there. He removed to Lincoln and was Sheriff of Penobscot County. He moved to Houlton, and one day while in the woods in township "Letter B," he was killed by the falling of a tree, 22 Sept., 1866. He was a notable character.

 DAVID BROWN OF MILLBRIDGE.

He was born on Cape Cod, Dec. 3, 1744, and went with his brother Jesse to Falmouth, now Portland. He went to what is now Millbridge in 1765-66 and settled on the lot now owned by John Hutchins. He married first in Falmouth, Sally Jordan, sister of Nathaniel Jordan of Narraguagus, Dec. 15, 1768. He was then "of Narraguagus." He married second, Hannah, daughter of David Alden of Cape Elizabeth, 1786-87. She born there 1 Dec., 1752. He married third, Abigail Alden, sister of second wife. She born 25 Dec., 1777. He lived to be very old and is said to have been the father of 27 children. I made them up in part, as follows; perhaps not in order.

- i. GEORGE (?) had lot 1794.
- ii. POLLY, m. James Leighton of Steuben.
- iii. LUCY.
- iv. SALLY, b. June 11, 1775; m. Nathaniel Strout.
- v. JOHN, "oldest son," was an enterprising ship master. Commanded a Castine ship; d. in Havana.
- vi. JESSE, m. Deborah Wallace and moved to East Machias. Children: Albert, Ambrose, David, John, Hannah, Maria, Caroline and Elizabeth.
- vii. DAVID, b. Aug. 14, 1782; d. young, in New Orleans.
- viii. ELIZABETH, b. Dec. 14, 1785.
- ix. Child by second wife, b. 1787.
- x. HANNAH, m. Samuel Rich of East Machias.
- xi. BETSY, m. Ezekiel Rich of East Machias.
- xii. JOSEPH W., probably by third wife; b. 13 Jan., 1799; m. Sophronia, daughter of James Wallace. Eight children.
- xiii. BENJAMIN O., b. Feb. 13, 1802; d. May 13, 1803.
- xiv. JAMES O., b. June 5, 1804; d. June 5, 1805.
- xv. DEBORAH, b. 30 June 1805; m. W. F. Munson of Cooper.
- xvi. MEHITABLE, b. 5 June 1807; m. James Strout.
- xvii. ALMIRA, b. 5 Aug. 1809; m. David Boynton of Machias.
- xviii. ABIGAIL, b. 30 Nov., 1811; m. Warren Foster and James B. Mansfield.
- xix. WILLIAM P., b. 20 April, 1814; m. Mary Dyer and Sophia Godfrey; Seven children.
- xx. JAMES, b. 10 June 1815; m. Caroline Doyle of Northport and moved there. Two sons. The other children I cannot name.

DOVER, MAINE.

Dover, the shire town of Piscataquis county, was originally Township No. 3, Range 6, north of the Waldo Patent. Samuel Weston of Canaan and Ephraim Ballard, lotted out this range of townships in 1792 and filed their plans, April 7, 1794.

July 14, 1802,* John Read and Peleg Coffin, a committee appointed under the resolve of the General Court, June 19, 1801, conveyed to John Lowell and Robert Hallowell of Boston, this township, for $6,180.99, with the usual conditions for settlement, of fifteen families in four years, twenty-five more in six years, and ten more in eight years, 40 in all. These grantees were assignees of Chandler Robbins, (I suppose Rev. Chandler Robbins, D. D., of Plymouth, Mass.), who had originally contracted for the township, Feb. 1, 1794.

July 3, 1802, eleven days before they received their own deed, the proprietors deeded Abel Blood of Temple, N. H., for $448, lots No. 8, 9, 10, range 12, and lots No. 10, 11, 12, range 11, containing 623 acres, see plan of Samuel Weston of Canaan, April 7, 1794; and "Whereas said lots have no discernable boundaries on earth, it is further understood that a sworn surveyor shall be appointed by those holding the fee of said township, to run out said lots." These lots were supposed to be in what is now East Dover. Blood sold out a part of his purchase to Eli Towne, 16 May, 1605, for $400; † also to Mark Trafton, ‡ May 5, 1808, for $113, and appears to have sold the balance to his brother, Francis Blood§ of Temple, N. H., a year or two later.

In 1803, the proprietors employed Lemuel Perham of Paris, to lot out the township, which he did in part.

March 1, 1809, the General Court gave Charles Vaughn and Robert Hallowell a further time, of four years, from June first, to settle the requisite number of families in the town, and it was provided in the resolve, that the settlers should have their lots for $100 for each 100 acres settled on. No mill sites to be taken by the settlers.

April 22, 1809, Hallowell & Lowell sold Paul Lambert* of Winthrop, lots No. 13 and 14, Range 7; No. 13 and 14, Range 6, and No. 14, Range 5, Perham's survey. March 27, 1809, Lambert mortgaged the same lots to John Merrick and Benjamin Vaughn for $750.

Nov. 9, 1810, Hallowell & Lowell sold John Merrick of Hallowell, lot No. 3, Range 12. Recorded June 15, 1811.†

Nov. 9, 1810, John Merrick sold William Spaulding of Norridgewock, for $125, lot No. 25 in Centre range.

Jan. 7, 1811, John Merrick sold Nathaniel Chamberlain of Charlton, Mass., for $202, lot No. 12, containing 100½ acres. Chamberlain sold part of this to Artemas Parlen, and perhaps balance to Joshua Carpenter of Paris, probably homestead, Jan. 26, 1820.

March 20, 1815, John Merrick and Petty Vaughn, by their attorney, William Oliver Vaughn, appointed Charles Vaughn their attorney, with full power to sell lands.

March 30, 1815, John Merrick and Petty Vaughn sold William Spaulding of Norridgewock, lot No. 24, in Centre range.

March 17, 1817, Merrick & Vaughn sold Joseph Shepard, lot No. 10, Centre range.

March 17, 1817, Merrick & Vaughn sold Allen Dwelly, lot No. 1, Range 12. He was originally from Pembroke, Mass. via Paris. Died in Springfield.

March 25, 1817, Merrick & Vaughn sold James Rowe, lot No. 15, Range 6.

March 17, 1817, Merrick & Vaughn sold Eleazer Spaulding, (Senior), the north ½ of lots No. 15 and 16, range 5, for $160; and March 13, 1820, lot 27, Centre range, for $160.

lands not of record. After 1815, John Merrick of Hallowell and Petty Vaughn of Hallowell and London, England, seem to have sold and gave deeds. I have seen it stated that Charles Vaughn failed and that Petty Vaughn merely covered the title. John Merrick and Charles Vaughn were the promoters and builders of the industries of the town.

FISHERIES ON THE COAST OF MAINE AND ACADIA.

J. Wingate Thornton, one of the most indefatigable students of Maine history, said:*

“Recent collations of the early historical narratives demonstrate that the progress of geographical discovery in America is to be credited to the fisheries more than to all other causes.”

Charles Levi Woodbury, a grandson of Maine, in an address some years ago before the New Hampshire Historical Society, said:

“Let it be clear, neither Pilgrims nor Puritans were its pioneers; neither the axe, the plow nor the hoe led it to these shores; neither the devices of the chartered companies nor the commands of royalty. It was the discovery of the winter fishery on its shores that led New England to civilization.”

Just when fishermen first came over is an unsettled problem. Sebastian Cabot on his return to England in 1497-98, called attention to the fisheries here. The fishermen were here in 1517, when fifty vessels came. In 1577 there were 150 French vessels on our coasts.

About this time France and England began the contest for the American fishing grounds, which continued for more than a century. The English took Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, where they built, in 1522, forty or fifty houses for their fishermen.

The French settled at Breton and in 1713-14 began to build the famous fortress and town of Louisburg, which took nearly thirty years to build and cost about five millions of dollars; and this for the protection of their fisheries principally.

* Maine Historical Society's Col., vol. v, page 145. At the close of the 15th century there were 300 or 400 English, Spanish, French and Portuguese fishing vessels on our coast.

Martin Pring, an English navigator, came into Penobscot Bay in 1603 and found, at Monhegan, cod in great plenty, better than those of Newfoundland. Pring sailed up the bay and he named two of the multitude of the islands he found, Fox Islands. (Now North Haven and Vinal Haven.) Pring found the scenery beautiful.

George Weymouth was at Monhegan May 17th, 1605. While he went ashore his men "with a few hooks got about 30 great Cods and Haddocks which gave us a taste of the great plenty of fish which we found afterward wheresoever we went upon the coast."

Capt. John Smith ranged along our coast on a fishing voyage in 1614 and arrived at Monhegan the last of April. Among other things he took and cured 40,000 dry fish and 7,000 cod fish. He said that at the Eastward and about Penobscot the French traders bartered their articles on better terms than the English. Who these French traders were I do not see.

Thomas Morton of Mount Wollaston, now Quincy, wrote in 1622 that he had seen at Richmond's Island 15 ships loaded with dried cod for Spain and the Straits, without which Spaniards, Portuguese and Italians could not victual their vessels.

In Cadillac's Memoirs, 1692* he says of Boston that its principal commerce is fishing, which is carried on along the coasts of Acadie (which meant Eastern Maine).

SHAW FAMILIES OF MAINE AND MASSACHUSETTS.

A note page 89, vol. viii, makes Francis Shaw of Boston and Gouldsborough, Maine, a descendant of Abraham¹ Shaw of Dedham, through Joseph², Joseph³, Joseph⁴, Thomas⁵, which seems improbable for the reason that Joseph⁴, who was born in Weymouth 1666, was not old enough. The probability is that Francis Shaw was a descendant of John Shaw, butcher, of Boston, as follows:

DAVID PAGE OF FRYEBURG, MAINE, AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS.

The village of Fryeburg* was for a long time called the "Seven Lots." Seven men owned in equal shares this part of the town, which in the Intervale contained 350 acres. In 1762 the owners were there and made some improvements. In 1763 they moved their families from Concord, N. H. Four of these men, Samuel Osgood, Nathaniel Merrill, John Evans and David Page, had been soldiers in the French War, where Page was wounded in the leg. David Page was a man of great intelligence and withal peculiar and original. He was a magistrate for many years and had no hesitation in giving his views relating to law and its practice. His opinions were always based on what he thought right, without any regard to what might be law. Judah Dana, Jacob McGaw and Samuel A. Bradley with others eminent in the profession practiced in his courts and they had to abide by his decisions, whether or no, unless an appeal was taken. He seems to have lived in Fryeburg and Conway, N. H., both. He married first Betsey Eastman, and second Ruth,† daughter of Isaac Eastman. In his old age he seems to have lived in Coos, N. H., with one of his children, and died there in 1812.

His will made in Coos, March 19, 1812, was proved in Oxford County Probate Office, April 13, 1812. In it he names wife

DOVER VILLAGE SURVEY.

In 1823, Merrick & Vaughn employed Solomon Adams of Farmington, to lot out lot No. 4, Range 12, Perham's survey, into village lots. This lot became Dover village. Mr. Adams original plan is in the office of the Register of Deeds of Penobscot county and upon it is his return, viz.:

"This plan represents Lot No. 4 in the 12th range containing 100 acres in the town of Dover as run by Lemuel Perham in the year 1803. Laid out by me into small lots near the Great Falls on Piscataquis River for the use of John Merrick and Petty Vaughn Esquires, Dec. 12, 1823.

Surveyor of Land."

Aug. 27, 1824, Merrick & Vaughn sold or deeded Abraham Moor* of Dover, for one dollar, and in consideration of services rendered in the erection of mills and otherwise, 35 of these village lots, some of them lying on the Piscataquis river.

The discovery of gold in California led to the California Gold Rush, and the discovery of gold in Colorado led to the Colorado Gold Rush. Both of these discoveries led to the development of the West, and the discovery of gold in California led to the discovery of gold in Colorado.

The fourth of these was the discovery of gold in California in 1848. This led to a great influx of people to the West, and the discovery of gold in Colorado in 1859. The discovery of gold in California led to the California Gold Rush, and the discovery of gold in Colorado led to the Colorado Gold Rush. Both of these discoveries led to the development of the West, and the discovery of gold in California led to the discovery of gold in Colorado.

MILLBRIDGE, MAINE.

The first settlements on the Narraguagus River were made at Steuben and Millbridge.* It is not easy to fix the location of all the first settlers as prior to incorporation the country thereabouts was all called Narraguagus. Major Joseph Wallace, Sen., was in all probability the founder of the town of Millbridge and the first permanent settler. He and Captains Andrew Simonton, Ephraim Dyer and Ebenezer Thorndike had mills in the town in 1769.

Major Wallace finally settled on the lot on the east side of the river on the road to Fickett's Point near where the late Deacon William Wallace, his grandson, lived. Major Wallace and his son, Col. Joseph Wallace, Jr., were active men who had much to do with the town of Harrington, of which Millbridge was then a part.

BENJAMIN WALLACE, brother of Major Joseph, Senior, was an early settler on the lot now or lately occupied by Capt. Moses Wallace, his grandson, on the east side of the river.

DAVID BROWN from Falmouth, was an early settler prior to 1768 and took up the lot occupied by John Hutchings in 1888.

JESSE BROWN from Falmouth, brother of David, settled on east side near Fickett's Wharf.

JOHN DENBO came here early and settled on the lot next south of Jabez Dorman. It is said that he served in the French War at Louisburg, 1748, under Gen. Pepperell. He has many descendants in Lubec, Trescott, Whiting, Pembroke, also in Millbridge and Steuben, some of whom have changed the name to Dinsmore. Widow Dinsmore lived on the old Denbo homestead in 1886.

JABEZ DORMAN from Kennebunk, bought a lot of Samuel Plummer near Knox's Mills, July 22, 1771. His homestead was occupied by his descendants until within a few years and was occupied by Hannibal Curtis in 1888.

✓ JAMES GRACE was here early.

* I use modern names for convenience.

The following is a list of the names of the persons who were present at the meeting held on the 10th day of June, 1908, at the residence of the author, in the city of New York, New York.

Map of the City of New York, New York, showing the route of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad, and the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad, and the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad.

JOHN FOSTER from Halifax via Cape Elizabeth, came soon after the Revolutionary War and settled on the lot occupied by John Baily, 1888.

ROBERT KNOX of Narraguagus. John Foster of Southampton, N. Y., got an execution against him at Pownalborough Court first Tuesday of June, 1772, and set off store, £6, 13s., 4d.; one house, £23, 15s.; other buildings, £2, 3s.; all on the S. E. part of the island called Knox Island, together with said Island appraised at £16, situated about a mile from Burnt Point; also house land and $\frac{1}{3}$ of a tide mill called Wallace mill appraised at £27, 11s, 10d., all situate in the township of Narraguagus.

SAMUEL LEIGHTON, brother of Thomas, 2d, settled first at Narraguagus, then Pembroke, then Perry.

THOMAS LEIGHTON, settled on a lot at head of Pigeon Hill Bay; in possession of Joshua M. Leighton, 1888.

ISAAC LOVETT, an Englishman, came here with Major Joseph Wallace and was his clerk for several years. He married and has descendants.

WILLIAM MCNIEL was here Jan. 3, 1772, when he sold out to Theodore Leighton land west side of Mill River for £10.

—Lincoln Records, vol. 10, p. 110.

JOSIAH SAWYER from Cape Elizabeth, came here 1762-3 and settled near the river. Has many descendants.

JOHN SMALL from Cape Elizabeth about 1763-4. He settled on a lot below the Creek near the Methodist meeting house.

DEACON JOSEPH STROUT from Cape Elizabeth, came early and settled at Back Bay near Granny's Neck, now known as Pinkham's Island.

JEREMIAH STROUT from Cape Elizabeth, came probably with Joseph. Nathaniel and James Strout here were probably sons of Jeremiah or Joseph.

STEPHEN YOUNG, here early; millwright. He sold June 2, 1773, to Joseph Wallace three lots of land on Narraguagus River and $\frac{1}{8}$ part of a double saw mill known and called the "Free-town Mill" on the same river.

AN OLD PENOBSCOT LUMBERMAN, LAWRENCE
COSTIGAN,

Familiarly known as Larry Costigan. He came to Bangor with his family in 1795 from Clinton and in 1796 moved to Sunkhaze, now Costigan Station and post office, North Milford, near Costigan Brook, being the first settler there. His homestead was near where Stephen C. Higgins now lives. He and his sons, and I may say grandsons, were the kings of ox teamsters on Penobscot River. He was originally a squatter, as about all the first settlers were, up river. He was always at law with somebody and seems to have spent his substance in that pursuit. He was a plaintiff in the first case on the Docket of Penobscot County.

Amos Patten of Bangor, got an execution against him July term, 1817, for $96.58, and set off a part of his homestead to satisfy it—eight acres valued at $116.45.

Thomas Rice of Augusta, (M. C.), sued him and his son on an old debt November, 1816, and attached all his cattle, one cow, two calves, one yearling and some grain and some land. July, 1817, Rice got an execution for $163.07. Jacob McGaw, as attorney for Rice, directed Sheriff Josiah Brewer to commit the defendants to Castine jail if they did not pay. Brewer sold the property July 11, 1817: One cow to John Dudley, $13.50; two calves to John Laughlin, $12.00; one yearling to same, $15.00; $40.50 in the whole.

The real estate was appraised by Park Holland, Stephen Kimball and Mark Trafton at $157.38. The officers' fees were:

Travel 16 miles,	.64
Ferryage,	.25
Justice Fees,	2.15
Appraisers,	8.26
Register's Fees,	1.25
Keeping one cow from Nov. 11, 1816, to July 11, 1817,	15.00
Keeping one cow (heifer) same,	12.00
Keeping two calves same,	10.00
Threshing wheat and oats,	2.50
	$58.31

Patrick Costigan died 1816-17. Thomas A. Hill of Bangor, was appointed administrator on his estate July 9, 1817. I think this is the same man. Children :

- i. WILLIAM, moved to Burlington prior to 1835 and died there; m. Rebecca Ayres, December, 1800. Son William Costigan d. in Burlington, June 28, 1871, aged 68 years, 4 mos., 15 days.
- ii. FRANK COSTIGAN, lived in Burlington and Grand Falls; went West.
- iii. HOSEA R. COSTIGAN, lived in Passadumkeag; moved West.
- iv. CHARLES, d. in Lowell, Me.

HON. STEPHEN P. BROWN, OF DOVER, ME.

He was son of Stephen and Mary (Pearson*) Brown of Bucksport, born there 12 Nov., 1807. Stephen Brown of Weare, N. H., m. Mary Pearson of Byfield, Mass., 23 Aug., 1803, and moved to Bucksport the same year. Brown was a woolen manufacturer and the Pearson family also, and had been from 1643 down. Stephen P. Brown went to Byfield, Newbury, to learn the same business with his mother's relatives. He went to Dover in 1830 and took charge of the Piscataquis Manufacturing Company's mill, which was projected by the English proprietors of the town and incorporated March 6, 1829.

In 1837 the mill made cassimeres which were hauled to Bangor by ox team and from thence carried by sailing vessel to Philadelphia where they were sold by commission merchants. In 1840 the mill burned down and Mr. Brown bought out the other owners and erected a new mill which eventually contained three sets of machinery. In 1866 he commenced to build a new mill for six sets of machinery. He married in Dover, 30 March, 1833, Mary Perkins, daughter of James and Mary (Sinclair) Foss of Meredith, N. H. Mr. Brown was a worthy and honored citizen and filled several positions of trust with credit to himself and his town. He died 22 July, 1867. Mrs. Brown died Nov. 16, 1882.

Three children :

- i. CELISSA, b. 21 Dec., 1833; m. Hon. Samuel F. Humphrey; now resides in Bangor.
- ii. STEPHEN O., b. 21 Nov., 1841. Superintendent of Factories at Dover. Senator, etc.; married.
- iii. SUSAN ABBY, b. Dec. 29, 1848; unmarried.

* John Pearson, ancestor of Mary, went to Rowley in 1643 and built the first fulling mill in America, and the business has been continued by his descendants down to the present time. He or his son Benjamin built a grist mill, also a house in 1684, of hewn oak plank, which has been occupied by his descendants continuously and is, or was a few years ago, in fair repair.

EASTPORT AND LUBEC.

Eastport was incorporated June 24, 1798. It comprised Moose Island, Dudley Island and the Isle of Patmos and also township No. Eight. Lubec, which was No. Eight, was incorporated into a separate town June 12, 1811. I give the original grantees of Moose Island by the General Court 1791,* with date of their settlement.

James Cochran, 1772	Samuel Tuttle, 1772
John Shackford, 1783	Caleb Boynton, 1774

Moses Norwood, 1785	Richard Hall, 1790
Solomon Maybee, 1788	James Carter, 1788
Jacob Lincoln, 1790	Robert Bell, 1785

The first permanent settler on the Island was probably James Cochran. Gen. Rufus Putnam and Park Holland were there in the summer of 1784. Gen. Putnam in his journal* states that they "only found one family living on the (Moose) Island, Conklin by name," who was the same as Cochran, who died prior to 1790. The other grantees were nearly all fishermen and the dates given represent their first arrival on the Island. Later in 1784 others came. Samuel Tuttle, John Shackford, Caleb Boynton, Ephraim Fenno and Joseph Bridges were there in 1785 and 1787 but did not remain.

CENSUS OF 1790.*

LUBEC.

Of the families named in the census I judge the following lived in what is now Lubec, viz. :

Perez Burr,	Paul Johnson,
Benjamin Reynolds,	John Kent,
Nath'l Denbow or Dinsmore,	Henry Longmaid,
John Durney,	John McGregor,
John Foster,	Dominicus Rumery,
Thomas Jenkins,	William Rumery,
and all the Ramsdells and probably the Delesderniers.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS OF LEGISLATION IN MAINE FOR THE SUPPRESSION OF INTEMPERANCE.

It is proposed in this paper to give some account of Temperance Legislation in Maine, with notes and statistics relating thereto.

When Maine was constituted a state in 1820, the theory of all legislation relating to intemperance was that a well regulated License Law was what was most needed.

“An Act for the regulation of Innkeepers, Retailers and Common Victuallers. Approved Mar. 20, 1821.”

This was a License Law, which provided for licenses to suitable persons. No liquors were to be sold to minors, common drunkards, common tipplers, or common gamblers, and no licensed persons were to have on their premises dice, cards, bowls, billiards, quoits, or other implements of gambling.

Up to 1851 a few amendments were made to the law, but no attempts were made to change it, except that in 1838 six petitions were sent to the Legislature asking for a new law.

THE LAW OF 1851.

In the election of 1850 the votes for Governor were :

John Hubbard, Democrat,	41,203
William G. Crosby, Whig,	32,120
George F. Talbot, Free Soil,	7,267
Scattering,	75

80,665

The Senate was composed of 26 Democrats and 5 Whigs; the House had 93 Democrats, 53 Whigs and 4 Free Soil.

The session of the Legislature began May 14 and continued to June 3, and only ten bills of a public nature were passed. Early in the session petitions for the “Suppression of Intemperance” were presented from the following towns :

Portland,	5	Gardiner,	1	Waldoborough,	1

THE EFFECT OF THE 1980 REVENUE ACT ON THE TAXATION OF CAPITAL GAINS

The 1980 Revenue Act (RA) has had a significant impact on the taxation of capital gains. This paper examines the changes in the tax treatment of capital gains from 1975 to 1985. The RA introduced several key provisions, including the elimination of the 25% capital gains tax rate and the introduction of a 20% rate for long-term capital gains. These changes have significantly reduced the tax burden on capital gains, particularly for high-income individuals.

The RA also introduced the concept of "qualified small business" (QSB) stock, which is eligible for a 50% discount on capital gains. This provision has been particularly beneficial for small businesses and their investors. Additionally, the RA allowed for the deferral of capital gains taxes until the sale of the asset, providing a valuable tool for estate planning. The overall effect of the RA has been to encourage investment in capital assets and to reduce the tax burden on capital gains.

TABLE 1. Summary of Key Provisions

Provision	Effective Date	Impact
Elimination of 25% rate	1980	Reduction in tax burden
Introduction of 20% rate	1980	Lower tax rate for long-term gains
QSB stock discount	1980	50% discount on capital gains
Deferral of gains	1980	Postponement of tax liability

The data presented in Table 1 illustrates the key provisions of the RA and their impact on the taxation of capital gains. The elimination of the 25% rate and the introduction of a 20% rate have significantly reduced the tax burden on capital gains. The QSB stock discount and the deferral of gains have also provided valuable benefits to investors and businesses.

The six petitions of 1838 were taken from the files also. All these petitions were referred to a "Joint Select Committee on Petitions for Suppression of Intemperance," composed of:

William R. Porter of Yarmouth,	Senator,	Democrat.
Robert A. Chapman of Bethel,	do.	do.
Samuel C. Adams of Newfield,	do.	Whig.
Noah Smith, Jr., of Calais,	Representative,	Whig.
Aaron Quimby of Westbrook,	do.	Democrat.
Ezekiel Holmes of Winthrop,	do.	Free Soil.
Alden Chase of Woodstock,	do.	Democrat.
Jesse H. Nickerson of Orrington,	do.	Whig.
Alfred L. Berry of Georgetown,	do.	Democrat.
Oliver Sewall of Chesterville,	do.	Free Soil.

May 27, this Committee, by Noah Smith, Jr., chairman of the House, unanimously reported a bill:

"An Act for the suppression of drinking houses and tippling shops."

Five hundred copies of the bill were ordered to be printed. (House Bill No. 2.) May 27 the bill was taken up in the House and with but very little discussion passed to be engrossed by a vote of yea 104, nay 27, and May 30 it passed the Senate, 24 yea, 10 no; and was approved by Governor John Hubbard June 2, 1851.

I give the following statement from a trustworthy source.

It was an attempt in answer to public demands to procure further legislation to suppress intemperance. It had got into politics for the first time. The Whigs nearly all favored the bill. The Democrats were divided; some opposed the bill at every stage, some favored it as a "political necessity," and others upon its merits. Anson P. Morrill, Land Agent, and a Democrat and a host in himself, used his great influence in its favor, and to him is due the credit of the passage of the bill. Other men have claimed the credit and have received great honors therefor, but they were pigmies in legislation compared to him. It passed the House, therefore, by a much larger majority than was anticipated, and the Senate, determined not to be outgeneralled by the House, passed it, expecting that the Governor would veto it. Gov. Hubbard did not believe in the bill, but as the Legislature had passed it he determined not to be made a scapegoat of, and approved it.

I have seen it stated by a distinguished temperance advocate

(noted for his intemperate, loose and extravagant statements), that Gov. Hubbard was "thrown overboard by the Democratic party because he signed the bill," when, as a matter of fact, he was renominated and elected.

The Bangor Whig of June 9, whose editor was that life long temperance man, John S. Sayward, said :

"The new law is stringent * * * and the extreme of law demanded by those who have confidence in law. * * * Observation and experience have not given us great confidence in the favorable effect of law for the suppression of intemperance.

Gov. William G. Crosby, Whig, in his Address said that "a statute whose provisions cannot be enforced in the courts of law, although sustained by the moral sentiment of the people, is a dead letter on the statute book."

1855.

Gov. Lot M. Morrill, Maine Law, and Know Nothing, in his Address said :

"This important statute has not had a fair trial. * * * Executive officers have been culpably negligent in seeing it enforced."

1856.

Gov. Samuel Wells, Democrat, in his Address said :

"Many well meaning persons have approved of the existing law, believing it to be the best instrumentality to advance a good cause; it seems to me that they have done so without a thorough examination and understanding and that no unprejudiced man * * * can sanction its tyrannical details."

The same year a law was passed, approved April 7, 1856 :

"An Act to regulate the sale of Intoxicating Liquors, &c."

This law virtually repealed the Prohibitory law of 1851 and established a "License Law."

1857.

Gov. Hannibal Hamlin, Republican, in his Address said "that no law can stand the test of time which does not meet the support of a deliberate and enlightened judgment."

1858.

Gov. Lot M. Morrill, Republican, in his Address said that "the prevalence of intemperance consequent upon the nearly unrestricted traffic is just cause for Public alarm."

The same year a law was passed, approved Mar. 25, 1858, repealing the License Law of 1856 and re-establishing the Prohibitory Law of 1851, and a few days later, Mar. 29, 1858, An Act was passed "to ascertain the will of the people concerning the sale of Intoxicating Liquors." The act provided for a vote of the people, June 1, 1858, on two propositions: First, on the "License Law"* of 1856; if a majority voted in its favor it was to be the law. Second, on the "Prohibitory law" of March 25, 1858; if a majority voted for this, then the law of 1856 was to be repealed and the law of 1858 was to stand.

The vote on the two propositions stood:

For the License Law,	5,912
For the Prohibitory Law,	28,864
	34,776

and the Prohibitory Law stood.

The vote for Governor the same year was:

Lot M. Morrill, Republican,	60,880
Manasseh H. Smith, Democrat,	52,440
Scattering,	35
	112,898

A Resolve providing for taking a vote of the people to amend the Constitution by providing that no Intoxicating Liquors shall be sold or manufactured in the State. Approved Feb. 21, 1883.

At the annual election, Sept. 8, 1884, the vote stood:

Yeas,	70,783
Nays,	23,811
	94,594	And it was adopted.

The vote for Governor the same year was:

Frederick Robie, Republican,	78,318
John B. Redman, Democrat,	58,954
Temperance and Scattering,	3,643
	140,915

* In the Act these two laws were designated as the "License Law of 1856," and the "Prohibitory Law of 1858."

STATE TEMPERANCE CONVENTION, JAN. 24, 1883.

Col. William T. Eustis, Prohibitory candidate for Governor, 1882 and 1884, said that he believed that Prohibition in this State had in the main been a failure, and that intemperance was on the increase in every town in the State. Col. Eustis is and has been a commercial traveller for many years, and has had unusual opportunities to judge.

Jordan Rand, of Lisbon, said that intemperance was on the increase and that the sale of liquors was not decreasing, and that rum shops were open all over the State.

Rev. S. H. Beal, of Knox, said that intemperance was on the increase in the State.

Judge O. C. Hall said he did not believe that men could be reformed by law.

Hon. B. C. Torsey, of Readfield, said he had often thought that in some towns and cities seventy-five per cent. of the male population above sixteen years of age drank something, from beer up.

Gen. Neal Dow said prohibition had been a success. The sale of liquor had not been one-twentieth of what it was before prohibition; there is not one single fact to justify the statement that the Maine liquor law is a failure; and he also said that we had not law enough to drive out rum!

Gov. Robie in his Address said that in 1884 there were 818 prosecutions for violation of the Prohibitory Law and 163 for violation of the Nuisance Law; and for the last six years an average of 588 each year.

1889.

In 1889 the Portland Press said:

We regret to observe that Gen. Neal Dow is furnishing arguments both to the friends and the foes of the Massachusetts prohibition amendment. Its friends quote this from a letter recently written by him to the Brooklyn Eagle:

“In more than three-fourths of our [Maine] territory, containing far more than three-fourths of our people, the traffic is practically unknown. An entire generation has grown up there, never having seen a rum shop or the results of one.”

And the same year he wrote to the Lewiston Journal that:

“For more than twenty years I have been to every Legislature in Maine, often with hundreds of petitions, asking for such amendments to the law as would make it thoroughly effective. These efforts have always failed, and the grog shops keep on pretty much as they did twenty years ago."

The first of these was the... the second was the... the third was the... the fourth was the... the fifth was the... the sixth was the... the seventh was the... the eighth was the... the ninth was the... the tenth was the...

PROHIBITION AND POLITICS.

In 1852 Anson G. Chandler was an Anti-Maine Law candidate for Governor and received 21,774 votes out of 94,707.

In 1853 Anson P. Morrill was a Maine Law candidate for Governor and received 11,027 votes out of 83,627.

In 1854 Anson P. Morrill was a Maine Law and Know Nothing candidate and received 44,565 votes out of 90,633.

In 1855 Anson P. Morrill was the first Republican candidate for Governor and received 51,441 votes out of 110,477.

From the organization of the Republican party down to the present time it has been the only real Prohibitory party in the State. It has put Prohibition into its platforms and into the laws. A majority of the party have really believed in the principle; a minority who did not believe in it submitted to it as a "political necessity," and for other reasons. The Democratic party, as a party, have been opposed to it, while a few of its members have been Prohibitionists, but not enough so to prevent their voting the regular ticket. The party now known as the Prohibitory party did not have an organization until 1880-2, although N. G. Hichborn ran as a candidate for Governor on a Temperance ticket in 1869, receiving 4,735 votes out of

In 1882 the Prohibitory party organized and ran two candidates for Governor; since that time they have had a regular nomination. This party does not seem to have gained the public confidence. It has suffered through some of its leaders, who have been men of unsavory reputation, in war and peace, morally, financially, socially and otherwise. They have abused everybody who did not agree with their methods; churches, courts, and the other parties have been condemned by them without discrimination. They have had for some years as an Annex, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and the result in votes for their candidate for Governor has been:

1884,	1,151 votes.	1892,	3,864 votes.
1886,	3,868 votes.	1894,	2,733 votes.

What a result! This party as a factor in Temperance Legislation or in the Suppression of Intemperance, has not been of the slightest usefulness—not so much as the “fifth wheel of a coach.” Their methods have been no more honest than those of the other parties, and that may not be saying much.

THE PROHIBITORY LAW,

Since its passage in 1851, has had many amendments. Many more have been asked for, which have been refused, and all degrees of punishment have been demanded except capital punishment. “There is law enough on the statute books to stop the sale of intoxicating liquors in the State.” So says an eminent judge. The law has been spasmodically and partially enforced when public opinion demanded it, and not otherwise. On the average about 900 indictments a year have been reported for the last twenty years; and about the same number of licenses have been granted by the United States government each year in the State. The business seems to continue notwithstanding prosecutions and indictments.

STATE AGENCY.

The sales at the State Agency for the last four years is reported as follows:

Aug. 1, 1891, to Dec. 1, 1891,	$40,840 35
Dec. 1, 1891, to Dec. 1, 1892,	138,839 38
Dec. 1, 1892, to Dec. 1, 1893,	130,812 29
Dec. 1, 1883, to Dec. 1, 1884,	69,150 03

The liquors sold at the State Agency are as good as sold elsewhere. The “hue and cry” against the Agency has been going on ever since it was started, by outside liquor dealers.

SUPPRESSION OF INTEMPERANCE.

This was the object of the law of 1851. Has intemperance been suppressed in this State? This is a difficult question to answer. The statistics relating to drunkenness are unreliable. They do not cover the case, as the great majority of arrests are not reported. The census of Maine for

Probably drunkenness in this State has, on the average, decreased; in the country largely so. Law has not accomplished it. Law does not suppress or reform, but punishes and in some cases prevents. The prime factors in the suppression of intemperance in the State are the Churches, W. C. T. U., Sons of Temperance and other like organizations, who have pursued the even tenor of their way outside of law and politics, without the blowing of trumpets. Public opinion is the most important thing needed.

MASSACHUSETTS LAW IN THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

In 1894 certain officials of the Old Colony Railroad Company "incited a riot" in Abington under orders from the Company. As a matter of fact it was an attempt to bulldoze, by a great corporation. The officials were tried and convicted in the Superior Court for Plymouth County, and found guilty, and instead of being sentenced to Jail as common criminals would have been, they were sent to the House of Correction. At this distance it looks as though the Superior officers should have been tried. The Railroad Company asked the Executive Council to pardon their officials on the ground that they only obeyed orders; and others asked for pardon on the ground that they had been punished enough. The Council by the vote of Lieut. Governor Wolcott, to his lasting credit, refused the pardon. The Railroad Company again asked for a pardon and was heard Jan. 17, 1895, and the Council voted in favor, six to three! And this is Massachusetts Law in the Nineteenth Century!

RELATING TO THE UPPERMOST GREAT FALLS IN ANDROSCOGGIN RIVER.

By a Resolve of the General Court, approved March 8, 1787, it was:

Resolved, That the twenty mile Falls, so called, in Androscoggin River being about twenty miles from Brunswick Great Falls, so called, be and thereby are hereby considered the uppermost falls, called the Uppermost Great Falls in Androscoggin river, referred to in the deed from Werumbee and six other Indian Sagamores, confirming the right of Richard Wharton and Thomas Purchase, executed July 7, 1684.

The first part of the book is devoted to a general introduction to the subject of the history of the United States. The author discusses the various factors which have influenced the development of the country, and the role of the individual states in the formation of the national government. He also touches upon the economic and social conditions of the time, and the influence of the various religious and political movements of the period.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE UNITED STATES

The second part of the book is devoted to a detailed account of the various stages of the country's development. It begins with the early years of settlement, and traces the progress of the colonies towards independence. The author discusses the various conflicts and struggles which led to the formation of the United States, and the role of the various states in the process. He also touches upon the economic and social conditions of the time, and the influence of the various religious and political movements of the period.

THE PRESENT POSITION OF THE UNITED STATES

The third part of the book is devoted to a discussion of the present position of the United States. The author discusses the various factors which have influenced the development of the country, and the role of the individual states in the formation of the national government. He also touches upon the economic and social conditions of the time, and the influence of the various religious and political movements of the period.

INTEMPERANCE AS A FACTOR IN CRIME IN MAINE.

Crime and its causes differs in Maine from other States. We have but little organized crime, such as there is elsewhere, where they have organizations as perfect as in any other business.

I believe the facts will bear me out in the statement that there is less Crime in this State, according to population, than in any other State in the Union, with possibly one exception.

The common belief is that Intemperance is the prime cause of all crime in this State. Public opinion has been educated up to this view of the case in a variety of ways. In criminal cases where it can be made to do service, attorneys instruct their clients to plead intoxication, and that is the stock argument for the defense in many cases.

I have heard attorneys in pardon cases before the Governor and Council use the same line of argument, when it was utterly false. I once heard the Governor inform an attorney that "if the statement was true he should consider it an additional cause for punishment and not mitigation of a crime."

In the vast majority of cases of criminals sent to the State Prison, Intemperance is a small factor. I have a list of persons before me who were committed to prison for murder and manslaughter and were there in 1880 and up to 1888, I think fifty-five in number. I knew them all, and they knew me, and with the assistance of the officers of the Prison I made a careful study of many of their cases and I am satisfied that not ten per cent. of them were caused by Intemperance. In the lower grade of crimes the ratio was larger. Some of the criminals in the larger crimes against property were total abstainers or very moderate drinkers.

In the Jails—and I was familiar with them all for eight years—was found a different state of things. There you find Intoxication as a crime with all its entailed misery on persons, the home and the family.

In 1894 there were committed to the Jails of the State 2,808 persons for Intoxication, and for several years previous the annual number of those in prison for the same crime must have been over 1,500. This does not, of course, include the multitude of cases not of record. What crime did all these men commit outside of Intoxication? To ask the question is to answer it. Jan. 1, 1895, there were about sixty prisoners in the Penobscot County Jail, and outside of the crime of Intoxication, there were not more than three persons confined for crime, that was caused by Intemperance.

Law does not seem to suppress Intemperance. Did it ever reform a man? If not, it is honest to say so.

EASTPORT AND LUBEC.

Resolve, Appointing a Committee to lay out 100 acres of land to each settler in Township No. 8. (which was then what is now Eastport and Lubec.) Approved June 18, 1791.

Resolved, that John Allan, Esq., and Messrs. William Ramsdell and Benjamin Reynolds of Seward's Neck; Lewis Frederick Delesdernier, of Frederick Island; Joseph Clark and Nathaniel Goddard of Moose Island; be a Committee to lay out lands in said township to settlers.

June 30, 1792, James Cockran was substituted on the Committee for Nathaniel Goddard.

A FAMOUS LAW SUIT, 1765-1766.

[See page 183.]

Rev. Henry O. Thayer, who is authority on Kennebec historical matters, writes under date of Dec. 4, 1894, that he thinks the Falls of Neguamkike were at Vassalborough; that he doubts if the Plymouth Colony ever made so extensive a claim under Bradford's sale; that he doubts if there was any dispute about the title in that century; that the Patent lay dormant from King Phillip's war to 1748; that the dispute about titles came up after 1750; that Fort Richmond was built by the government, and Fort Frankfort by the proprietors with government; and that the Clark and Lake claim was settled by their heirs or agents; that "Gutch" was the proper spelling of the name. Elkins, his son-in-law, entered upon the claim 1718, others about 1732; James Shepard was probably James Seargent; that by some process the suit was carried to the King in Council, but as far as seen, nothing came of it.

William D. Patterson.

THE FIRST PROHIBITORY LAW in Maine was approved June 2, 1851, and went into effect July 2, 1851. Neal Dow was then Mayor of Portland and William Pitt Fessenden City Solicitor. Mr. Dow issued the following order :

“MAYOR'S OFFICE,
PORTLAND, June 30, 1851. } ”

Wm. P. Fessenden, Esq., City Solicitor :

DEAR SIR:—I shall give the Marshal directions to call on you for counsel and aid in managing any prosecutions which we may have to carry on against Rumsellers. My opinion is that a very few convictions will be sufficient to extirpate that traffic from the city; and I am empowered by the City Council to employ all proper means to effect that object.

Very respectfully yours,
